

Humphrey and Truman: A Meeting of Underdogs

HARRY S. TRUMAN

By FRANK CORMIER
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey, bound for a reunion with the underdog winner of the 1948 presidential election, seems to be inching toward making the Vietnam war his major issue.

The self-acknowledged 1968 underdog in the presidential campaign flies to Kansas City, Mo., today to meet his running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, for a brief trip to Independence and a visit with Harry S. Truman.

Humphrey, who says he badly needs all the help he can get in his race with Republican Richard M. Nixon, found Friday night Vietnam brought him his second standing ovation in 24 hours.

Speaking at a $100-a-plate fund raising dinner in cavernous Freedom Hall—where at least twice as many people greeted third party candidate George C. Wallace a few weeks ago—he brought his estimated audience of 5,000 to its feet saying:

"I will do everything, God willing, to find an honorable way, to find an honorable peace, to end this war and get on with the unfinished business of America."

A day earlier he had gotten a similar response—prolonged applause from people on their feet—with a similar statement in Sioux Falls, S.D.

And earlier Friday, speaking from the steps of Abraham Lincoln's old home in Springfield, Ill., he spoke of the works of the Great Emancipator and said "We must be emancipated."

Rather pointedly, many observers felt, he went on to speak of emancipation from "policies of the past if they are wrong."

Richard M. Nixon said he would not accept a Vietnam settlement to bring home U. S. troops at the risk that "their 14 and 15-year-old brothers will have to fight another war." Story on Page 14.

Humphrey—by invitation—also brought his Louisville audience to its feet when he wound up his speech with these words: "Stand with me now. Let us go forth from this place determined that America will not turn its back on its own people, that we are determined to make this country the finest place in the world for the finest people in the world—the American people. I ask your help."

This statement followed directly after one in which he said to his border-state audience: "I'm going to stand on the principle of human equality and human opportunity, of equal equality and equal opportunity, for every American regardless of race, color or creed."

With all this, Humphrey did not neglect Nixon. At one point he said the voters would have a choice—from an economic standpoint—of "trickle down" Nixon or "percolate up Hubert."

Declaring that Nixon evades major issues, he said: "I'm going to send him talcum powder. He must have travel sores from straddling all those fences."

The Democratic candidate also claimed to be the only one running for president "who has cleaned up a city—driven out the criminals and racketeers—and received the FBI award for effective law enforcement."

Saying he did this as mayor of Minneapolis, he went on, "I intend to do exactly the same thing as president of the United States."

Humphrey added, "the people want a man, not a mannequin, for president—a man who speaks out clearly and honestly."

Third party candidate George Wallace also came under attack. Humphrey challenged the former Alabama governor to debate him together with Nixon. Wallace would turn the clock backward, Humphrey claimed.

Concluding his remarks, Humphrey told his supporters, "I will do everything, God willing, to find an honorable peace, to end this war and get on with unfinished business of America."

Marines Assault Demilitarized Zone

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — A task force of 2,000 U.S. Marines swept through the demilitarized zone dividing Vietnam today in a drive to seize the enemy's weapons stockpiles and destroy its infiltration trails.

Heavy fighting also raged near the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon where government troops holding an embattled outpost reported killing 173 enemy.

Helicopters carried the Marine assault troops into the DMZ

Tuesday, but the U.S. Command placed an embargo on news about the operation until word leaked out today.

In five days of maneuvering, the Leathernecks reported killing 74 North Vietnamese regulars while suffering two dead and 10 wounded.

It is reported the first time an allied force has entered the DMZ's central sector. American and South Vietnamese forces have made five major forays into the zone's eastern flank over the last 16 months, including one last Friday.

The zone, which extends three miles on each side of the North-South Vietnamese border, is supposed to be neutral territory but enemy troops have fortifications and gun positions there.

Allied forces have stayed out of the zone's northern half, but U.S. Air Force B52 bombers have unloaded tons of explosives there and over the extreme southern fringe of North Vietnam in an attempt to silence the big enemy guns that could be used against the Marines. Field reports said the enemy's heavy artillery had failed to pinpoint the Leathernecks' sweeps.

Headquarters said the operation had two aims, to destroy hidden war supplies and to disrupt a newly discovered network of "speed trails" enabling North Vietnamese to move swiftly through the DMZ to Marine outposts. A Marine spokesman described the "speed trails" as cleared paths fitted with steps and hand rails at difficult spots.

The Marines reported killing 25 North Vietnamese troops on the first day of the DMZ operation and have since had only scattered contacts in the heavily jungled terrain.

In several instances, food and ammunition were dropped to the U.S. troops by parachute, but there have been no jumps into combat.

The heavy fighting northwest of Saigon took place in flooded rice paddies and marshes about 10 miles from the Cambodian border, west of the provincial capital of Tay Ninh City.

An enemy force burst from the darkness early Friday and attacked the government post at Phuoc Tan, a fortress of barbed wire, mud walls and wooden watchtowers. The enemy returned today after softening up the camp with 200 mortar rounds.

The fighting subsided at dawn, but details of the battle were sketchy.

South Vietnamese headquarters said the post's defenders had radioed they lost 14 dead and 85 wounded in the two days of fighting. The attackers left 35 dead Friday and 138 today, government spokesmen reported.

Half a dozen skirmishes were reported along the infiltration corridor from the Cambodian border to Saigon.

Two U.S. Army trucks carrying Vietnamese civilian workers struck a road mine 16 miles northeast of Saigon, killing 10 of the civilians and injuring 32 others, government officials said.

PICKETING IN ALBANY—About 400 members of the Bedford-Stuyvesant Parents Association of Brooklyn picketed the Educational and Capitol buildings in Albany yesterday. Shouting, "Open our schools," and "Down with Shanker," the group presented demands to Education Commissioner James E. Allen, the most important of which that the New York City schools open at once. Meanwhile, Dr. Bernard E. Donovan, the city's superintendent of schools, announced a new plan he hoped would put a quick end to the strike that has kept schools closed to most of the city's 1.12 million pupils. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Reentry Path For Red Craft

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviets Zond 5 barreled toward earth at 25,000 miles an hour today, headed for a touchy reentry into the atmosphere that if successful will make it the first space craft around the moon and back.

(The Jodrell Bank Observatory in England said it was once more monitoring strong signals from Zond 5 as the vehicle neared the earth.)

The Soviet news agency Tass announced Friday Zond 5 had circled the moon Wednesday and was proceeding normally, a departure from the usual silence on space matters which indicated all was well with the Zond 5 experiment.

The shot was an apparent Soviet attempt to go one up on the United States in the race for the moon, paving the way for a man to follow Zond 5's pioneering footsteps. The United States plans to send three men around the moon late in December.

Western scientists in Jodrell Bank, England, said Zond 5 should hit the earth's atmosphere this weekend. Any miscalculation in speed or angle of approach could mean destruction of the craft in a ball of flame, they said.

The Western observers said Zond 5 was big enough to carry a man and was sending back recorded voice transmissions on a telephone hookup that would provide instantaneous communications with a man inside, a communications feat unprecedented from so far away.

Tass said Zond 5, launched Sunday, passed within 1,210.9 miles of the moon Wednesday and "pressure and temperature within the station is maintained." It described the craft as an "automatic space station."

The announcement said scientists had altered Zond's course slightly one day before it encircled the moon by firing its propulsion engine, which deploys thrust by rotating charged electronic particles in an electro-magnetic field and shooting them forth at a high speed.

This type engine overcomes the problems of carrying fuel in lengthy space trips, cutting down the chance of failure.

The fighting subsided at dawn, but details of the battle were sketchy.

South Vietnamese headquarters said the post's defenders had radioed they lost 14 dead and 85 wounded in the two days of fighting. The attackers left 35 dead Friday and 138 today, government spokesmen reported.

Half a dozen skirmishes were reported along the infiltration corridor from the Cambodian border to Saigon.

Seek Solidarity

Czech Heads in Visit

By GENE KRAMER

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's liberal leaders continued their visit to the provinces today, hopeful that the cheers they draw demonstrate a national solidarity that will give them a bargaining wedge in upcoming talks with the Kremlin.

Their visit today to Ostrava, a city of 250,000 in the coal, iron and steel region of Czech Silesia, followed a triumphant visit Friday to the international industrial fair at Brno, Czechoslovakia's second largest city.

President Ludvik Svoboda, reformist Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek, Premier Oldrich Cernik, National Assembly President Joseph Smrkovsky and Slovak Communist party leader Gustav Husak were cheered by thousands in the streets of Brno and at the fair.

Dubcek and Cernik appear today at a workers' mass meeting at Ostrava.

The provincial tour came after postponement of talks in Moscow originally expected this weekend.

Informed sources said Dubcek would probably lead a delegation of party and government officials to Moscow Monday or Tuesday to ask the Soviets to begin withdrawing the more than 500,000 troops who occupied the country a month ago.

Prague Radio reported 100 per cent of 864 citizens queried in a poll at Usti, North Bohemia, said they favored the departure of the occupation forces.

It added that 783 expressed full confidence in the Dubcek leadership, 671 were convinced that Dubcek's policy of reforming and liberalizing hard-line communism should be continued and 526 accepted the Moscow agreement as the only way out of a difficult situation. The date of the poll was not given.

At Brno, fairgoers crowded so densely around their leaders that white-haired President Svoboda said, "We could see nothing except a large number of lovely people."

Meanwhile, in Warsaw, the Polish Foreign Office said a drunken Polish soldier on a shooting spree killed two Czechoslovak civilians and wounded five others in Jicin, Bohemia, on Sept. 7.

A spokesman said the killing of the man and a woman was an "isolated incident, the only one to date."

The soldier, he said, will be tried by Polish court martial. He added that the incident was not reported earlier because it might have damaged the normalization of Polish-Czechoslovak relations.

In Resita, Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu made a plea for East-West cooperation to cut the danger of a cold war in Europe.

"In these difficult times," he told a rally, "it should be the main effort of all European countries to cooperate with each other and prevent a return to the cold war."

TRAGEDY IN ENGLAND—A section of a French Brequet Atlantic Maritime Patrol plane is sunk in the roof of one of the British Aircraft establishment buildings after it crashed during the Farnborough Air Show. At least 12 bodies have been recovered. Five have been identified as crew members and two as civilians. Rescue workers probed the wreckage of at least four buildings in the search for more bodies. # Miracle at Air Show, Plane Misses 16,000

FARNBOROUGH, England dump. Minutes before, a social club wrecked in the crash had been full of Royal Air Force men.

A formal inquiry begins today and two key questions are whether the plane was flying too slowly and too low.

One pilot who saw the crash said: "It is obvious to us that the aircraft was flying too slowly and too low, having regard to the prevailing wind speed, which was very high."

Another pilot said it appeared that after the demonstration of one-engine flying, the plane's captain tried to restart the left engine, but "I don't think it restarted."

The Breugnot turboprop plane was built to the specifications of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization by the industry of six nations. It is in service with the French and West German navies.

Its crash was the first disaster at the Farnborough air show since 1952, when a De Havilland DH110 twin-jet fighter disintegrated and crashed into the crowd, killing 30 persons.

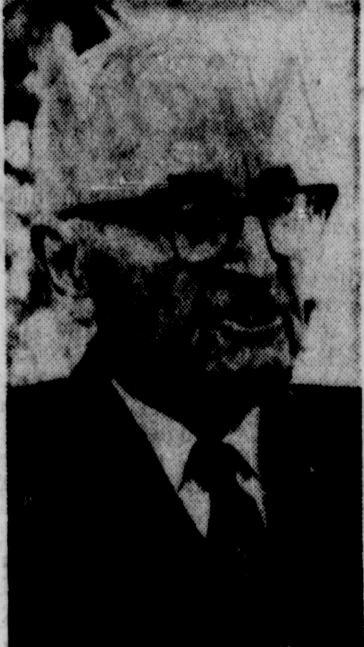

Farnborough is the showcase for British military and civil aircraft.

Miracle at Air Show, Plane Misses 16,000

FARNBOROUGH, England (AP) — "It was a miracle the plane hit the ground where it did, with hardly anyone about," an air show official says of the crash that killed six persons but missed 16,000 in the main spectator area.

The five-man French crew and one person on the ground were killed Friday when the experimental twin-engine Breuguet—demonstrating one-engine flying—plunged into a row of aircraft buildings.

Rescue workers searched the wreckage today to make certain no other spectators had died in the crash.

As the plane hit, a wing sliced into a shed. The high tail section cartwheeled over roofs, and the fuselage and engines exploded over a wide area in a huge cloud of orange flame and black smoke.

The fireball erupted just yards away from a main fuel dump. Minutes before, a social club wrecked in the crash had been full of Royal Air Force men.

A formal inquiry begins today and two key questions are whether the plane was flying too slowly and too low.

Shofar Sounds Sunday Night

The holiest season of the year for the Jewish people will begin with the holiday of Rosh Hashonah, the Day of Atonement, which this year begins Tuesday evening, Oct. 1, ending with the Day of Judgment, Rosh Hashonah lasts for two days, Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 23 and 24. For the Reform Jews the holiday is held Sunday, Monday and Tuesday on Monday, Sept. 23.

This Jewish New Year's Day starts a period of repentance and atonement, ushered in by special religious services, and the blowing of the ram's horn, or the Shofar, as it is called in Hebrew.

In order to arouse the people to do penitence, the Shofar is sounded first as a reminder of the pious patriarch Abraham, who was considered the first Jew, whose faith in the Almighty was tantamount to his love for his only son, Isaac, whom he was willing to slay as a sacrifice at the command of the Lord. The ram's horn, the Shofar, is blown as a symbol that sins will be forgiven.

Method of Assembly
The calls on the Shofar were also the ancient method of assembling the people, and this custom has remained as a reminder of the Biblical exhortation concerning this holiday.

"And it shall be unto you a Day of Remembrance, of the blowing of the horn, a holy convocation."

According to Jewish belief, Rosh Hashonah is a Day of Judgment, when the Divine Judge sits upon his Seat of Justice, and decrees the destiny of each human being for the coming year. Following Biblical history, this was the day when the world was created 5729 years ago, and so on the Jewish calendar this year begins the year 5729. And as a new year for the world begins, the Heavenly Judge has open before Him the Books of Life and Death.

The prayers offered in the synagogues symbolize the spirit of the day, as they pronounce the theme: "O inscribe us in the Book of Life, for Thy sake, O Living and Eternal God."

The most outstanding supplication and liturgical chant teaches the message of the Holy Season as it describes The Heavenly Court as a place where the souls of all human beings pass before the Lord, and He counts each one and writes down each one's destiny, as a shepherd who musters his flock. Therefore the Jewish people greet each other at this season with the Hebrew blessing: L'shono Tovah Tikosai—"May you be inscribed for a good year."

The season of repentance begins with Rosh Hashonah and ends 10 days later on the night of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, which this year begins Tuesday evening, Oct. 1, ending with the Day of Judgment, Rosh Hashonah lasts for two days, Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 23 and 24. For the Reform Jews the holiday is held Sunday, Monday and Tuesday on Monday, Sept. 23.

Shofar Sounds Sunday Night

The holiest season of the year for the Jewish people will begin with the holiday of Rosh of Hashonah, which means the beginning of the year, Sunday evening, Oct. 1.

Rosh Hashonah lasts for two days, Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 23 and 24. For the Reform Jews the holiday is only on Monday, Sept. 23.

This Jewish New Year's Day starts a period of repentance and atonement, ushered in by the blowing of the ram's horn, or the Shofar, as it is called in Hebrew.

In order to arouse the people to do penitence, the Shofar is sounded first as a reminder of the piety of the patriarch Abraham, who was considered the first Jew, whose faith in the Almighty was tantamount to Isaac's love for his only son, Isaac, whom he was willing to slay as a sacrifice at the command of the Lord. The ram's horn, the Shofar, is blown as a symbol that sins will be forgiven.

Method of Assembly
The calls on the Shofar were also the ancient method of assembling the people, and this custom has remained as a reminder of the Biblical exhortation concerning this holiday, "And it shall be unto you a Day of Remembrance, of the blowing of the horn, a holy convocation."

According to Jewish belief, Rosh Hashonah is a Day of Judgment, when the Divine Judge sits upon his Seat of Justice, and decrees the destiny of each human being for the coming year. Following Biblical history, this was the day when the world was created 5729 years ago, and so on the Jewish calendar this year begins the year 5729. And as a new year for the world begins, the Heavenly Judge has open before Him the Books of Life and Death.

The prayers offered in the synagogues symbolize the spirit of the day, as they pronounce the theme: "O inscribe us in the Book of Life, for Thy sake, O Living and Eternal God."

The most outstanding supplication and liturgic chant teaches the message of the Holy Season as it describes The Heavenly Court as a place where the souls of all human beings pass before the Lord, and He counts each one and writes down each one's destiny, as a shepherd who musters his flock. Therefore the Jewish people greet each other at this season with the Hebrew blessing: L'shono Tovah Tikosavu—"May you be inscribed for a good year."

The season of repentance begins with Rosh Hashonah and ends 10 days later on the night of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, which this year begins Tuesday evening, Oct. 1.

At Congregation Ahavath Israel, the Conservative Synagogue at 100 Lucas Avenue, Rosh Hashonah services will be held Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 22, 23 and 24, in the evenings at 6:45 and in the mornings of Monday and Tuesday, at 8:30.

Rabbi Harry Z. Schechtman will conduct the services and will preach Monday morning on the topic, A Changing Age, and on Tuesday morning on the topic, A Decision for Life. The liturgy will be chanted by the guest cantors, Cantor Charles Flusberg and Hillel Ribner.

The synagogue will be open for services throughout the holidays for all members and their families, and for all Jewish people in the community who wish to come and pray. Children's services will be held in the children's chapel each holiday 11 a. m.

Local Service
Schedule of High Holy Days at Congregation gudas Achim, 24 West Union Street, will begin with Mincha services Sunday 6:30 p. m. Services will be Monday and Tuesday 8 a. m. and 8:30 a. m.

Rabbi Dr. Melech Schachter will serve the congregation during the High Holy Days. Services will be conducted by Cantor Herman Slomovits and Hyman B. Reher.

Temple Emanuel, 243 Albany Avenue, will start the holiday Sunday 7:30 p. m. As a part of the Rosh Hashonah evening service the social hall of the Temple will be dedicated in memory of Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom who served as spiritual leader of the temple for 33 years from 1933 until his death in 1966. Arrangements for the special ceremony are under the direction of Arthur Ewig, a close friend of the Bloom family.

Other services at the Temple will be as follows:
Monday 10 a. m. with children's service at 2 p. m. Shabbas Shuvah services Friday, Sept. 27, at 7:30 p. m. A reception for the congregation will be given by Rabbi and Mrs. Jonathan Eichhorn Monday 3 to 5 p. m. in the social hall, immediately after the children's service.

Baby sitting services will be made available at the Monday services. Non-Temple members desiring seats for the High Holy Days may contact Edwin Wetherhahn.

Speaking on the topic, This Is Our Life the Rev. Dr. John A. Sensenig, the executive of Hudson River Presbytery, will be guest preacher in the 11 a. m. service at the First Presbyterian Church, Elmendorf Street and Tremper Avenue.

Girl Watchers Observing the Girl

Charge White House Promoting Anti-Semitism on Fortas Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—A leader in the fight to block Abe Fortas' nomination as chief justice says the White House is trying to make it seem as though opposition is based on anti-Semitism.

"The White House, indirectly and directly, is trying to stir this up and make it a big issue, even though there is no basis for it," Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., told newsmen Friday.

"I think it's emanating right from the White House," he said. "It's flopped and backfired on them, but they are still trying."

There was no immediate comment from the White House which Griffin has accused in the past of bringing extraordinary pressure to bear in Fortas' behalf.

Hart, who did not deliver the speech before the Senate adjourned, said examination of Fortas' record in Supreme Court obscenity decisions "clearly refutes the charge he favors smut."

Meeting with newsmen in his office, Griffin said opposition forces now have about 45 votes against invoking the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule—far more than enough to keep a filibuster going.

He said he didn't think the nomination would ever come to a vote.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, after unprecedented hearings during which a chief justice nominee was questioned by a committee for the first time ever, approved Fortas' nomination Tuesday.

President Johnson nominated Fortas June 26 to succeed Earl Warren, who informed Johnson he wanted to retire. The President made the retirement contingent on Senate confirmation of a successor, a move denounced by opponents as political.

Johnson nominated Federal Judge Homer Thornberry of Texas to fill the vacancy that elevation of Fortas, an associate justice since 1965, would create.

Shelved Nomination
The committee has shelved the Thornberry nomination until action is completed on Fortas.

Both Fortas and Thornberry are old Johnson friends.

Opponents are basing their fight against Fortas on charges that Johnson is guilty of cronyism, that he has no right to make such an important nomination in the waning days of his tenure, that Fortas acted improperly in continuing to advise the President while on the high court and that his siding with the majority in overturning obscenity cases has contributed to an increase in pornography.

Dutchess Accident Kills 2

Defense From Hart

As Griffin got in some final licks against the nomination before debate starts next week, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., put out a speech defending Fortas, who would become the first Jewish chief justice if confirmed.

A Jamaica, L. I. father and his daughter were killed in a head-on collision at 5:52 a. m. on Rt. 82 in Dutchess County after the car they were riding in was struck headon when another car crossed over the dividing line.

Dead are Fred Birkland, of 9125 183rd Street, Jamaica and his daughter, Jeanne, 15. Birkland's nine-year old son David is listed in critical condition at St. Francis Hospital as is a daughter, Joyce, 16. The driver of the other car Horace Bull, 40, of Verbank, was admitted to Vassar Hospital with a fracture of the nose and multiple contusions.

The accident is under investigation by the Dutchess County Sheriff's Department.

Georgia Holds Mich. Men In Slaying of Area Resident

Charged with murder in the slaying of Frank Lindstrom, 77-year-old retired merchant seaman of the Dutchess County Community of Red Hook on Tuesday, two Michigan men have been ordered held for trial in Superior Court in Statesboro, Ga.

A Bulloch County, Ga., grand jury ordered Daniel Paul Larkin and Mark Alan Halm, both of Saginaw, Mich., held without bond.

Lindstrom, a native of Sweden, was en route from Florida to New York state, when he was waylaid and fatally beaten about the head with a blunt instrument.

Larkin and Halm were captured in Statesboro after they had been seen at a Millen, Ga., coin laundry where two boxes of bloody clothing and blankets were found in trash cans. Officers said the two accused men were driving Lindstrom's car.

After their arrest, investigators found Lindstrom's body, brutally beaten, in a clump of weeds beside a dirt road about four miles west of Statesboro.

Officers said that when the body was found, Lindstrom's billfold with a "considerable amount" of cash was found nearby.

A medical examiner established the time of death at about 9:30 p. m., on Sept. 17, only a short time before the body was found beside a rural road.

The body was subsequently identified by the victim's son, Frank Lindstrom Jr., of Red Hook, who flew to Statesboro to claim his father's body.

Georgia Holds Mich. Men In Slaying of Area Resident

Charged with murder in the slaying of Frank Lindstrom, 77-year-old retired merchant seaman of the Dutchess County Community of Red Hook on Tuesday, two Michigan men have been ordered held for trial in Superior Court in Statesboro, Ga.

A Bulloch County, Ga., grand jury ordered Daniel Paul Larkin and Mark Alan Halm, both of Saginaw, Mich., held without bond.

Lindstrom, a native of Sweden, was en route from Florida to New York state, when he was waylaid and fatally beaten about the head with a blunt instrument.

Larkin and Halm were captured in Statesboro after they had been seen at a Millen, Ga., coin laundry where two boxes of bloody clothing and blankets were found in trash cans. Officers said the two accused men were driving Lindstrom's car.

After their arrest, investigators found Lindstrom's body, brutally beaten, in a clump of weeds beside a dirt road about four miles west of Statesboro.

Officers said that when the body was found, Lindstrom's billfold with a "considerable amount" of cash was found nearby.

A medical examiner established the time of death at about 9:30 p. m., on Sept. 17, only a short time before the body was found beside a rural road.

The body was subsequently identified by the victim's son, Frank Lindstrom Jr., of Red Hook, who flew to Statesboro to claim his father's body.

Innocent Plea To Violations

Arrested on a warrant Thursday on a charge of failure to appear in City court to face four traffic violations, Allen Mannello, 21, of Spring Street, formerly of Colonial Gardens, entered pleas of innocent and the case was adjourned until Sept. 27. Joseph Saccoman appeared as attorney for Mannello.

The violations, police said, were booked on July 19, when Mannello was charged with speeding, turning without a signal, passing a flashing red light and passing a stop sign. Mannello also is facing a charge of criminal negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle resulting in the deaths of two Kingston young women, who lost their lives in a spectacular accident on River Road in Port Ewen on Sept. 6. Mannello and a 19-year-old Port Ewen youth were injured in the mishap. The case is scheduled in a justice's court on Sept. 26.

Charge White House Promoting Anti-Semitism on Fortas Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—A leader in the fight to block Abe Fortas' nomination as chief justice says the White House is trying to make it seem as though opposition is based on anti-Semitism.

"The White House, indirectly and directly, is trying to stir this up and make it a big issue, even though there is no basis for it," Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., told newsmen Friday.

"I think it's emanating right from the White House," he said. "It's flopped and backfired on them, but they are still trying."

There was no immediate comment from the White House which Griffin has accused in the past of bringing extraordinary pressure to bear on Fortas' behalf.

Defense From Hart

As Griffin got in some final licks against the nomination before debate starts next week, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., put out a speech defending Fortas, who would become the first Jewish chief justice if confirmed.

Hart, who did not deliver the speech before the Senate adjourned, said examination of Fortas' record in Supreme Court obscenity decisions "clearly refutes the charge he favors smut."

Meeting with newsmen in his office, Griffin said opposition forces now have about 45 votes against invoking the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule—far more than enough to keep a filibuster going.

Dutchess Accident Kills 2

He said he didn't think the nomination would ever come to a vote.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, after unprecedented hearings during which a chief justice nominee was questioned by a committee for the first time ever, approved Fortas' nomination Tuesday.

President Johnson nominated Fortas June 26 to succeed Earl Warren, who informed Johnson he wanted to retire. The President made the retirement contingent on Senate confirmation of a successor, a move denounced by opponents as political.

Johnson nominated Federal Judge Homer Thornberry of Texas to fill the vacancy that elevation of Fortas, an associate justice since 1965, would create.

Shelved Nomination

The committee has shelved the Thornberry nomination until action is completed on Fortas.

Both Fortas and Thornberry are old Johnson friends.

Opponents are basing their fight against Fortas on charges that Johnson is guilty of cronyism, that he has no right to make such an important nomination in the waning days of his tenure, that Fortas acted improperly in continuing to advise the President while on the high court and that his siding with the majority in overturning obscenity cases has contributed to an increase in pornography.

After their arrest, investigators found Lindstrom's body, brutally beaten, in a clump of weeds beside a dirt road about four miles west of Statesboro.

Viet Won't End Trouble

The segment of Americans who never could accept Vietnam as worth the vast price the U.S. has paid already, and is still paying, will find support for their views in a report just issued on the 14th anniversary of SEATO. This is the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, formed in 1954 and under which the United States is committed to go to the aid of free nations in that area if threatened by aggression.

SEATO's Secretary General Jesus M Vargas of the Philippines has issued an annual report that is gloomy, even foreboding. Aside from Vietnam, he reports Communist insurgency and terrorism have intensified in five nations in the treaty area during the past year. He mentions Thailand, Laos, Cambodia, Burma and, to a somewhat lesser degree, Malaysia. Ambushes are on the rise in Thailand; Hanoi and Pathet Lao forces have scored victories in Laos; subversion is rampant in Cambodia; Peking is fomenting unrest in Burma and Peking is behind the insurgency in two areas of Malaysia.

The implication by the Johnson Administration was that once we taught the world, by our Vietnam intervention, the lesson that aggression cannot be tolerated, all would be peaceful in Southeast Asia and our problems over and done with. This is patent nonsense, as the SEATO report shows. Aggression has reddened the pages of history for centuries, and the idea that the blood of young Americans will end aggression is senseless. Those opposed to the U.S. involvement in Vietnam have long asked, "After Vietnam, where?" General Vargas has given five possible answers.

The United States, through SEATO and other agreements, has pledged to go to the aid of more than 40 nations in the event of attack. This over-commitment is so obvious, especially in the light of three long years of war against a splintered nation that is hardly a first-rate power, that a reappraisal of U.S. foreign policy is a necessity.

Douglas Halts Reserves

Chief Justice Earl Warren had said no to the request of 113 reserve soldiers from the Cleveland area to issue a stay of their call-up for active duty in Vietnam. So had Justice Hugo L. Black. Then their lawyer located Justice William O. Douglas at his vacation home in Goose Prairie, Wash. He complied with their request.

As a result, all nine members of the Supreme Court, after the court meets Oct. 7, will consider this initial attack on the 1966 law that gave President Johnson authority to call up reservists without a declaration of war or national emergency.

The court could decide not to consider the question, in which case Justice Douglas' stay would end immediately and the men would continue to Vietnam; or, if the court decides there is a constitutional question involved that they would consider, then the stay would become indefinite and the men would await their decision.

More than 38,000 reservists were put on active duty in the Vietnam call-up last May. Up to now, the high court has beaten back efforts to challenge the legality of United States participation in the war. Justice Douglas and Justice Potter Stewart have stood apart, calling on their colleagues to come to grips with the question. The matter may be settled now in the way the court settles this appeal.

"Stop the World, We Want to Get Off!"

Henry J. Taylor Says The Taxpaying Peasants

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Heaven help us, here we go again—we taxpaying peasants—hit by a Matterhorn of re-election costs piled on us.

Aren't we suffering peasants entitled to blow the whistle on this? Hey, that's our money!

Quick-like, tick-tack, all at once the Interior Department and other agencies are pouring out public works dollars like chuck-wagon cooks shouting, "Come and get it" to cowboys on the plains.

The sudden projects—needed or not, reviewed or not, Vietnam War or not—are being dumped into politically worrisome areas at approximately the speed of light.

The Post Office Department, following its own red ink may not have enough money to deliver our mail, but Postmaster General W. Marvin Watson, is nevertheless suddenly announcing a whole list of new construction projects as free and easy as waving a candy cane.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development, in turn, has suddenly approved 33 new "model cities"—blurted out the tidings in chosen places so fast that most local HUD officials were not even filled in.

Incidentally, the bureaucratic flying around can of itself be costly—including the "official" dedications. Our used-car buying public might be interested to know that some of the jets we taxpayers supply the Washington windbag boys cost as much as 300 Rolls-Royce limousines and $2,850 an hour to operate. Get on up in the government, folks, and live high off the hog.

So is the government publicity expensive—for us. The General Accounting Office has identified 6,858 Federal employees kept busy part or full time arranging Washington's fruit on the cart with the best side forward, the wormy things to the rear. They're spending, says the GAO, $425 million this year for public relations, handouts, news, etc.

That represents a lot of publicity in any election year—and we pay every penny of it.

Simultaneously with the pitch in the cities, and not to be outdone among the farmers, Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman has been jetting through the farm states breathlessly announcing that Washington has now raised the price of milk.

This puts consumer watchdog Betty Furness over an A-frame. She announces, "We are keeping food prices down." (Food prices—now average 6.5 per cent higher than last year.) It also confirms the wisdom of Mr. Freeman's correctly quoted confidential advice to his party's candidates on July 12, 1966: "Slip, slide and duck any questions about higher consumer prices."

Along with the horrendous legends and medieval myths that constitute what is called the Freeman farm program there is one Department of Agriculture employee for every 63 farmers. At Freeman's rate of increase there would be one bureaucrat in the department for every farmer by 1990.

Mum's the word, but the Pentagon alone in the Defense Department houses a new record 26,000 workers. The Internal Revenue Service now has 70,000 employees and 900 branch offices. And as for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, in some cities approximately 50 per cent of the Federal anti-poverty money goes to pay salaries of people employed in the programs. Chicago is one example.

In fact, although the Washington windbag boys would as soon eat an Eskimo's boots as to admit it, one in every eight workers in our nation is now on the public payroll. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz got his ears slapped down by the powers-that-be when he said so.

One of the bellwethers in all this is Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who at the moment is passing the private inside word to stalwarts in critical November areas that the White House will soon fill 17 court vacancies. Internally and externally, Mr. Clark has turned the Department of Justice into a political carnival. He now has a record-breaking 1,900 lawyers and 30,000 other employees on the public payroll.

Moreover, does the public know how the windbag boys beat the gun this June in a scandalous secret bamboozle?

The July 1 tax increase (10 billion) called for a roll-back of Federal employees.

That's what the Washington handout said. But the boys quietly, oh, so quietly, packed the payroll with an additional 95,350 Federal employees in June alone, smack on the eve of the rollback law.

This added annual cost to suffering taxpaying peasants for these potential voters is $750 million.

HHH Appeals to Sulking McCarthyites for Support

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

BUFFALO, N.Y. (NEA)—Listening for once to really warming cheers from Democratic party faithful, Vice President Humphrey felt the contagion. But he still found it necessary to talk beyond them to the McCarthyite dissidents who are denying him full party support across the country.

"Together we can win, but separate we lose," he said.

It was one of the most candid confessions of urgent difficulty ever heard from a presidential nominee this early in a campaign.

Still talking to the dissidents, he cast the problem of the party's disunity in another light:

"We can't unite the nation if we can't unite the vehicle (the Democratic party) which wants to help the nation."

New York leaders like John Burns and John English continue to warn privately that Humphrey's fears are well-grounded. Many, many supporters of Sen. Eugene McCarthy simply have not come out of their sulking tents.

National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien showed his deepened concern for the problem when he came close to converting a nationally televised panel show into a platform for an impassioned plea to the disaffected to return to the fold.

Underscoring the general fright was word from Minneapolis that backers of McCarthy, of Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, and in some cases of the late Robert F. Kennedy plan to meet in larger session there on Oct. 5-6 to plan a general strategy for taking over the party's leadership for the election battles of 1972.

It is without precedent for any substantial elements of a major party to begin planning openly for the next election even before that party has finished its struggles in the current election.

Some Democratic figures are reading this development as proof those dissidents not only expect Humphrey to lose, but want him to lose and lose big so they move easily seize upon the shattered remnants of the party.

The unreconstructed McCarthyites obviously are resisting loyalty appeals and ignoring argument that a massive presidential defeat in 1968 might cast the party into the abyss for many years to come. They can cite the quick 1966 rebound of the Republicans from the Goldwater cataclysm of 1964.

The McCarthyite strategists do to gather soon in Minneapolis may devise a game plan that could indeed give them Democratic party control if Humphrey loses big. But they might wake up in 1971 to learn they were presiding over an empty shell.

If, as it now seems likely, the GOP in 1968 wins the Illinois governorship and several other new ones as well, they could hold roughly two-thirds of the nation's governorships in 1969. On that compelling tide, they would be well-placed to pick off the Democratically-held New Jersey governorship next year.

The Republicans then would hold the governor's chairs in nine of the country's 10 most populous states—with only Texas holding out. True, in California, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts and Florida, these seats of power would be on the block again in 1970. But a successful Nixon showing in office would assure the GOP a large chance to hold most of these.

Drew Pearson Says Anti-Semitism on Rise Over Eastern Europe

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson, traveling through Iron curtain countries, today reports on the new upsurge of anti-Semitism.)

WARSAW — One tragic development accompanying the Czech crisis has been the increase of anti-Semitism in Eastern Europe. Some of it had been evident in Soviet Russia before, and some of it cropped up last May in Poland, a country where more than two million Jews lost their lives during the days of Hitler.

More recently, anti-Semitism appears to be on the increase in Poland, and has also been a factor in the purges of Czechoslovakia. Chief objects of the Czech purge have been Frantisek Kriegel, president of the National Front, and Otto Sik, deputy prime minister.

Kriegel is a doctor of medicine who fought against Franco in the Spanish Civil War in the 1930s, and later with Mao Tse-tung in China. He was among those taken to Moscow handcuffed by the Russians, along with Alexander Dubcek, and kept in prison until President Ludvik Svoboda demanded their release. Czech refugees in Vienna told me that Svoboda had actually threatened to commit suicide unless the four Czech leaders were released. His views prevailed.

But, at the end of the talks, the Soviet leaders wanted to keep Kriegel in Moscow to be tried. President Svoboda then refused to go back to Prague unless Kriegel accompanied him. Kriegel is now reported back in Prague, retired to private life and returning to the practice of medicine.

There was very little anti-Semitism in Czechoslovakia in the past, but it has been latent in Poland. It took a new turn when, on May 1, premier Gomulka, whose wife is Jewish, delivered a severe criticism of Israel.

"We condemn the aggressive and adventurous policy of Israel," he said. "Our stand has given rise to rabid and furious attacks on Poland on the part of international Zionism. The slanderous, ignoble campaign by world Zionism vilifying our country is one of the forms of the struggle of imperialism against socialism and has in view the undermining of the prestige and good name of Peoples' Poland in the world."

"Western Zionist centers—which did not even raise their fingers when genocidal Hitlerism was busy exterminating the Jews in subjugated Poland and busy punishing with death those Poles who hid the Jews or gave them assistance—accuse us today of anti-Semitism."

"Official circles in the United States also put their fingers in the dirty, anti-Polish Zionist campaign. The U. S. has several million citizens of Polish origin. Poland has about 25,000 to 30,000 citizens of Jewish origin. We propose that the governing circles in the U. S., which accuse Poland of anti-Semitism, examine to see if U. S. citizens of Polish origin have had and have the same possibilities from which benefit Polish citizens of Jewish extraction in Poland."

Gomulka also divided Polish Jews into those loyal to Poland and those who had difficulty making up their minds about loyalty between Zionism and Poland. He advised the latter to go to Israel.

Exit to Israel
Since that time Poland's Jewish population is reported to have decreased from about 30,000 to about 23,000, though some Jewish Zionists and doctors are reported to have been refused visas. Their skills are needed in Poland.

A number of Jews have also been dropped from government and university circles, including:

Dr. Wilhelm Billig, the government's Plenipotentiary for the use of Atomic Energy and candidate members of the trial Committee since 1964;

Adam Schaff, director of the Institute of Philosophy and Sociology of the Polish Academy of Sciences—resigned;

Jerzy Toeplitz, rector of the State Academy of Drama and Film in Lodz, the school which set the pace for the renaissance of Polish film makers after 1956;

Stanislaw Neumark, cabinet director of the Ministry of Culture; his son was involved in the student demonstrations at Warsaw University last March;

Adam Conrad-Meller, director of Department II (Communist Asia) in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs;

Marian Wajda, director of the administrative department at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; and Josef Kutin, Vice Minister of Foreign Trade.

When I asked Acting Foreign Minister Jozef Winiewicz about this purge, he replied that many Jews had been dropped from their jobs, but added: "There has been a general shake-up of government positions and a lot of others have been fired too. You don't hear anything about them."

"But if a Jew is fired it's immediately claimed that it's his religion."

"Last July the Plenum of the party held a meeting in which there was speech after speech attacking anti-Semitism. Yet there was not one word in your newspapers about this. We don't have the same publicity agents that you do. I sometimes think that you Americans rely too much on press conferences and TV statements to govern not only your political campaigns but everything else. We are not Madison Avenue experts."

"But I can assure you that the Poles have suffered with the Jews and they with us and that we would be the last people in the world to oppress the Jewish people. Our grievance is against Israel, not against Jews."

Confrontation Strategists: Dellinger, Rubin, Hayden

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Because there's talk they'll attempt a new "confrontation" on election day, now is a good time to jot down a few notes about three top strategists of the Chicago youth riots.

DAVID DELLINGER, 53, was born at Wakefield, Mass. In October, 1940, he refused to register for the draft. He balked even at registering himself as a conscientious objector.

As a result, Dellinger was indicted by a New York grand jury. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one year and a day in prison.

On being released, Dellinger registered for military service but said he was a conscientious objector. In June, 1945, he was charged with failure to report for a physical examination. He again pleaded guilty and was sentenced in August, 1943, at Newark, N.J., to two years in prison.

Little was heard of Dellinger for the next two decades.

It is known that he was editor of Liberation magazine, published by the Fellowship of Reconciliation and that in April, 1964, he traveled to Cuba legally as a news representative. Since then he has spoken out for the Castro regime at meetings sponsored by the Fair Play for Cuba Committee.

As chairman of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, Dellinger was a major organizer of the October, 1967, march on the Pentagon.

JERRY CLYDE RUBIN, 30, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, attended Oberlin College for one year and the University of Cincinnati five years, ending up with a B.S. degree in American history in 1962. He later did graduate work in sociology. He traveled to Cuba illegally in 1964.

Rubin has been a full-time paid employee of the Vietnam Day Committee. At a rally sponsored by that committee in 1965, he favored "massive civil disobedience" and was quoted as saying, "We must consider treason—deliberate sabotage of the war machine."

Rubin was arrested three times in 1965-66, once in San Francisco in connection with a demonstration against Gen. Maxwell Taylor, once in Washington, D.C. for causing a disturbance during a session of the House Committee on Un-American Activities and once for demonstrating on the University of California campus.

In 1966, he helped manage the congressional campaign of Robert Scheer, foreign editor of Ramparts magazine. In 1967, he was an unsuccessful candidate for mayor of Berkeley, Calif., on a platform opposing war and "American imperialism" and espousing black power and legalization of marijuana.

As a coordinator of the Oct. 21, 1967, march on the Pentagon, Rubin was quoted as saying, "The peace movement is no longer one of merely protest and demonstration. We are now in the business of wholesale and widespread resistance and dislocation of the American society. We, the American people, are going to have to close down then Pentagon, the universities, the banks . . ."

On June 13, 1968, Rubin was arrested by the New York City police on a charge of possessing marijuana. He is, at present, a leader of the Youth International Party (Yippies).

THOMAS HAYDEN, 28, was a founder of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), was principal author of the 1962 Port Huron Statement, which is the basis of SDS ideology, and was an SDS national president. He is now one of the society's most prominent spokesmen.

In December-January, 1965-66, Hayden went to North Vietnam illegally with Communist Party USA theoretician Herbert Aptheker and with Staughton Lynd.

In September, 1967, Hayden and 40 other Americans went to Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, for a one-week conference with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong representatives. From there he traveled to Cambodia as representative of an American peace committee. In November, 1967, the Viet Cong released three U.S. prisoners of war in his custody. In January, 1968, he flew to Cuba as an associate editor of Liberation magazine.

Hayden was one of the instigators of the demonstrations against Dow Chemical Co. recruiters at Rutgers University. He is quoted as having said, "The issue is not that Dow Chemical has free speech but rather that they are war criminals . . . I think that in this case civil disobedience is justified."

Meany—Reuther Labor War

By WILLIAM J. EATON
Chicago Daily News Service

NEW YORK — George Meany is escalating his labor war with Walter P. Reuther.

The AFL-CIO president declared AFL-CIO hostility toward the Reuther-led Alliance for Labor Action (ALA) and warned that any unions affiliated with the federation would risk ouster if they joined with Reuther in the new labor group.

The pronouncement came as the AFL-CIO general board prepared to endorse Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey for president. A unanimous vote from heads of the 130 unions in the federation was expected.

Meany also got approval from the AFL-CIO executive council for a resolution that threatened withdrawal of the American Federation from the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions (ICFTU) unless Reuther is dropped as a vice president of the local body.

The resolution said Reuther's union was trying to "split the labor union." The UAW pulled out of the AFL-CIO earlier this year amid charges that Meany was the dictator of a status-quo outfit.

Reuther has joined forces with the Independent Teamster's Union to form the ALA, which includes more than 3,000,000 members.

The International Chemical Workers Union has indicated it will join the ALA. Learning of this, Meany said the Chemical Union would risk suspension and possible ouster from the AFL-CIO if it af-iliated with what Meany termed the rival organization.

There was strong resentment among Meany's supporters at the UAW's move to challenge the bargaining rights of the International Assn. of Machinists at the McDonnell Aircraft plant in St. Louis.

Some AFL-CIO officials viewed the Reuther raid as a declaration of inter-union warfare and were ready to retaliate.

At first, Meany's office viewed the formation of the ALA as a relatively harmless grouping of outcast unions. But the council meeting here apparently has stiffened the federation's attitude toward the Reuther-Teamster's combination.

Viet Won't End Trouble

The segment of Americans who never could accept Vietnam as worth the vast price the U.S. has paid already, and is still paying, will find support for their views in a report just issued on the 14th anniversary of SEATO. This is the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, formed in 1954 and under which the United States is committed to go to the aid of free nations in that area if threatened by aggression.

SEATO's Secretary General Jesus M Vargas of the Philippines has issued an annual report that is gloomy, even foreboding. Aside from Vietnam, he reports Communist insurgency and terrorism have intensified in five nations in the treaty area during the past year. He mentions Thailand, Laos, Cambodia, Burma and, to a somewhat lesser degree, Malaysia. Ambushes are on the rise in Thailand; Hanoi and Pathet Lao forces have scored victories in Laos; subversion is rampant in Cambodia; Peking is fomenting unrest in Burma and Peking is behind the insurgency in two areas of Malaysia.

The implication by the Johnson Administration was that once we taught the world, by our Vietnam intervention, the lesson that aggression cannot be tolerated, all would be peaceful in Southeast Asia and our problems over and done with. This is patent nonsense, as the SEATO report shows. Aggression has reddened the pages of history for centuries, and the idea that the blood of young Americans will end aggression is senseless. Those opposed to the U.S. involvement in Vietnam have long asked, "After Vietnam, where?" General Vargas has given five possible answers.

The United States, through SEATO and other agreements, has pledged to go to the aid of more than 40 nations in the event of attack. This over-commitment is so obvious, especially in the light of three long years of war against a splintered nation that is hardly a first-rate power, that a reappraisal of U.S. foreign policy is a necessity.

Douglas Halts Reserves

Chief Justice Earl Warren had said no to the request of 113 reserve soldiers from the Cleveland area to issue a stay of their call-up for active duty in Vietnam. So had Justice Hugo L. Black. Then their lawyer located Justice William O. Douglas at his vacation home in Goose Prairie, Wash. He complied with their request.

As a result, all nine members of the Supreme Court, after the court meets Oct. 7, will consider this initial attack on the 1966 law that gave President Johnson authority to call up reservists without a declaration of war or national emergency.

The court could decide not to consider the question, in which case Justice Douglas' stay would end immediately and the men would continue to Vietnam; or, if the court decides there is a constitutional question involved that they would consider, then the stay would become indefinite and the men would await their decision.

More than 38,000 reservists were put on active duty in the Vietnam call-up last May. Up to now, the high court has beaten back efforts to challenge the legality of United States participation in the war. Justice Douglas and Justice Potter Stewart have stood apart, calling on their colleagues to come to grips with the question. The matter may be settled now in the way the court settles this appeal.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Will you stop calling me 'soul brother' just because I happen to be a W.A.S.P.?"

"Stop the World, We Want to Get Off!"

Henry J. Taylor Says The Taxpaying Peasants

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Heaven help us, here we go again—we taxpaying peasants—hit by a Matterhorn of re-election costs piled on us.

Aren't we suffering peasants entitled to blow the whistle on this? Hey, that's our money!

Quick-like, tick-tack, all at once the Interior Department and other agencies are pouring out public works dollars like chuck-wagon cooks shouting, "Come and get it!" to cowboys on the plains.

The sudden projects—needed or not, reviewed or not, Vietnam War or not—are being dumped into politically worrisome areas at approximately the speed of light.

The Post Office Department, following its own red ink may not have enough money to deliver our mail, but Postmaster General W. Marvin Watson, is nevertheless suddenly announcing a whole list of new construction projects as free and easy as waving a candy cane.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development, in turn, has suddenly approved 33 new "model cities"—blurring out the tidings in chosen places so fast that most local HUD officials were not even filled in.

Incidentally, the bureaucratic flying around can of itself be costly—including the "official" dedications. Our used-car buying public might be interested to know that some of the jets we taxpayers supply the Washington windbag boys cost as much as 300 Rolls-Royce limousines and $2,850 an hour to operate. Get on up in the government, folks, and live high off the hog.

So is the government publicity expensive—for us. The General Accounting Office has identified 6,858 Federal employees kept busy part or full time arranging Washington's fruit on the cart with the best side forward, the wormy things to the rear. They're spending, says the GAO, $425 million this year for public relations, handouts, news, etc.

That represents a lot of publicity in any election year—and we pay every penny of it.

Simultaneously with the pitch in the cities, and not to be outdone among the farmers, Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman has been jetting through the farm states breathlessly announcing that Washington has now raised the price of milk.

This puts consumer watchdog Betty Furness over an A-frame. She announces, "We are keeping food prices down." (Food prices now average 6.5 per cent higher than last year.) It also confirms the wisdom of Mr. Freeman's correctly quoted confidential advice to his party's candidates on July 12, 1966: "Slip, slide and duck any questions about higher consumer prices."

Along with the horrendous legends and medieval myths that constitute what is called the Freeman farm program there is one Department of Agriculture employee for every 63 farmers. At Freeman's rate of increase there would be one bureaucrat in the department for every farmer by 1990.

Mum's the word, but the Pentagon alone in the Defense Department houses a new record 26,000 workers. The Internal Revenue Service now has 70,000 employees and 900 branch offices. And as for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, in some cities approximately 50 per cent of the Federal anti-poverty money goes to pay salaries of people employed in the programs. Chicago is one example.

In fact, although the Washington windbag boys would as soon eat an Eskimo's boots as to admit it, in every eight workers in our nation is now on the public payroll. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz got his ears slapped down by the powers-that-be when he said so.

One of the bellwethers in all this is Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who at the moment is passing the private inside word to stalwarts in critical November areas that the White House will soon fill 17 court vacancies. Internally and externally, Mr. Clark has turned the Department of Justice into a political carnival. He now has a record-breaking 1,900 lawyers and 30,000 other employees on the public payroll.

Moreover, does the public know how the windbag boys beat the gun this June in a scandalous secret bumbazooze? The July 1 tax increase (10 billion) called for a roll-back of Federal employees. That's what the Washington handout said. But the boys quietly, oh, so quietly, packed the payroll with an additional 95,350 Federal employees in June alone, smack on the eve of the rollback law.

This added annual cost to suffering taxpaying peasants for these potential voters is $750 million.

On June 13, 1968, Rubin was arrested by the New York City police on a charge of possessing marijuana. He is, at present, a leader of the Youth International Party (Yippies).

THOMAS HAYDEN, 28, was a founder of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), was principal author of the 1962 Port Huron Statement, which is the basis of SDS ideology, and was an SDS national president. He is now one of the society's most prominent spokesmen.

In December-January, 1965-66, Hayden went to North Vietnam illegally with Communist Party USA theoretician Herbert Aptheker and with Staughton Lynd.

In September, 1967, Hayden and 40 other Americans went to Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, for a one-week conference with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong representatives. From there he traveled to Cambodia as representative of an American peace committee. In November, 1967, the Viet Cong released three U.S. prisoners of war in his custody. In January, 1968, he flew to Cuba as an associate editor of Liberation magazine.

Hayden was one of the instigators of the demonstrations against Dow Chemical Co. recruiters at Rutgers University. He is quoted as having said, "The issue is not that Dow Chemical has free speech but rather that they are war criminals. . . . I think that in this case civil disobedience is justified."

Meany—Reuther Labor War

By WILLIAM J. EATON

Chicago Daily News Service

NEW YORK—George Meany is escalating his labor war with Walter P. Reuther.

The AFL-CIO president declared AFL-CIO hostility toward the Reuther-led Alliance for Labor Action (ALA) and warned that any unions affiliated with the federation would risk ouster if they joined with Reuther in the new labor group.

The pronouncement came as the AFL-CIO general board prepared to endorse Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey for president. A unanimous vote from heads of the 130 unions in the federation was expected.

Meany also got approval from the AFL-CIO executive council for a resolution that threatened withdrawal of the American Federation from the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions (ICFTU) unless Reuther is dropped as a vice president of the local body.

The resolution said Reuther's union was trying to "split the labor union." The UAW pulled out of the AFL-CIO earlier this year amid charges that Meany was the dictator of a status-quo outfit.

Reuther has joined forces with the Independent Teamster's Union to form the ALA, which includes more than 3,000,000 members.

The International Chemical Workers Union has indicated it will join the ALA. Learning of this, Meany said the Chemical Union would risk suspension and possible ouster from the AFL-CIO if it af-iliated with what Meany termed the rival organization.

There was strong resentment among Meany's supporters at the UAW's move to challenge the bargaining rights of the International Assn. of Machinists at the McDonnell Aircraft plant in St. Louis.

Some AFL-CIO officials viewed the Reuther raid as a declaration of inter-union warfare and were ready to retaliate.

At first, Meany's office viewed the formation of the ALA as a relatively harmless grouping of outcast unions. But the council meeting here apparently has stiffened the federation's attitude toward the Reuther Teamster's combination.

Crime, Delinquency Concern of Y-Youth

Teenagers and even children in pre-teen years are being tempted into involvement in thefts, vandalism, and crimes of more serious consequence.

School dropouts with no jobs, no training for jobs in the future and no stable future in sight cause concern for the community.

The big question is what can citizens do to reverse the trend toward crime and interest the restless student in a type of education that will give him satisfaction and hope for the future.

A panel of young people will consider these problems as part of an all day program on crime and delinquency to be held at the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, Kingston, Wednesday. The youth discussion will serve as opener for the session which is for all interested members of the community. The program will start with coffee and registration at 9:30 a.m.

Participating on the panel will be Rosie del Rio, Elizabeth Waters, Bambi Jensen, Sidney Lemon and Thomas Phillips with Lawrence Siewers, director of the Children's Home, as moderator.

The panelists are willing to give up their morning classes in an attempt to communicate with adults interested in these problems.

Their message is important not only for the present but for the future as well. They will soon be adults in the society which is being built now. Making a better world will take time.

Adults and young people not having to return to classes who wish to stay for the remaining program sessions may bring their lunches. The afternoon panel starting 1:30 p.m. will be made up of prison and correction authorities. A further adult-youth dialogue is scheduled for 4 p.m.

Evening speaker will be Richard J. Bartlett, chairman of the New York State Crime Control Council.

Dinner reservations for those wishing to make a full day of it must be made at the YWCA office by Tuesday noon.

The program on crime and delinquency is just one of the many YWCA's programs for youth of the community. Another service open to teenagers and adults is a five week first aid course being offered in cooperation with the Ulster County Chapter, American Red Cross.

The class, which starts 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the YW, will be limited to 15 members, so those interested are advised to call YWCA offices immediately for reservations. There will be a nominal charge for the first aid handbook which serves as text for the course. William Odencal will be the instructor.

Area Young People Make Academic, Social News

School schedules have resumed and at this point the fall routine is pretty well established.

With the return to classes, many area young people are making the news with academic and extracurricular achievements.

Down in Highland, Pamela Mattice has been elected president of the Highlander Band while Steven Schunk heads the school's Gold Band. Other Highlander officers are Rozanne Woolsey, vice president, and Garth Warend, secretary-treasurer.

The New Paltz High School branch of the National Honor Society has named officers for the coming year. Kathleen Kenyon heads the slate with Kenneth Silverman, vice president; Julia Moerbeek, secretary and Florence Babb, treasurer. Events for the 1968-69 school year were discussed at the first meeting of the group.

Other Paltzers in the news include Julie Kopsic, Marion

Ann McLeod and Richard Schneider. These lucky students participated in a four-week Talented Arts Program this summer. Classes under the direction of David Fineberg were held in the authentic arty atmosphere of a studio barn. Students learned how to stretch canvas, prime linen, frame finished paintings and many other art related techniques. The course culminated with an art show at the Bridge Gallery in Poughkeepsie.

Two Ulster County young people are serving as Eastern Coordinators of the Upstate Council of Youth for Soviet Jewry. They are Bracha King of Kingston and Rhonda Casper of Ellenville. The third coordinator is Michael Friedson of Saratoga Springs. Together they will direct all activities of the Upstate Council in this area of the state. The council is a student movement working to inform the public of the plight of Soviet Jewry.

A Kingston youth, Karl V.

Legregni, is one of 20 national winners in the sixth annual National Association of Tobacco Distributors college scholarship program. The award was made on the basis of competitive essays on the weighty question What Is This Nation's Stake in Southeast Asia? Legregni, a junior at Union College, Schenectady, competed for the second year in the contest which is open to sons and daughters of the association's member-wholesalers. His father, Vincent F. Legregni, is associated with Terri's Grocery at 121 Wall Street, this city.

Two Rifton sisters have entered the Roosevelt Hospital School of Nursing, New York City, as members of the Class of 1970. They are Margot and Gisela Maria Wegner, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Wegner of Woodcrest Street. Margot is a Kingston High School graduate and Gisela is a graduate of Rondout Valley High School. Both graduated from the Grasslands School of Practical Nursing, Valhalla.

Onteora Students Undergo Testing

Complete testing and orientation activities occupied junior and senior high school students at Onteora during the first week.

Tests of mental ability and scholastic ability were administered to the seventh graders, who also met with various administrative personnel as well as the chairmen of the various departments who discussed all aspects of the seventh grade program. Three eighth graders took the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills which provide an indicator of their academic skill level as they begin the school year. Ninth graders took a battery of aptitude tests which can be very useful in career exploration. Grades 10 and 11 took a battery of tests, the Iowa Tests of Educational Development, which will provide a measure of academic achievement in major skill areas.

Senior Speakers

Members of the senior class were given the opportunity to hear from several visiting groups during the two mornings, which will help them as they finalize their post-high school plans. One group composed of Roderic Walsh of the N. Y. S. Employment Service, Frank Greco and Mrs. Ethel Jacobson of the Ulster County Civil Service, Peter Rakov of Rotron Manufacturing personnel office, Ted Childs and William Schenck of the IBM personnel office and John Conway, assistant personnel manager for Grand Union, responded to questions posed to them by members of the senior class concerning the employment outlook and the various aspects of getting and holding a job.

Various types of colleges were represented on a panel composed of the following directors of admissions: McDonald F. Egendorf of the State University College at New Paltz, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Wire of Bennett College, Charles A. Schenck of Ulster County Community College and Ralph O. Clarkson of Hartwick College. Questions concerning admissions, policies, financial aids and campus life were posed to the above panel.

Members of the senior class, Tom Reilly and Keith Jenkins, represented the class on both the above panel discussions.

Military Representative

The military obligation was fully explained to the senior boys by Sgt. Edward Keene, U.S. Army Recruiter. Following this, the senior boys met with the following representatives of the recruiting stations to hear each branch describe what it can offer to a young man: Petty Officer 1st class William Quinn, U.S. Navy; Sgt. Oliver Hickok, U.S. Marines; Sgt. Robert Gardner, U.S. Air Force, and Petty Officer 1st class William Johnson of the U.S. Coast Guard. During this period of time, Sgt. Helen Johnston of the Women's Army Corps discussed various aspects of how women may serve their country.

Jack Malloy, vice-president of the Kingston Trust Company, discussed the various ways of financing a college education during the first morning.

The final part of the senior orientation program consisted of a panel of Onteora Alumni who told the seniors of their impression of college life and also left them with advice based upon their experiences. Participating alumni included Steve Hoffman of Syracuse University, William DeSanna of the University of Denver, Terry Carle of Brown University, Miss Sharon Haner of Albany Business College and Bernd Ketter of the Rochester Institute of Technology.

28th Search for Science Talent Reaches Out to Nation's Seniors

A total of $67,500 in scholarships and awards are at stake as thousands of high school seniors across the nation are preparing to compete in the 28th annual Westinghouse Science Talent Search.

Edward G. Sherburne Jr., director of Science Service, the national organization that administers Science Talent Search through its Science Clubs of America, said rules and instructions for the competition now are being mailed to more than 60,000 principals and science teachers of secondary schools throughout the United States.

Name Honor Group

A panel of judges will select an honors group—approximately 10 per cent of the total number of entries. From the honors group, 40 finalists will be selected, all of whom will receive an expense-paid, five-day trip next spring to Washington, D.C., where the final competition is held each year. From the 40 finalists, 10 students will be chosen to receive the major scholarship prizes. Last year 23,471 students entered the competition.

In the 1967 Search, the number of Science Talent Search four-year scholarships was doubled from five to 10, and the overall scholarship fund was increased from $34,350 to $67,500. The top scholarship has been increased to $10,000 from its former $7,500. Other scholarships to be awarded are: two for second place of $8,000 each; three of $6,000 each; and four of $4,000 each. The 30 finalists who do not win scholarships will receive single-payment awards of $250 each.

Scholarships and awards for the young scientists and other financial aid that makes Science Talent Search possible are provided by the Westinghouse Educational Foundation, which is supported by Westinghouse Electric Corporation.

Explaining the general rules of the search, Sherburne said that contestants must take a two-hour science aptitude examination and write a report on an independent scientific research project which they have undertaken. Schools must submit scholastic records for each entrant along with teacher evaluations of the student's abilities.

The written aptitude examinations will be given to contestants at their local schools on or after December 1, and completed entries must reach Science Service headquarters in Washington, D.C., by midnight Dec. 27, 1968, in order to qualify for the competition.

Evaluate Entries

Presiding over the Search is a seven-man board of judges headed by Dr. Harold A. Edgerton, a Washington psychologist who supervises the selection techniques. After careful evaluation and inspection of entry materials, with particular emphasis on the research project reports, the judges select about the top ten per cent of all qualified entrants as the honors group, from which the 40 finalists are selected, and those who don't qualify for the final 40 are specially recommended for scholarships to leading colleges and universities.

Furthermore, unlike many other scholarship competitions, Science Talent Search has no rule prohibiting winners from accepting additional scholarships from other sources. And while designed primarily to discover and encourage science talent at an early age, the Search also served to focus public attention on the need for better science education.

College Boards Testing Dates Slated at KHS

College boards testing dates have been announced by the Kingston High School guidance department for the 1968-69 school year.

The all important tests for the college bound will be given on the following dates: SAT, only, Nov. 2; SAT and achievement test, Dec. 7, Jan. 11, March 1 and May 3.

According to Jacob A. Nolfo of the KHS guidance department, the additional testing date in early November was added by the College Entrance Examination Board because many college admissions officials felt it would simplify admissions and financial aid decisions.

Nolfo advised all seniors planning on college to take SAT by Dec. 7.

For a Good Cos'

All the controversy about "tokenism" at the start of this TV season could be a bitter joke to the first "token" of all, if that were his bag. For when Bill Cosby first appeared on "I Spy" in 1964, he was the only Negro appearing on any major television show. Today, during a period when beginning Negro entertainers have a rough time even making a living, Cos' (his favorite nickname) has won his rep in three fields, and is planning on conquering three more before he retires in a couple of years! He has accomplished this all while arousing surprisingly little antagonism or resentment. More importantly, he has not become antagonistic or resentful.

Cos' was born 31 years ago, and grew up with his two younger brothers in a Philadelphia housing project. His recollections of those childhood days, viewed with genuine humor, were to provide the first rung on the ladder to fame. He dropped out of high school for the gifted and kicked around for several years playing baseball and working odd jobs. Tiring of this, he enlisted in the Navy, and gained his high school diploma there. When he was discharged, the powerful 6-footer started college on a football scholarship, but he found that he preferred working as a bartender and off-the-cuff comic at a Philly coffeehouse to either sports or college. He dropped out again, and started touring the coffeehouse circuit as a comedian.

Cos' humor was (and is) universal. He dropped racial material after his first few gigs, and concentrated on perfecting the routines (many immortalized on his record albums) that would be equally hilarious to a Harlem preschooler or white Birmingham housewife. Drawing from the wealth of material in his own life, Cos' never had to rely on smut and sickness for his laughs. He made light of the problems we all face, and everyone was in on the jolies.

Flickerbox talent scouts spotted Cos' in the coffeehouses, and he got the "I Spy" role. Shortly thereafter he won two Emmies—the first, he feels, for being a good token, and the second, for being a good actor. During his years on "I Spy" Cos' worked hard to open new screen time for talented young actors and actresses of all races. Clarence Williams, appearing this season on "Mod Squad" is one of Bill Cosby's proteges.

Last year, Cos' launched his third career, as a singer. His ideal is Fats Waller, who, in the 'thirties excelled in delivering "serious" music of the day with a humorous interpretation. At present, the Cosby silverthroat is often not up to the standards set by his acting and comedy, but he has achieved mentionable success with two albums and two singles of his singing.

Cos' now owns a record company, Tetragrammaton, and he, Buce Campbell and Roy Silver have formed a production company which has a number of flicks planned. One, written by Cos', will be a comedy starring him and Clarence Williams.

He also keeps up a mind-boggling series of personal appearances and TV specials. He hopes, in three years, to be able to retire behind the scenes, and give acting lessons to talented kids. Waiting for him there is his beautiful wife of four years, Camille. He hopes to be able to see a lot more of her, and their two toddlers, Erika, 3, and Erinn, 2.

And somewhere, there, Fat Albert will be waiting . . .

The class, which starts 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the YW, will be limited to 15 members, so those interested are advised to call YWCA offices immediately for reservations. ## Area Young People Make Academic, Social News

School schedules have resumed and at this point the fall routine is pretty well established.

With the return to classes, many area young people are making the news with academic and extracurricular achievements.

Down in Highland, Pamela Mattice has been elected president of the Highlander Band while Steven Schunk heads the school's Gold Band. Other Highlander officers are Rozanne Woolsey, vice president, and Garth Warend, secretary-treasurer.

The New Paltz High School branch of the National Honor Society has named officers for the coming year. Kathleen Kenyon heads the slate with Kenneth Silverman, vice president; Julia Moerbeek, secretary and Florence Babb, treasurer. Events for the 1968-69 school year were discussed at the first meeting of the group.

Other Paltzers in the news include Julie Kopsic, Marion

Ann McLeod and Richard Schneider. These lucky students participated in a four-week Talented Arts Program this summer. Classes under the direction of David Fineberg were held in the authentic arty atmosphere of a studio barn. Students learned how to stretch canvas, prime linen, frame finished paintings and many other art related techniques. The course culminated with an art show at the Bridge Gallery in Poughkeepsie.

Two Ulster County young people are serving as Eastern Coordinators of the Upstate Council of Youth for Soviet Jewry. They are Bracha King of Kingston and Rhonda Casper of Ellenville. The third coordinator is Michael Friedman of Saratoga Springs. Together they will direct all activities of the Upstate Council in this area of the state. The council is a student movement working to inform the public of the plight of Soviet Jewry.

A Kingston youth, Karl V.

Legregni, is one of 20 national winners in the sixth annual National Association of Tobacco Distributors college scholarship program. The award was made on the basis of competitive essays on the weighty question What Is This Nation's Stake in Southeast Asia? Legregni, a junior at Union College, Schenectady, competed for the second year in the contest which is open to sons and daughters of the association's member-wholesalers. His father, Vincent F. Legregni, is associated with Terri's Grocery at 121 Wall Street, this city.

Two Rifton sisters have entered the Roosevelt Hospital School of Nursing, New York City, as members of the Class of 1970. They are Margot and Gisela Martha Wegner, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Wegner of Woodcrest Street. Margot is a Kingston High School graduate and Gisela is a graduate of Rondout Valley High School. Both graduated from the Grasslands School of Practical Nursing, Valhalla.

Onteora Students Undergo Testing

Complete testing and orientation activities occupied junior and senior high school students at Onteora during the first week.

Tests of mental ability and scholastic ability were administered to the seventh graders, who also met with various administrative personnel as well as the chairmen of the various departments who discussed all aspects of the seventh grade program. Three eighth graders took the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills which provide an indication of their academic skill level as they begin the school year. Ninth graders took a battery of aptitude tests which can be very useful in career exploration. Grades 10 and 11 took a battery of tests, the Iowa Tests of Educational Development, which will provide a measure of academic achievement in major skill areas.

Senior Speakers

Members of the senior class were given the opportunity to hear from several visiting groups during the two mornings, which will help them as they finalize their post-high school plans. One group composed of Roderic Walsh of the N. Y. S. Employment Service, Frank Greco and Mrs. Ethel Jacobson of the Ulster County Civil Service, Peter Rakov of Rotron Manufacturing personnel office, Ted Childs and William Schenck of the IBM personnel office and John Conway, assistant personnel manager for Grand Union, responded to questions posed to them by members of the senior class concerning the employment outlook and the various aspects of getting and holding a job.

Various types of colleges were represented on a panel composed of the following directors of admissions: McDonald F. Egdorf of the State University College at New Paltz, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Wire of Bennett College, Charles A. Schenck of Ulster County Community College and Ralph O. Clarkson of Hartwick College. Questions concerning admissions, policies, financial aids and campus life were posed to the above panel.

Members of the senior class, Tom Reilly and Keith Jenkins, represented the class on both the above panel discussions.

The questions to be used in U.S. Coast Guard. During this period of time, Sgt. Helen Johnston of the Women's Army Corps discussed various aspects of how women may serve their country.

Jack Malloy, vice-president of the Kingston Trust Company, discussed the various ways of financing a college education during the first morning.

The final part of the senior orientation program consisted of a panel of Onteora Alumni who told the seniors of their impression of college life and also left them with advice based upon their experiences. Participating alumni included Steve Hoffman of Syracuse University, William DeSanna of the University of Denver, Terry Carle of Brown University, Miss Sharon Haner of Albany Business College and Bernd Ketter of the Rochester Institute of Technology.

28th Search for Science Talent Reaches Out to Nation's Seniors

A total of $67,500 in scholarships and awards are at stake as thousands of high school seniors across the nation are preparing to compete in the 28th annual Westinghouse Science Talent Search.

Edward G. Sherburne Jr., director of Science Service, the national organization that administers Science Talent Search through its Science Clubs of America, said rules and instructions for the competition now are being mailed to more than 60,000 principals and science teachers of secondary public, private and denominational schools throughout the United States.

Name Honor Group
A panel of judges will select an honors group—approximately 10 per cent of the total number of entries. From the honors group, 40 finalists will be selected, all of whom will receive an expense-paid, five-day trip next spring to Washington, D.C., where the final competition is held each year. From the 40 finalists, 10 students will be chosen to receive the major scholarship prizes. Last year 23,471 students entered the competition.

In the 1967 Search, the number of Science Talent Search four-year scholarships was doubled from five to 10, and the overall scholarship fund was increased from $34,350 to $67,500. The top scholarship has been increased to $10,000 from its former $7,500. Other scholarships to be awarded are: two for second place of $8,000 each; three of $6,000 each; and four of $4,000 each. The 30 finalists who do not win scholarships will receive single-payment awards of $250 each.

Scholarships and awards for the young scientists and other financial aid that makes Science Talent Search possible are provided by the Westinghouse Educational Foundation, which is supported by Westinghouse Electric Corporation.

Explaining the general rules of the search, Sherburne said that contestants must take a two-hour science aptitude examination and write a report on an independent scientific research project which they have undertaken. Schools must submit scholastic records for each entrant along with teacher evaluations of the student's abilities.

The written aptitude examinations will be given to contestants at their local schools on or after December 1, and completed entries must reach Science Service headquarters in Washington, D.C., by midnight Dec. 27, 1968, in order to qualify for the competition.

Evaluate Entries

Presiding over the Search is a seven-man board of judges headed by Dr. Harold A. Edgerton, a Washington psychologist who supervises the selection techniques. After careful evaluation and inspection of entry materials, with particular emphasis on the research project reports, the judges select about the top ten per cent of all qualified entrants as the honors group, from which the 40 finalists are selected, and those who don't qualify for the final 40 are specially recommended for scholarships to leading colleges and universities.

Furthermore, unlike many other scholarship competitions, Science Talent Search has no rule prohibiting winners from accepting additional scholarships from other sources. And while designed primarily to discover and encourage science talent at an early age, the Search also served to focus public attention on the need for better science education.

College Boards Testing Dates Slated at KHS

College boards testing dates have been announced by the Kingston High School guidance department for the 1968-69 school year.

The all important tests for the college bound will be given on the following dates:

SAT, only, Nov. 2; SAT, and achievement test, Dec. 7, Jan. 11, March 1 and May 3. According to Jacob A. Nolfo of the KHS guidance department, the additional testing date in early November was added by the College Entrance Examination Board because many college admissions officials felt it would simplify admissions and financial aid decisions.

Nolfo advised all seniors planning on college to take SAT by Dec. 7.

This Little Girl Has Fiery Appetite

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Twelve-year-old Lorraine Olivier leads a double life. By day, she sits at a school desk like most girls her age.

But at night she changes school blazer and tunic for a pink and silver harem costume and becomes South Africa's youngest fire-eater.

Wearing stage make-up, she looks at least 16. Fearlessly she puts a lighted torch soaked in benzine and gasoline into her mouth and walks blindfolded and barefoot over broken glass. She also dances in The Great Alandro's Show.

It's a family business. The Great Alandro is her father, an engineering works employee by day, who became interested in fakirism and yoga when he saw Malay Khalifa experts performing.

His own acts include sword-swallowing, fire-walking, lying on a bed of six-inch nails, magic, ventriloquism and hammering five-inch nails up his nose.

Lorraine's mother Georgie also participates in the show. She makes the family stage costumes, shares Lorraine's fire-eating act and does stunt-driving and escape stunts.

Lorraine joined the show only recently. Her sister Benita, 17, and brother Eugene, 18, are "just not interested", but Lorraine is "a great little actress", says her father.

She and her parents know they take risks, but Lorraine isn't scared — even though her father bears a number of scars to remind them of times when things went wrong.

He aims to pass on his knowledge to her. The next step in the process will be to teach her magic and the principles of yoga.

"You have to be fit for this job," her father says.

PAW Will Present Mrozek Play Here

One-act plays by the leading playwright of modern Poland, Slawomir Mrozek, will be studied next at PAW's Play Reading Group meeting Tues., Sept.

24, at 8:30 p.m. at the shop of Millicello Associates, right next door to the Tinker Street Cinema, Woodstock, (please park your car on Orchard Lane to avoid congestion with the movie crowd.)

Slawomir Mrozek is considered one of Europe's major new dramatists. His international success came with the production of his full-length play, Tango, in London, Paris, Dusseldorf and Warsaw. It is due very shortly to open in New York City. In his one act plays as in his full-length plays, Mrozek is a master of the grotesque and a sharp parodist of politics.

The meetings of the Play Reading Group of PAW each 2nd and 4th Tuesday of the month are open to everyone interested in attending. (Watch newspapers for exact location.)

PAW is interested in original scripts of merit for reading and production. Scripts should be sent to PAW, Play Reading Group, Box 517, Woodstock.

Sisterhood Observes New Year

Rosh Hashanah — the Jewish New Year — begins Sunday evening, Sept. 22 and ends at sundown on Tuesday.

In keeping with the upcoming holiday, Sisterhood Agudas Achim presented a program this week about the High Holy Day with Mrs. Robert Selinger presiding.

After leading the group in an opening song "Peace Unto You," (Shalom Aleichem), Cantor Herman Slomovits sang several liturgical melodies which recur during the morning service on Rosh Hashanah.

The origin and significance, as well as the customs, ceremonies and observance of the festival in the synagogue and in the home were described by Mrs. Mike Winer and Mrs. Irving Rudolf.

An explanation of the purpose and significance of the necessary ceremonial objects and customary foods which dressed a typical Rosh Hashanah dining table setting was given by Mrs. Raphael Klein.

Since the program stressed the role of the homemaker in the successful observance of the Holy Day in the home, recipes for typical foods were distributed. They included "Tsimmes," a vegetable dish and "Teiglach," a confection.

Mrs. Jack Blinder and Mrs. Herman Schneider, hostesses for the evening, served refreshments in honor of the marriage of Norman Blinder and Mr. and Mrs. Schneider's 25th wedding anniversary.

Some of the more popular recipes used during the New Year holiday are submitted here through the courtesy of Mrs. Raphael Klein.

until thick and light in color. Beat in oil, honey and coffee; stir in the flour mixture and nuts. Oil an 11x16x4-inch baking pan; line with aluminum foil. Or use two 9-inch loaf pans. Turn batter into pan. Bake at 325 degrees F. One and a quarter hours for large cake; 50 minutes for two small cakes. Cool on a rack before removing from pan.

Teiglach (Confection)

2½ cups sifted flour
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking powder
4 eggs
4 tbs. salad oil
1 lb. dark honey
¾ cup brown sugar
1 tsp. powdered ginger
½ tsp. nutmeg
2 cups filberts or other nuts

Sift flour, salt and baking powder into bowl. Make a well in center; drop eggs and oil into it. Work into flour and mix until dough is formed. Break off pieces of dough and roll into pencil-thick strips. Cut into ½-inch pieces and place on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven for 20 minutes or until brown. Shake pan once or twice, cool.

Cook honey, brown sugar, ginger and nutmeg for 20 minutes. Drop the baked dough into it. Cook for five minutes. Add nuts and cook 10 minutes additional, stirring frequently. Test mixture by dropping a little on a wet surface; if it holds together, it is done; if not, cook until it does. Turn out onto a wet board; let cool until easy enough to handle. Shape into little balls between moistened hands. (Decorate with bits of candied cherries, if desired.)

'Never-Fail' Matzoh Balls

(Makes about 28)

4 eggs, beaten
¾ cup water
½ teaspoon salt

Honey Cake

3½ cups sifted flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. baking soda
4 eggs
¾ cup sugar
4 tbs. salad oil
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. powdered cloves
½ tsp. ginger
2 cups dark honey
½ cup brewed coffee
1½ cups nuts (walnuts or almonds)

Sift flour, salt, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, nutmeg and ginger together. Beat eggs, gradually adding sugar. Beat

Kreplach

(Makes about 2 dozen)

1½ cups flour (sifting not necessary)
2 eggs
1 tablespoon water
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups filling (see below)

1. Measure unsifted flour onto a work board and make well in the center.

2. Break eggs into the well and add water and salt. Work these center ingredients gradually into the flour to make a stiff dough, and knead dough thoroughly until smooth and elastic.

3. Roll dough out to ¼-inch thickness on lightly floured board and cut into 3-inch squares.

4. Place one tablespoon of desired filling on each square, and moisten edges with a little water. Fold one corner over diagonally to form a triangle, and press edges together firmly.

5. Cook kreplach in rapidly boiling salted water or soup for 20 minutes. Serve in the soup or as a side dish.

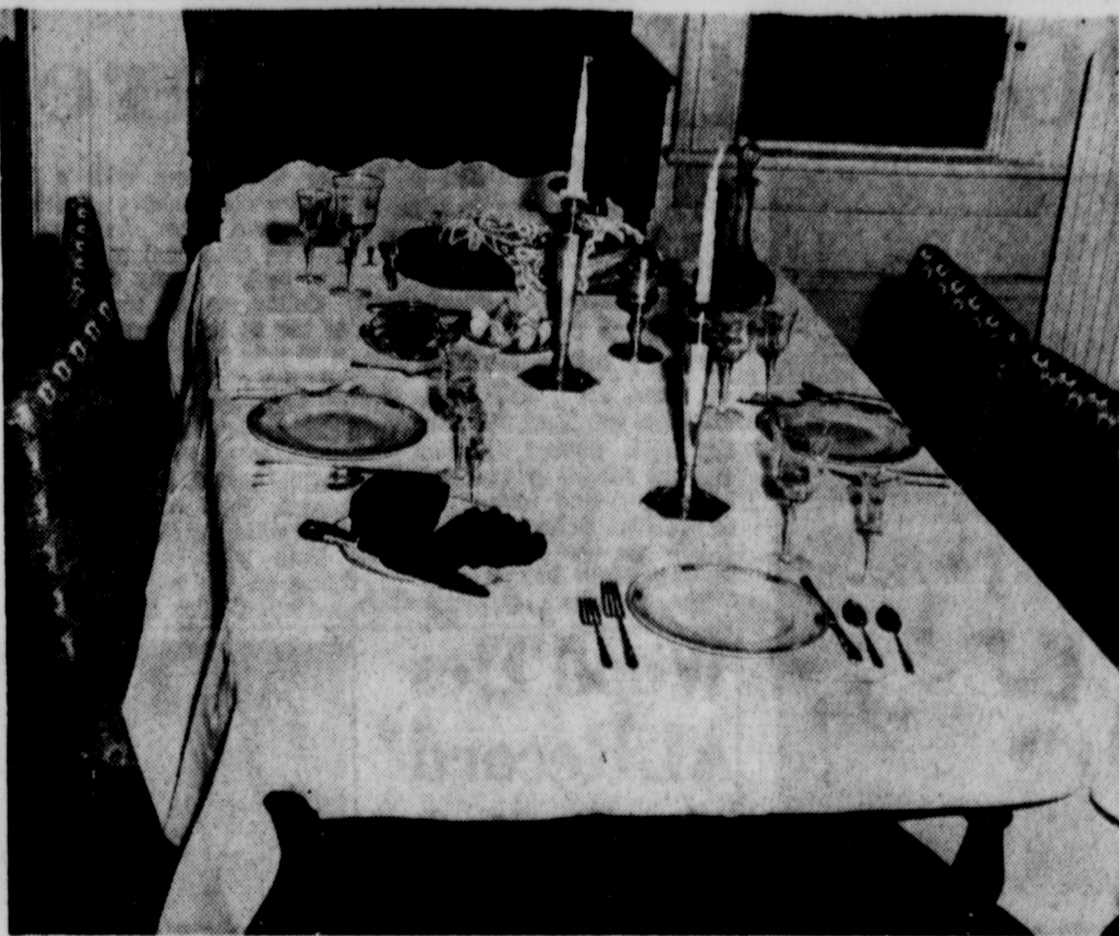

NOTE: Filled, uncooked kreplach may be covered with a damp cloth and refrigerated for several hours before cooking, or they may be wrapped in foil and frozen.

Kreplach Fillings

RAM'S HORN (SHOFAR) — An outstanding feature of the Jewish New Year service in the synagogue is the blowing of the ram's horn (shofar). The ram's horn is prepared by boiling in water. It is then flattened and provided with a mouthpiece. In ancient times, it was used to announce the days on which the new moon and festivals would fall, to proclaim the jubilee year, to issue a call to battle and to communicate tidings of victory. ## WASH WITH SOAP SUDS

Old housekeeping tricks apply equally well to contemporary chairs with frames of polished steel. These need no special polishing agents; their sleek luster can be maintained by washing the metal with soap or detergent suds, followed by rinsing with a clean damp sponge, and polishing with a soft cloth. Their vinyl upholstery can take the same casual treatment.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I feel that your readers should know about a drastic loss that my sister experienced.

After placing a lovely sequined cocktail dress in a closet where there were moth preventives, she soon found that those very pretty sequins became one grand mass of color, different from what they were originally.

It was an expensive gown, but much to her surprise, a total loss and damage to the entire dress.

Surely this warning could save heartache and hard-earned dollars if we can prevent it from happening to other ladies.

Miss Marion Potzer

Dear Marion:

It's a shame that your sister's beautiful dress was ruined. What caused it was a mystery to me so I discussed your complaint with the National Institute of Drycleaning and this is what they said:

"Let's call this one 'sequin sequence.'"

"Thanks for the lady's complaint describing the lovely cocktail dress whose sequins became one grand mass of changed color while stored in a closet."

"The woman suspected moth preventives. She'd make a good clothes detective. Here's probably what happened, according to our garment analysis sleuths."

"The sequins were probably plastic. Fumes from a popular moth preventive, Paradichlorobenzene, will soften plastics (hangers, as well as sequins). Higher temperatures will accelerate the damage."

"At approximately 80 degrees F., the chemical vapor can soften plastic very slowly. However, at 130 degrees F., such as in hot attics, the plastic will be damaged in a few hours."

"Evidently, the moth repellent was close to the damaged dress and consequently, the plastic sequins softened, melted and probably stuck together."

Marion, let's hope your warning and N.I.D.'s kind advice keeps the same thing from happening to others."

"Aren't people wonderful? It takes good folks like you-all to keep this old world going around."

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

If you suddenly discover you are out of bath soap and some member of the family has started to bathe, just hand them the shampoo.

Have them put some on a washcloth and smooth over the body and then rinse.

Works great, especially in the shower."

Heloise?"

When she finally calmed down, we found out she was looking for a sponge she had covered with a piece of your net and had named it "Heloise"...

Our oldest son admitted that he had borrowed it to wash his car with! I sure wish you had been here to enjoy the fun. I thought for a minute YOU were expected for dinner.

... Jim Daniel

Dear Heloise:

For a while I used the hint from your column about putting meatloaf on slices of bread when baking it to keep it from sticking or burning.

Now I have come up with an idea of my own.

I put the meatloaf on a small cake rack and place it in the pan. The meat browns on all sides and all the fatty taste is absent.

Also, the meatloaf is not quite so fattening since the fats have dripped out.

Dear Heloise:

If your initials are really A.B.C., I'll bet they stand for "A Better Cook."

This is ideal for people on a low-fat diet.

State PGA Title to Lohren in Sudden Death Playoff

KISS OF VICTORY — Carl Lohren of Glen Head, L. I., kisses the golf ball after winning the inaugural $30,000 New York State PGA Championship over Bill Collins of Purchase on the first sudden-death hole after tying for first place within 54 holes. (UPI TELEPHOTO.)

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. (UPI)—Carl Lohren is King of New York State today after snatching the first annual state PGA championship away from Bill Collins Friday in the first hole of a sudden death playoff.

Collins, from Purchase, was the man out front for two days but then Lohren finished the tourney with a tying 211 — five under par and took away the $5,000 first prize and the state trophy on the 18th where the sudden death began.

The Braeburn Country Club

pro went home with a $2,500 second place share of the $30,000 event after Lohren made par on that final hole and Collins took a bogey five.

Collins started the final round of the 54 hole medal play with a 36 hole total of 137, seven under par and three strokes ahead of Lohren's 140.

However Lohren fired a one-under 35 on the first nine while Collins took a 38 to even up the match. Both came home in 36 to remain deadlocked.

Both players were in two traps on the 18th when playoff started. Collins hit short of the green on his third shot while Lohren was on the green five feet from the pin. Collins missed the putt which would have given him the championship. The ball stopped inches from the hole and the match went into overtime.

Tied for third place in the three day event at 215 were Doug Ford of Eastchester and Doug Pittman of Locust Valley. Each took home $1,650.

Three players were tied at 219 for the next spot to win $1,200. They were Billy Farrell of Greenwich, Conn., Cotton Dunn of Atawamis and Mike Fetchick of Old Westbury.

At 220, winning $950, were Jim Wright of Innwood and Craig Shankland of Rye.

Other money winners included: Bob Watson, Wakylg, 221 ($825), Joe Moresco, Woodmere, 221 ($825), Terry Wilcox, Sivanoy, 222 ($700), Werner Teichmann, Fallsview, 222 ($710); Tom Nieporte, Piping Rock, 222 ($700).

A gallery estimated at 2,000 Ed Kroll, Cooperstown, 223 was on hand for Friday's ($550); Tom Murphy, Happy finale.

Wood Ties AL Record For Relief

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wilbur Wood tied an American League record by appearing in his 82nd game but needed relief from Hoyt Wilhelm in posting a 2-1 decision for the Chicago White Sox over the Baltimore Orioles Friday night.

Wood replaced starter Gerry Nyman with the bases full and two out in the fifth. He ended the inning with one pitch to Boog Powell and then retired the next seven batters before Frank Robinson doubled with one out in the eighth.

Powell singled to center but Ken Berry threw out Robinson at the plate and Wilhelm took over to retire four straight men and end the game.

Marichal Equals Mark

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Righthander Juan Marichal became the first Giants pitcher in 32 years to win 26 games in a season Friday night as he pitched San Francisco to an 8-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Marichal equaled the victory total of Carl Hubbell in 1936 as he stopped the Braves with a five-hitter. It was a personal victory high for Marichal who ran his season record to 26-8.

Twice previously, in 1963 and 1966, Marichal had won 25 games.

He had a shutout until the ninth when three singles gave Atlanta its lone run.

The Giants hopped on starting pitcher George Stone for two runs in the second inning and four more, all unearned, in the third. Jim Ray Hart hit his 23rd homer of the season to account for the first two runs and a double by Dick Dietz cleared the bases for the big hit in the third.

Ron Hunt drove in two San Francisco runs with a pair of fielders choice grounders and Willie McCovey singled home the other run.

Jim Britton took over for Stone, who sustained a blister on his pitching hand, in the third inning. Britton gave up the three run double to Dietz.

Centerfielder Willie Mays left the game in the third inning with a pulled muscle in his back but was expected to play against the Braves on Saturday.

Jones Is Key Hitter In Mets Double Sweep

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Cleon Jones tripled and scored in the deciding run in the eighth inning Friday night to give the New York Mets a 5-4 victory over Philadelphia after he singled in the ninth inning of the opener and scored on Jerry Grote's two-out single for a 3-2 triumph.

Jones, who had doubled and scored a run in a two-run fourth and singled in a run in the sixth, knocking out nemesis Larry Jackson, tripled off Dick Farrell in the eighth and scored over Philadelphia after he singled in the ninth inning of the opener and scored on Jerry Grote's two-out single for a 3-2 triumph.

Yaz Blasts Yanks, 4-3

(Editor's Note: Mike Ferraro collected a single in four trips as the Yankees went down to a 4-3 defeat at the hands of the Boston Red Sox last night at Yankee Stadium.

Ferraro is 6 for 30 or .200 since his recall.)

NEW YORK (UPI)—Carl Yazdzemski, the American League's only .300 hitter, rapped out three hits, including his 21st homer of the season, to back the nine-hit pitching of Jim Lonborg Friday night and pace the Boston Red Sox to a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees.

Tom Seaver, who yielded eight hits, earned his 15th victory of the season and his first lifetime triumph over the Phillies. He also set a club record of innings pitched in one season with 262.

Tony Gonzalez, who had three hits, drove in both Philadelphia runs with a double in the fourth and a two-out single in the eighth. Phil Linz singled to set up the Mets' first run in the first and doubled in a run in the sixth.

In PGA Team Play

Hill Brothers Hold on To Three-Stroke Margin

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Mike and Dave Hill refused to wilt under the front-running pressure Friday and the Michigan brothers widened their lead in the $200,000 PGA team championship to three strokes with a seven-under-par 32-33-65 and a 36 hole total of 15-under par-127.

Brother Mike took on the big lead Friday over the windy hills of the 7,100-yard Quail Creek County Club course just as Dave, the elder brother, had done on opening day at the 6,700-yard par 35-36-71 Twin Hills Country Club.

The Hill family wound up three strokes ahead of Billy Casper and Gay Brewer, whose 30-32-62 at Twin Hills put them at 13-under par 130.

Mike, on his first year on the tour, had five birdies to Dave's two in contrast to Thursday when Dave exploded six birdies and an eagle.

Mike Hill set the second-day stage when he snaked in a 70-foot putt from the fringe on the first hole, added a four-footer on No. 8, a 25-footer on No. 9, a

THE INEFFICIENT UMPIRES — Al Salerno (L) and Bill Valentine, fired earlier this week by the American League president Joe Cronin, stand outside New York hotel after telling news conference that 20 other AL umpires have agreed to form an organization. Salerno and Valentine claim they were fired for trying to organize the umpires. (UPI TELEPHOTO.)

Cronin Backing Down

BOSTON (UPI) — American League president Joe Cronin sent a telegram to League umpires, reportedly 100 three concerned New York per cent in favor of organizing lawmakers Friday and said a union, can go ahead with their reports that he had dismissed plans with the apparent backing umpires Al Salerno and Bill of American League President Valentine earlier this week because of their activities in forming a union were false.

Cronin was responding to a wire sent to him the previous day by Sens. Jacob K. Javits and Charles E. Goodell and Rep. Alexander Primie.

In his reply, Cronin said: "I regard it as unfortunate that in the public speculation concerning the reasons for the American League's release of umpires Valentine and Salerno it has been assumed that efforts on the part of these men to form an association of American League umpires must have been a factor. Nothing is further from the truth."

Earlier in the day, Valentine and Salerno said in New York that 18 other American League umpires are behind them "100 per cent" in their desire for a union and plan to meet in Chicago on Sept. 30 to work out details of the new organization.

They said the new group will join with National League umpires to form the Association of Major League Umpires.

The only arbiters who haven't agreed to join the union are Bill Kunkel and Jake O'Donnell, the two men who replaced Valentine and Salerno.

The umpires said they have no intention of striking except as a last resort if everything else fails."

Kingston made its Premier debut last Sunday with a spectacular 6-0 victory over Hoboken Football Club.

13th Win For Singer

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Bill Singer scored a tie-breaking run in the sixth inning on Willie Davis' sacrifice fly Friday night and got credit for his 13th pitching victory of the season — a 5-4 decision by the Los Angeles Dodgers over the World Series-bound St. Louis Cardinals.

Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst started a lineup made up mostly of second stringers but called on his front line troops as pinchhitters late in the game.

Lou Brock, one of the few St. Louis regulars to start, had three hits including a homer in four trips to the plate. His homer was only his sixth of the season and first since June 28th.

Miami Tops Cats, 28-7

MIAMI (UPI)—Finding the ground route to revenge denied, quarterback David Olivo fired three touchdown passes Friday night to power the Miami Hurricanes to a 28-7 victory over Northwestern in the Orange Bowl.

Olivo hit end David Kalina his favorite target, with an 11-yard scoring toss late in the first period and hit end Rick Strawbridge with touchdown throws of 5 and 11 yards in the third period.

A two-yard scoring plunge by halfback Vince Opalsky in the final quarter was only icing on the revenge the Hurricanes wreaked on the Wildcats this humid night for ruining the opener of Miami's highest-ranked team last year with a 12-7 upset at Evanston, Ill.

David Shelbourne, sophomore subbing for injured Northwestern quarterback Dan Woodring, could find the scoring handle only once. He spotted Ken Luxton in the open for a 35-yard scoring bomb in the second period and Richard Emmerich converted to tie the score at 7-7 for the halftime intermission.

It became apparent quickly to at 37,035 partisan Miami fans that neither team would allow the other much running room. The passing experience and poise of the senior Olivo, plus three towering receivers, spelled the difference.

It's Soccer at Home For New UCCC Team

STONE RIDGE—Ulster County Community College is going to keep its brand new sport—soccer—right on campus. Athletic Director Coach Kenneth Wolf has announced.

Buoyed by the fine showing of more than 25 students who turned out for the squad, Wolf said the student body was looking forward to the games.

"It will be a little rough in the early stages," he said, "but in due time we should have a good soccer complex here. We're looking beyond that to our new basketball court. Cross country will also be contested on campus where a three-mile layout is being readied."

Coach Wolf cut the squad Thursday and said he would maintain a varsity roster of 19 players. Several of the players have had high school experience in soccer.

Experienced Goalie
The goalie is Scott Harrison, a 6-foot, 150-pounder who played varsity soccer for three years at Lakeland High. Ron Valle, the baseball star, will be used as a reserve goalie and center half-back.

"Ron is small as soccer goalies go," Wolf observed, "but he is quick and agile and his tremendous range."
The fullback picks are Harold

Carleton and Robert Otto of Kingston at center halfback with James Banks of Memorial High, Cedar Grove, N. J., Joe Eisenbeil, Willow, and Dave Short of Kingston vying for the fullback spots.

Reserves include Rich Barnhardt, John Rose, of Kingston; John Lowe, Central Islip; Rasmus Jensen of Rondout Valley; John Bruno, Stone Ridge.

Wolf said the players are looking forward to the opener. "Although most of the students are new to soccer," he pointed out, "their athletic abilities and competition experience in such sports as football and basketball will be an advantage in learning the game."

UCCC will play a six-game slate and compete in the Mid-Hudson Conference.
The schedule:

Date	Opponent	Place
Oct. 3	Rockland	Home
Oct. 7	Orange CCC	Home
Oct. 11	Westchester	Away
Oct. 19	Manhattan	Home
Oct. 22	Dutchess	Away
Oct. 28	Sullivan	Away

Unemployment Law Aids Strikes Saves Official

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — An official of the Federal Bearings Co. of Poughkeepsie said the state's unemployment-insurance law can lead to prolonged strikes.

Russell W. Hadden, director of employment and public relations at the company, made the assertion in remarks for the annual meeting of Associated Industries of New York State.

He said the law was damaging to industry and was the most important factor in the recent, 15-month-long strike against the Poughkeepsie company.

The law, Hadden said, permitted payment of jobless benefits of $55 a week to striking employees after eight weeks.

This amount, plus $20 from the union strike fund, enabled many employees to make a salary similar to their working wages, he said.

Debate Slate For Fish, Dyson

Congressional candidate John Dyson today announced that his principal opponent has finally agreed to a series of debates in the 28th District. Dyson declared, "The public pressure for these debates, from individuals, civic organizations and newspapers was so great that my opponent was forced to agree to a limited debate schedule."

The agreement calls for only seven debates including last Thursday night's at Marist College. Dyson's original challenge was for 15 debates, three in each county.

The Democratic nominee's comment on this limited schedule was: "It is a shame that my opponent procrastinated for such a long time and that only six additional debates, all except one in major cities of the district, could be arranged. The citizens of such communities as Pawling, Red Hook, Saugerties, Athens, Chatham and Cobleskill have been short changed by Fish's delays."

The schedule for the remaining six debates and the topics to be discussed is:

Sept. 25, Hudson, urban problems; Oct. 6, Schoharie, rural development; Oct. 15, Beacon, law and order; Oct. 21, Poughkeepsie, Vietnam and foreign policy; Oct. 25, Catskill, inflation and the economy; Oct. 30, Kingston, general issues.

Dyson noted that Fish, until yesterday, refused to debate in Schoharie or Greene Counties. Dyson declared, "Fish wanted only to debate in Democratic areas, considering areas of Republican registration his sole property. I think Fish should stop taking the Republicans for granted since the citizens of this District have demonstrated that they will vote for the man not for the party label."

84 Area Boys Report, Join County Young Marine Unit

Eighty-four area boys reported at the State Armory Wednesday night and joined the Ulster County Young Marine Unit, according to Gilbert E. Gray, commanding officer, who reported four new platoons were organized increasing the number to six.

The new "boots" are from Saugerties, Town of Ulster, Rosendale, Port Ewen, Hurley and the City of Kingston. Gray said the new recruits will undergo a 10-week "boot camp" in which they will be instructed in the fundamentals of military drill, respect for the American flag, military discipline and other allied subjects.

During instructions great stress is placed upon neatness, good manners and the recruits are required to maintain good grades in school and must submit their school report cards to officers. The boys are rated also on their demeanor at home in caring for their clothes, their room.

Upon completion of boot camp the boys will receive a graduation certificate, and will obtain their young marine uniforms. They will then become a part of the senior unit comprising Platoons 1 and 2, and will join other platoons in the advanced training phases of the young marine program.

After signing up, the boys received basic training in military drill Wednesday night. The senior platoons viewed a film presented by the State Police as a part of the advanced programming which is presented for the two-fold purpose of retaining interest in the young boys and broadening their knowledge.

The Young Marines will participate in the Loyalty Day parade slated in Poughkeepsie on Oct. 27. On Sept. 14 they took part in the Community Chest parade in Kingston.

It's Soccer at Home For New UCCC Team

STONE RIDGE—Ulster County Community College is going to keep its brand new sport—soccer—right on campus. Athletic Director Coach Kenneth Wolf has announced.

Buoyed by the fine showing of more than 25 students who turned out for the squad, Wolf said the student body was looking forward to the games.

"It will be a little rough in the early stages," he said, "but in due time we should have a good soccer complex here. We're looking beyond that to our new basketball court. Cross country will also be contested on campus where a three-mile layout is being readied."

Coach Wolf cut the squad Thursday and said he would maintain a varsity roster of 19 players. Several of the players have had high school experience in soccer.

Experienced Goalie

The goalie is Scott Harrison, a 6-foot, 150-pounder who played varsity soccer for three years at Lakeland High. Ron Valle, the baseball star, will be used as reserve goalie and center half-back.

"Ron is small as soccer goalies go," Wolf observed, "but he is quick and agile and his tremendous range."

Carleton and Robert Otto of Kingston at center halfback with James Banks of Memorial High, Cedar Grove, N. J. Joe Eisenbeil, Willow, and Dave Short of Kingston vying for the fullback spots.

Reserves include Rich Barnhardt, John Rose, of Kingston; John Lowe, Central Islip; Rasmus Jensen of Rondout Valley; John Bruno, Stone Ridge.

Wolf said the players are looking forward to the opener. "Although most of the students are new to soccer," he pointed out, "their athletic abilities and competition experience in such sports as football and basketball will be an advantage in learning the game."

UCCC will play a six-game slate and compete in the Mid-Hudson Conference.

Unemployment Law Aids Strikes Says Official

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — An official of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said the state's unemployment insurance law can lead to prolonged strikes.

Russell W. Hadden, director of employment and public relations at the company, made the assertion in remarks for the annual meeting of Associated Industries of New York State.

He said the law was damaging to industry and was the most important factor in the recent, 15-month-long strike against the Poughkeepsie company.

The law, Hadden said, permitted payment of jobless benefits of $55 a week to striking employees after eight weeks.

This amount, plus $20 from the union strike fund, enabled many employees to make a salary similar to their working wages, he said.

Debate Slate For Fish, Dyson

Congressional candidate John Dyson today announced that his principal opponent has finally agreed to a series of debates in the 28th District, Dyson declared. "The public pressure for these debates, from individuals, civic organizations and newspapers was so great that my opponent was forced to agree to a limited debate schedule."

The agreement calls for only seven debates including last Thursday night's at Marist College. Dyson's original challenge was for 15 debates, three in each county.

The Democratic nominee's comment on this limited schedule was: "It is a shame that my opponent procrastinated for such a long time and that only six additional debates, all except one in major cities of the district, could be arranged. The citizens of such communities as Pawling, Red Hook, Saugerties, Athens, Chatham and Cobleskill have been short changed by Fish's delays."

The schedule for the remaining six debates and the topics to be discussed is: Sept. 25, Hudson, urban problems; Oct. 6, Schoharie, rural development; Oct. 15, Beacon, law and order; Oct. 21, Poughkeepsie, Vietnam and foreign policy; Oct. 25, Catskill, inflation and the economy; Oct. 30, Kingston, general issues.

Dyson noted that Fish, until yesterday, refused to debate in Schoharie or Greene Counties.

Dyson declared, "Fish wanted only to debate in Democratic areas, considering areas of Republican registration his sole property. I think Fish should stop taking the Republicans for granted since the citizens of this district have demonstrated that they will vote for the man not for the party label."

Dear Abby

A Lady Goes Where Invited

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1968 by Chicago Tribune
N. Y. News Synd., Inc.
DEAR ABBY: After being a widow for 4 years, I married George, a divorced man whose daughter is getting married in Syracuse next month.
I suggested that we go to Syracuse a day or two early as I have relatives there. It was then that George informed me that I was not invited to the wedding? I was furious. I took it for granted that as his wife I would be welcome at his daughter's wedding.
George said I could make the trip with him, but while he attended the wedding and reception, I could visit with my relatives. I told George that I was a lady and refused to be hidden away. All his people know that he has remarried. The only reason he has ever given me for his divorce was that he and his wife "didn't get along." Do you suppose that he's afraid if I go to the wedding I'll find out something he doesn't want me to know?

He says, "I can't imagine why you would even want to be there with my former in-laws and ex-wife present."
Please advise me as I am very unhappy over this, and am considering leaving him.
DEAR LEFT OUT: A "lady" goes only where she is invited. The day belongs to George's daughter, and if she had wanted, you at her wedding, she'd have invited you. George should go alone. Trust his judgment.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and have known Betty since kindergarten. She is 17. We were neighbors, but last year Betty moved away. She keeps phoning me, and we have long conversations. She always talks about boys and sex, and she's started to use very vulgar language. She kept wanting to go together, but I always made up excuses.
Finally Betty suggested she pick me up (she drives) and we go to visit a former teacher who is ailing. I agreed, as I liked this teacher. When I saw how hard and cheap Betty looked, I was shocked. ### Play Boldly to Play Well

By Oswald and James Jacoby
When there is just one correct way to play a hand it behooves you to find it. If you fail—at least you will have done your best.
See if you can find the correct way to play today's hand without looking over the East and West hands.

There are two rather attractive wrong ways to play it. The first is to duck the heart lead in both hands. This won't cost you anything if a heart is returned but a club shift will prove disastrous.
The second is to win the first heart with your king, run off your diamonds to see what happens and then to lay down the king of spades. This line will succeed if East and West discard badly or if West takes that spade king. Otherwise it will fail.

The correct line of play is to count your tricks carefully. You have seven tricks in top cards and two potential tricks in spades. How can you get those two tricks?
If you could get to dummy twice you could lead up to your hand both times but you are going to reach dummy once and once only. Therefore you can only lead toward your spades that one time.

You study a little more and see the danger of ducking in both hands or of winning that first heart with your king. You go right up with dummy's ace: lead a spade, play your 10 and make your contact because East holds the jack.
Incidentally, we want to commend North's raise to three no-trump. An ace is four points but it looks mighty forlorn all by itself among those deuces and treys and some players might decide to pass. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

OFFICE CAT

By Junius "ado Mark Bog."

The young man was very much in love and promised to send the lady of his affections a bouquet of roses on her birthday — one rose for each year. So that night he wrote a note to his florist ordering the immediate delivery of twenty roses to the young woman. The florist read the order and thought he would please the young man by improving on it, so he said to a clerk:
"Here's an order from young Jones for twenty roses. He is one of my best customers. Throw in five more for good measure."

Father had sent Walter to the trunk maker's to ascertain whether he had finished the repair job entrusted to him.
Mr. Lane (the father, when Walter returned) — Well, what did he say?
Walter — He said he'd send the trunk up in half an hour.

Mr. Lane (testily) — But how about the strap? Didn't you tell him I wanted a strap, too?
Walter — No, father, I did not. I told him I thought you had better not have a strap.

A girl with beautiful eyes soon puts a man on the blink.

A clergyman who had recently taken charge of the parish was warned by a kindly lady that he was making a mistake in assuming in his sermons that the people of St. Steven's were sinners.

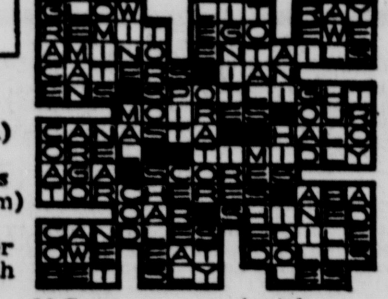

Mrs. Cole — When you have been here longer, Reverend, you will learn what good people they are.

Reverend Case — Are there no sinners among them madam?
The reply was unflinching:
Mrs. Cole — A least not among the pew-holders.

A Lady Goes Where Invited

DEAR ABBY: After being a widow for 4 years, I married George, a divorced man whose daughter is getting married in Syracuse next month.

I suggested that we go to Syracuse a day or two early as I have relatives there. It was then that George informed me that I was not invited to the wedding? I was furious. I took it for granted that as his wife I would be welcome at his daughter's wedding.

George said I could make the trip with him, but while he attended the wedding and reception, I could visit with my relatives. I told George that I was a lady and refused to be hidden away. All his people know that he has remarried. The only reason he has ever given me for his divorce was that he and his wife "didn't get along." Do you suppose that he's afraid if I go to the wedding I'll find out something he doesn't want me to know?

He says, "I can't imagine why you would even want to be there with my former in-laws and ex-wife present."

Please advise me as I am very unhappy over this, and am considering leaving him.

HOLLYWOOD—Don Feddersen should be able to tell you, if anybody can, just what the magic is in keeping a television series going year after year.

But Feddersen, the man who is moving My Three Sons into its ninth season and Family Affair into its third, says it's a big mystery to him, too.

"I wish I could tell you how smart we all are, how we make these brilliant decisions, manipulating our characters and all that, so that our audience will keep coming back to us. But I have to be honest. Most of our changes are made because we have to, and the rest we make flying by the seat of our pants. Conquering the immensely complicated logistics didn't solve everything. Some changes in the casting became inevitable. The toughest problem was letting go of the aging and ailing Bill Frawley.

"We have to carry huge insurance policies, extra large because of the way we shoot with MacMurray. If something happens to a major character, all the film involving him has to be reshot. The Doctors finally refused to okay Bill for the insurance, and I had to tell him he was through."

"It was the toughest thing I ever did in my life. Bill cursed the doctors and said how wrong they were. When I left his apartment, I sat in my car and cried."

The Enduring Video Series

By BOB ROSE

Chicago Daily News Service
HOLLYWOOD—Don Feddersen should be able to tell you, if anybody can, just what the magic is in keeping a television series going year after year.

But Feddersen, the man who is moving My Three Sons into its ninth season and Family Affair into its third, says it's a big mystery to him, too.

"I wish I could tell you how smart we all are, how we make these brilliant decisions, manipulating our characters and all that, so that our audience will keep coming back to us. But I have to be honest. Most of our changes are made because we have to, and the rest we make flying by the seat of our pants. We don't plan five years ahead," Feddersen said in an interview in his CBS television center office.

Idea While Driving
Feddersen, who earlier had kept the millionaire on the air for six years and had produced a couple of Betty White series—and is still television consultant to Lawrence Welk—came up with the idea of My Three Sons while driving down Sunset Strip.

"Only my first idea was of Bill Frawley raising three girls. We dropped it because some of our advisers said he had too much work to do bringing in two Lawrence Welk shows a week. Then I got the idea of My Three Sons, using Frawley and Fred MacMurray, and decided to go ahead with it—if I could get MacMurray."

MacMurray wasn't having any, he refused, in those days, to even talk to anybody from television. But Feddersen mailed him a script, he liked it and agreed to a luncheon meeting.

"I thought we had him, but he called up the next day and said he just couldn't see working every day for nine months on a TV series. He had his wife, June Haver, and their adopted twin daughters to think of."

Feddersen came up with the idea of shooting all of MacMurray's scenes for the whole year in 65 days. Filling in the rest around him during the remainder of the season, MacMurray agreed.

Big City Look
Last year Bobbie was married, to Tina Cole, but Feddersen decided to keep them in the script, adding the dimensions of the problems of a newlywed couple.

He also moved the family from the mythical mid-west town of Bryant Park to Hollywood, to give the big city look to the show.

This year, the big deal will be Robbie and Katie having triplets.

"We were sitting around wondering what to do for this season and I said Lucy (Lucille Ball) had a baby on her show, on Family Affair we've got twins, why not triplets? I was kidding. But the more we thought about it the more we thought it wasn't such a bad idea. We could have fun with it."

"Now I don't know if the public will accept this. You just never know, I wish I could tell you how it all works. But all I know is we take some humor and some heart, you can call it corn, and some moral mixture and it sort of takes care of itself."

Let's Find Out

Let's Find Out Solves Problems, Gets Answers, and Cuts Red Tape. Write the column in care of The Freeman, or phone between 12 noon and 2 p. m. daily.

Q. We live behind an area golf course and are becoming alarmed by the golf balls we hear ricocheting among our tree tops or find in our yard. Who is responsible for property damage from erratic hooks and slices?—P.E.H.

A. Let's Find Out cannot offer legal opinions but, it seems to us, a first step would be to discuss the problem with the golf course manager; tell him bad golfers are littering your yard with golf balls. When the problem has occurred elsewhere, arrangements have sometimes been made by the golf course to put up an exceptionally high fence. Some property owners have planted hedges and trees for more protection. If the problem increases, we suggest you check with those in charge of the golf course before seeking legal aid.

Q. I belong to an organization which feels that our village officials should aid us in sponsoring a United Nations Day program. They tell us they would like to do so, but are not authorized to spend money on such programs. Why can they not cooperate with us in this historical celebration, or are they simply trying to get off the hook?—Mrs. H.F.L.

A. History is strictly a local matter as far as village law is concerned, according to State Comptroller Arthur Levitt. It is his opinion that there is no authority for a village to "get together" with others to spend money on such programs. The law permitting establishment of a fund to celebrate historical events is generally interpreted to mean a historical celebration relating to the specific municipality, and no other section of law authorizes spending village money for such a purpose.

Q. Is there a written or an unwritten law about cars stopped for a red light blocking a side street so that no one can get in or out? I've called the police who referred me to Third Ward Alderman Naccarato. Mrs. Naccarato promised to pass along a message from me about the blocking of Jansen Avenue, in back of Carroll's, off East Chester Street. Cars coming down East Chester Street towards Broadway stop on the railroad tracks and block Jansen Avenue, mostly in the rush hours, so that no one can enter it or leave it. A sign saying, "Do not block street," for example, would help.—KINGSTON MOTORIST.

A. The Vehicle and Traffic Law says that vehicular traffic should stop at clearly marked intersections or crosswalk lines near the intersection. If there are none, then drivers should stop at that point near the intersection where a clear view of traffic can be obtained. Drivers who ignore this ruling also forget common courtesy and good driving habits, as do those who flaunt State law and park so as to block streets or driveways. All licensed drivers are expected to know these regulations and observe them.

Just as Kingston has innumerable signs advising drivers to "stop one block back of the red signal," other cities and towns use "Do not block street" signs. It does not seem impossible that your Mr. Naccarato could work with the police to see that such a helpful sign was placed near the Jansen Avenue spot in question.

Q. I am only a part-time policeman in one of Ulster County's villages, but I am wondering if this would qualify my survivors for benefits if I die as the result of injuries suffered while on duty.—CONCERNED COP.

A. State Comptroller Arthur Levitt says the number of hours a policeman works doesn't affect his status as a "regular member of the police department." What really matters, he advises, is whether the policeman was appointed from a civil service list after passing an examination and completing a basic training program. Another test that gives a policeman "regular member" status is membership in the Employees Retirement System, Levitt says. If all those conditions are met, a part-time policeman's survivors qualify for benefits if such an unfortunate circumstance occurs as posed by the above question.

Q. Now that the controversy over purchase of the Cash-dollar dump by the Town of Woodstock has been resolved by the town's buying of the dump, can you give us any information on the cost involved in the required landfill operations, and how such costs compare with regional incinerator programs?—E.L.D.

A. The engineering firm of Brimmer and Larios, which made a study of the advisability of purchasing the dump for the Town of Woodstock and ultimately recommended its purchase, points out that a landfill project is NOT a dump. Rubbish and refuse are not exposed to view and, each night, everything deposited there must be covered up with fresh fill—thus eliminating burning and rodents. It is estimated that if Woodstock operates the project alone, the cost of the complete operation will be $15,000 a year—including purchase of a bulldozer and hiring of men to properly operate the machine and the project.

The cost given should cover a period of more than five years, or only until landfill must be hauled to the site. If towns other than Woodstock become involved in the project, the time involved will be shortened and the cost to the taxpayers of Woodstock will be decreased. The engineers also say this cost compares favorably with that now required by New Paltz and other towns in this area operating such projects.

Regional incinerator programs. Ulster County has hired an excellent engineering firm to do a county-wide, inter-municipal study—grouping various towns together geographically with an eye to determining whether landfill or incineration is more sensible. Although it is known that incinerators are not as cheap to maintain as formerly—because of today's new laws on air pollution—it is not feasible to make comparisons until the study mentioned has been completed and the report released.

Montevideo Bracing After Student Death

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—Authorities feared further rioting as students prepared for the funeral of a student killed Friday in a third straight night of violent protests over wage and price freeze policies.

The seven-hour wave of violence in which economics student Hugo de los Santos, 18, was fatally shot, was described as one of the worst in the capital in the past three months of disturbances.

It was feared his funeral could trigger further outbursts. Although there was no accurate casualty toll available, six other persons were reported seriously injured Friday night and scores suffered lesser injuries. About 50 persons were arrested. At the height of the fighting, students hurled stones from behind barricades as police battled with tear gas and rifles.

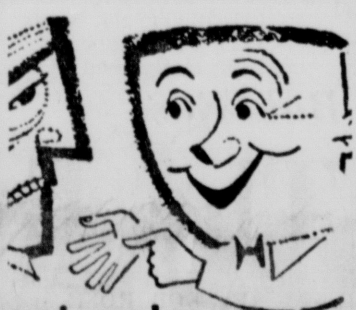

There were clashes both outside Montevideo University and in the district of El Cerro, 10 miles outside the capital, scene of a month-long strike by meat packing workers. Details from that area were sketchy. In rioting Wednesday and Thursday, at least 47 persons were known wounded. President Jorge Pacheco Areco, who is trying to get Congress to ratify his order freezing wages and prices at June 26 levels, met with top advisers in Government House Friday night.

The president asked university authorities to use their influence to halt the violence. Pacheco Areco leaves today for the city of Salto on the Argentine border, to meet with Argentine President Juan Carlos Onganía for top level talks Sunday. Argentina is said to be worried about the steadily deteriorating economic situation and the disturbances in Uruguay. The government tightened censorship over local news reports of the rioting. The censorship prohibits the mention of disturbances and casualties.

No Viet Settlement: Nixon Declaration

By WALTER R. MEARS
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Richard M. Nixon scouts the city and the suburbs for votes today after declaring that as president, he would not accept a Vietnam settlement to bring home U.S. troops at the risk that "their 14-and 15-year-old brothers will have to fight another war."

He plans a stop at a shopping center in the Negro section of Philadelphia to open a 14-hour day of campaign rallies, and said he seeks the votes of all Americans.

In a statewide television broadcast Friday night, Nixon denied he has written off the Negro vote in his bid for the White House.

"Whoever is going to be president of this country has got to be president of the whole country," Nixon said. "He must be able to unite this country and therefore his appeal must be to all segments of the country."

The Republican nominee said any candidate who ignored Negro voters and appealed only to white Americans would not be able to govern as president because he would have "basically a civil war on his hands between the black and the white community."

Nixon said even if he does not win Negro support, it is important that he seek it for "I hope that after this election, I'll have the confidence of the black people as well as the white people."

Dealing with Vietnam, Nixon said he opposed coalition government as the price of a peace settlement.

"We do not want to lose at the conference table what 200,000 American casualties have already paid for in Vietnam," he said.

He did so, after Jack McKinney, a Democrat, and a member of the panel which questioned him on the campaign television show, suggested that the GOP nominee has been seeking votes with "a wink and a smile," but with no detailed discussion of the war.

"Now Mr. McKinney, just a minute, maybe you haven't been reading what I have said about Vietnam," Nixon said.

"If we impose by negotiation a coalition government with Communists in the government of South Vietnam, that will be an encouragement not only to the North Vietnamese, but to the Communist Chinese and the Soviet Union to try it again," Nixon said.

"It will end this war and it will bring home the 19-and 20-year-old boys that are out there now and their 14-and 15-year-old brothers will be fighting someplace else again. I don't want that to happen."

Recapturing the Catskills of 1893

TEMPO has just been introduced to "Picturesque Catskills," published last December by Hope Farm Press and Bookshop, of Cornwallville. Actually, it was re-published, as historical buffs will know full well—for "Picturesque Catskills" is one of the most prized and fabulous books ever set to print. Area residents who own copies of the original work wouldn't part with them for any amount of money, and wisely so.

Now, thanks to bachelor C. E. Dornbusch, who retired five years ago from The New York Public Library where he was in charge of the military collection, to open Hope Farm Press, anyone can own a copied copy of the book for only a few dollars.

Re-published via the photo offset process, the new edition retains the more than 800 illustrations in the original, all photographed in Greene County in the early 1890's; adds a foreword by historian Alf Evers, and an index.

As Evers Tells It

But let Woodstock author and former Town Historian Evers tell you himself in his own words from the Foreword of "Picturesque Catskills" by the now legendary R. Lionel De Lisser, as originally published by Picturesque Publishing Company, Northampton, Mass. in 1894.

"All through the summer and fall of 1893 a humorous, storytelling artist named

Richard Lionel De Lisser was exploring the Catskills. He travelled alone in that most serviceable and economical of vehicles, a light buggy. The motive power of the buggy was an elderly but faithful horse named Cherry-Tree. De Lisser was no ordinary tourist like the thousands of others who were spending their vacations that year in the cool, bracing air of the Catskills and amid its scenic wonders—he explained to all he met that he had come on business, for he was the "Art Manager for the Catskills" of the Picturesque Publishing Company of Northampton. "Under DeLisser's guidance a work to be called Picturesque Catskills" was in progress. It would be published in two volumes; the first devoted to the parts of the mountains lying in Greene County, the second, planned for a year or two in the future, would take care of Ulster County's share of the Catskills. The pair of books would mark a great advance upon all previous accounts of the region for they would feature a magnificent series of photographs to be taken by the Art Manager with the help of the mahogany and brass camera which he carried in his buggy.

Catskills Stand Still

"The first of the proposed two volumes on the Catskills appeared in 1894 as Picturesque Catskills. No one whose affections have been captured by the Catskills can turn its pages without a sense of growing excitement. For here De Lisser has managed by the use of the time machine known as a camera to make the Catskill Mountains of 1893 stand still for our information and delight. For the click of his shutter stopped the people and the landscape of the mountains in their tracks that summer and fall and gave to a few moments in their existence a kind of paper immortality.

"In Le Lisser's pages farmers of 1893 still get in the hay and oat crops of that year, the blacksmiths shoe horses, customers enter country stores, mountain people wait outside their little post offices while letters are being sorted, gypsy horse traders and organ grinders with monkeys plod the dusty mountain roads, women rub and rinse the weekly wash, coon hunters return from their sport, triumphant. Summer boarders climb High Peak or enjoy the rustic fun of a straw ride.

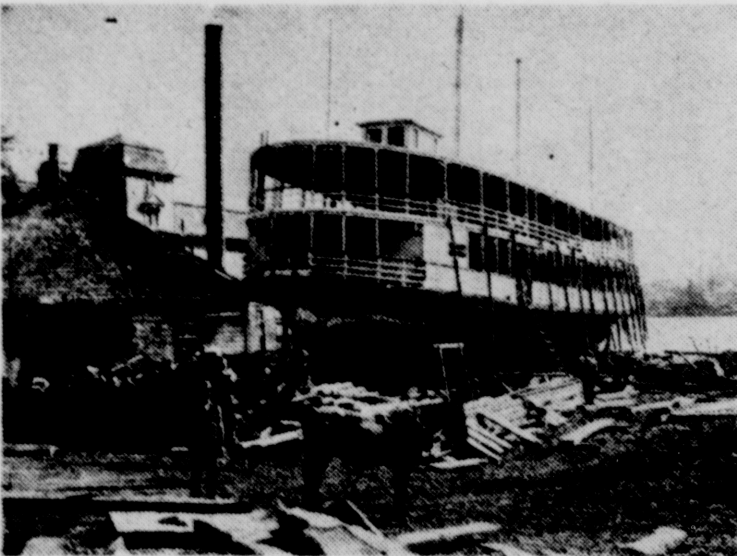

"The landscape in its own way stands still at De Lisser's command—it pauses in its evolution from primeval forest to farm and industrial land and back again. The close cropped pastures and neat valley fields of 1893 survive in the pictures De Lisser took—his head under

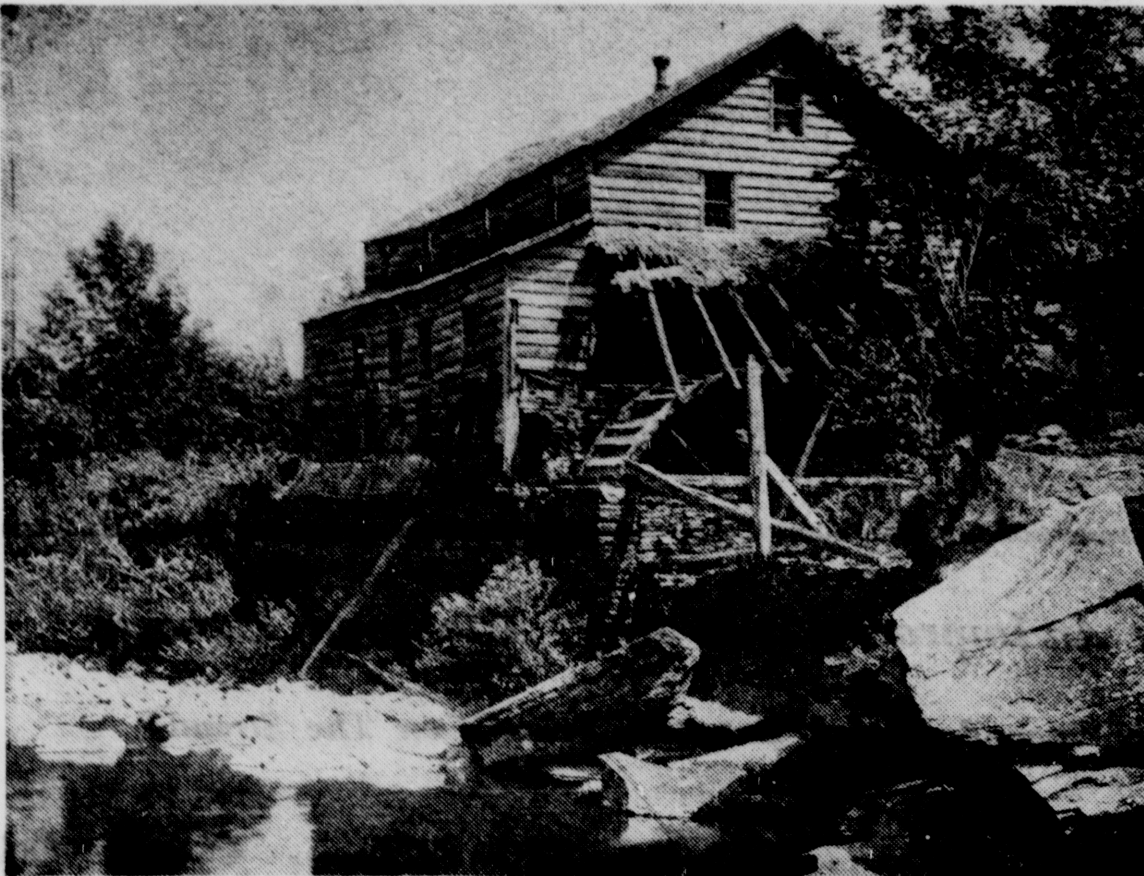

THE ANTLERS at Haines Falls was advertised as "the largest and most select" boarding house of its time.

GREENE COUNTY RESIDENTS of earlier days flocked to see the touring road shows that came from afar to play in The Opera House at Athens.

DE LISSER'S PHOTOGRAPH of an earlier Hudson River boat on the dry dock at Athens captures flavor of steamboating area.

the black focussing cloth, his eyes fixed on the landscapes, taking shape upside down on his ground glass screen.

"While Cherry-Tree tied to a fence post, happily munched his oats, his master worked his magic on the buildings of the Catskills. One by one, by twos or threes or by dozens, they were lured in through De Lisser's lens and their images captured—weathered old grist mills, crumbling pioneer log cabins, summer hotels spick and span with white paint, their piazzas creaking with rocking chairs; churches (the Baptists one at Acra is shown topped by a gilded hand pointing to heaven), farm houses of Dutch and Yankee inspiration, barns in all their variety, Main Street business buildings with characteristic loading platforms and sheltering balconies, mountain top observatories."

Thus does Evers describe the book and, as Tempo's editor pored over its pages night after night this week, we became so fascinated with its photographs, pen and ink and wash drawings, and tumbling text of poems, folklore, travel articles and fiction that we lost more sleep than was wise.

So, too, should Tempo readers—arty or not—respond to this rebirth of the past. Never have the old days been made so real; never has a book possessed such charm for those of us who live here. The photographs alone take days to digest and the text even longer. For reading material abounds in De Lisser's own "Artist's Ramblings" of his pilgrimage. Folklore plays a prominent part and, as Evers notes: "Included in the text are examples of the manufactured legend and lore favored in the Catskills of the nineties—such as The Tragedy of the Great Table Rock, and The Legend of the French Girl of Kaaterskill Clove."

Truly A Treasure

There can be no argument that the original edition of "Picturesque Catskills" has been treasured over the years by fortunate owners. The new edition will just as surely be treasured by those who order it now through their local bookstores or direct from Hope Farm Press and Bookshop, Strong Road, Cornwallville, N.

But perhaps the best news of all is that Hope Farm is re-publishing De Lisser's "Picturesque Ulster," which was originally published in 10 parts between 1896 and 1905. It's a companion volume to "Picturesque Catskills," and also has a foreword by Alf Evers. Publication date is today, Sept. 21...and it should prove a runaway success.

Tempo will delve into the story behind "Picturesque Ulster" in an early issue; take you back to the days of summer boarders, ice-harvesting on the Hudson, bluestone quarrying, steamboating, railroading and lumbering...and the folkways of another era in Rondout, Kingston, Old Hurley and other urban and backwoods communities.

October Stroll of Major Dimensions

17-KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, SEPT. 21, 1968

By JEAN F. DOLAN

A Sunday stroll of majestic dimensions is being planned by the D & H Canal Historic Society.

Nothing less than the Brooklyn Bridge will be the site of the promenade which is slated for Oct. 20. It is expected that New York City officials and other dignitaries will join in the event which underlines the link between the famed old canal and the more famous suspension bridge.

The magic name "Roebeling" is the cable which ties the two together. It was pioneer engineer John A. Roebeling who developed suspension bridge theories while solving early problems of Delaware and Hudson Canal construction and fought to carry out his plans by spanning the East River, linking the borough of Brooklyn and Manhattan. Against great odds the work was completed by his son, Washington, defying detractors of the day who were convinced the bridge would never survive.

A Knotty Problem

Survive it did, thanks at least in part to earlier theories worked out on the canal which ran from Honesdale, Pa. to tidewater at Rondout. One of the knottiest problems along the canal was the Delaware crossing. Spring floods plagued the route at this point where a rope ferry was used to make the crossing.

In addition to the natural problems at this section, feuds erupted between the canalers and the Delaware raftsmen who considered themselves rulers of the waters at this point.

Roebeling Sr. was in the final phases of perfecting his theories of wire rope hangers for bridge suspension when the Delaware crossing was presented to him as a challenge. And to the inventor-engineer the solution was crystal clear. "Build the canal above the water," he said and avoid the raftsmen and the swirling waters completely.

At the Delaware aqueduct, completed in 1848, wire rope hangers were used for the very first time. The canal trunk was suspended from cables strung over the saddles on top of the masonry piers. Planked towpaths flanked the canal bed on the suspension span. Doubts as to the safety of such an engineering feat were expressed on many sides and when the first loaded barge went through the aqueduct to the New York side without the whole thing collapsing into the river great cries of enthusiasm went up from spectators.

High Falls Span

Of particular interest to Ulster County members of the canal society is the Roebeling suspension span at High Falls. Here the talented engineer started the suspension crossing while still completing the final stages of the Delaware and Lackawaxen Aqueducts. The Roebeling aqueduct at High Falls topped the earlier twin arch bridge. Truly a parent of the Brooklyn Bridge, the suspension span was of great tensile strength and survived in skeletal state beyond the time of the canal.

A photograph from the collection of Canal Society member, Mrs. Stephen A. Muth of High Falls reveals the basic structural bones of the local aqueduct. The picture, taken by her uncle, the late Jesse Ghear in about 1916, reveals the ravages of fire which destroyed wooden portions of the bridge and bared the cable and wire rope bones of the span. Albert E. Milliken, Kingston architect recalls the precarious boyhood adventure of crossing the Rondout at High Falls, hand over hand on the hanging wires.

From the D & H canal, Roebeling went on to other pre-Brooklyn Bridge suspension construction, most notable being the Monongahela span at Pittsburgh and the first railroad bridge suspension in the world at the Niagara Gorge.

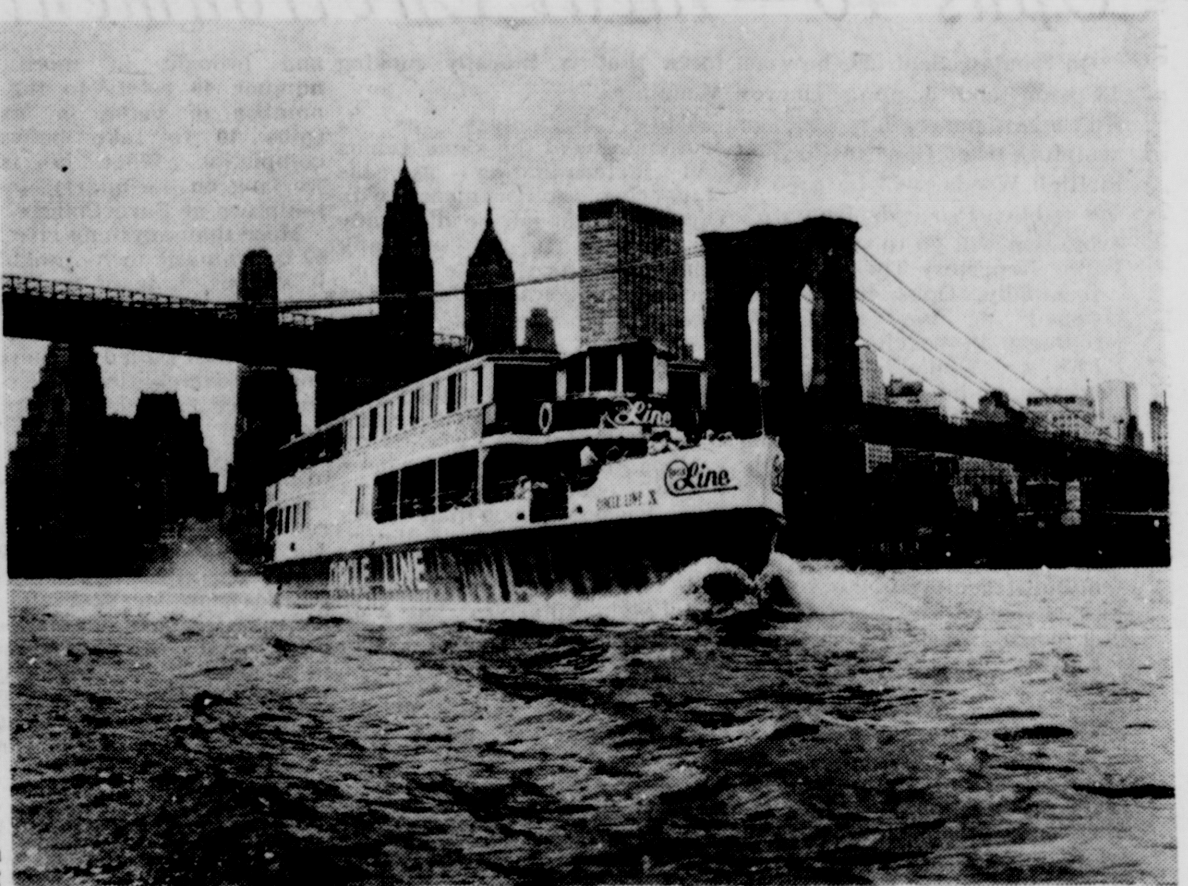

Even with these triumphs to his credit, there was many a professional doubter making verbal objections to his Brooklyn Bridge proposals in the 1860's. At the time, spanning the East River for 1,600 feet, with questionable river bottom to contend with, presented a monumental challenge, but one which Roebeling was sure he could solve with suspension.

Odds Were Great

Fate intervened. While making a final survey to determine the position of the tower, Roebeling was injured developed tetanus and died two weeks later. The engineering colossus became the concern of Roebeling's son, Washington, who achieved the final completion over great odds.

In order to build the foundations it was necessary to employ the pressurized Brooklyn caisson. Although "the bends" are well known today, the early "sand hogs" were unaware of the phenomenon. Roebeling himself was felled by the air pressure disease and during the later days of construction watched from his Brooklyn Heights apartment, directing operations with the help of his wife Emily, who herself became well versed in engineering know-how.

The bridge was opened with great fanfare May 24, 1883. The official procession included such dignitaries as President Arthur and Governor Cleveland. New

RARE VIEW—The Brooklyn Bridge reigns majestic still against the New York skyline, its suspension beauty clearly visible. The famed span will be the scene of a D&H Canal Historical Society excursion Oct. 20. Plans call for a walk across the bridge escorted by city officials and a sightseeing tour by Circle Line boat, shown here plying the waters beneath the span which had its origins in D&H Canal engineering feats by John Roebeling.

York City and Brooklyn Borough officials marched across the magnificent span which was a tribute to the Roebelings, suspension principles gleaned on the old canal and of course, Rosendale cement buried deep in the East River mud.

Walking across the Brooklyn Bridge has been a popular pastime since early construction days. When just a catwalk for workmen existed across the spidery span, thrill seekers and the curious made the trip in droves. They finally got to be such a menace to the builders they had to be banned.

Lawrence's Stroll

A modern stroller of the bridge was Steve Lawrence who used the span as backdrop for a television production number Wednesday night on the Kraft Music Hall's salute to Brooklyn. There may not be a president, a governor or a popular show biz personality along on the Canal Society walk-through Oct. 20, but there promises to be an official escort.

In addition to the tour of the bridge, the day's festivities will include a Circle Line sightseeing jaunt around New York Island.

The schedule calls for a bus trip to New York; walk or ride across the Brooklyn Bridge, then on to Pier 83 for the Circle Line tour. Bus will leave from in front of Britts in the Kingston Shopping Plaza at 8 a. m. with pick up points at Rosendale Food Center at 8:15 and New Paltz Savings Bank, 8:30 a. m. Return trip from New York is expected to be at 4:30 p. m.

Open to Public

Paul M. Sturges of Stone Ridge, coordinator for the trip may be contacted for reservations and further information. Sturges noted that the trip is open to the public as well as canal society members. He advised those taking part should provide box lunch or snacks for the trip down. Lunches and refreshments will be available on the boat trip.

The following of Roebeling achievements is getting to be an annual autumn event for the canal society. Last year, members and interested friends followed the route of the canal to Honesdale, Pa. with particular note made of the Delaware crossing aqueduct.

The canal society has become very active in preservation and restoration moves throughout the county. Membership is open to anyone interested in preserving and promoting the heritage of the canal.

Fairgrounds Art

Area artists are invited to exhibit and sell paintings at the second annual Antique and Art Show and Sale sponsored by Rhinebeck Rotary Club at Dutchess County Fairgrounds, Saturday, Oct. 5.

Last year's event saw many artists from the Hudson Valley exhibiting a wide selection of art work. For the 1968 show, artists will exhibit works in the new show buildings recently completed at the fairgrounds just across the river. Local artists interested in displaying work may contact Peter H. Troy II, Route 2, Box 155, Rhinebeck.

The large art exhibit will be but one of the many attractions at the Antique and Art Show. Reputable antique dealers from five states have been invited to display and sell their wares at the October event. In addition, the Rhinebeck Historical Society will have an interesting exhibit with demonstrations, the Dutch Arms Drum and Fife Corps will parade and give an exhibition, and many vintage automobiles will be on display. Admission to the show is nominal and all proceeds will go toward the Rhinebeck Community Fund of the Rotary Club.

HUVREP Given $5,000 Award

The Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre in Woodstock has received a special grant from the New York State Council on the Arts in the amount of $5,000.

The Repertory Theatre, home-based at the Woodstock Playhouse, was the only theatre in the State, outside of New York City, to receive such a grant. John B. Hightower, the Council's executive director, said that this year's grants represent a 10 per cent increase over last year. Other recipients of grants from the Arts Council are the Paper-Bag Players, Chelsea Theatre Center, New Lafayette Theatre in Harlem and The Open Theatre.

The Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre also received approval from the New York State Council on the Arts for future touring programs and educational projects which it hopes will stimulate a tour of schools later this fall or in early winter.

Harry Deutsch, director of Development of the New York State Council on the Arts, in a letter to Edgar Rosenblum, executive director of The Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre, said: "You should know that it was necessary to turn down three requests for every one we were able to fund even in part. This is an indication of how highly the Council thought of your program. Please accept my congratulations, personally and on behalf of the Council, for the fine work you have done and are doing. I am pleased we can contribute towards it."

The picture was taken by her uncle, the late Jesse Ghear after a fire bared the structural bones of the span which was a forerunner of the Brooklyn Bridge. Estimates place the date of the photo around 1916. The Roebing portion of the crossing was started in 1849 and served until the demise of the canal at century's turn.

Opus 40—Ideal Environment

On Sunday, Sept. 29, between 12 noon and 5 p.m., Harvey Fite's panoramic outdoor sculpture titled Opus 40—located in High Woods—will be open to the public. Proceeds from this exhibition will go to the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre.

Originally, Opus 40 was envisioned as an ideal environment in which to display Fite's studio sculptures. However, as he worked on what had been an abandoned quarry since Michelangelo and creating Opus 40's sweeping ramps and descents, and including three pools of water, he realized that Opus 40 had outgrown his first idea. It had itself become an impressive sculptural achievement. And so Fite re-placed his studio pieces in a nearby woods.

Fite has received international acclaim for his sculpture, but he began his career as an actor. He worked locally at the Maverick Theatre, and toured with a professional repertory company. However, between acts, he enjoyed carving bits of wood. Eventually, he forsook a promising career in theatre for serious sculpting. Years later, in 1945, the Kingston Freeman wrote, "His carving, which began in the theatre, has become a driving force that is literally moving and brought in more. The number 40 refers to the total number of years he expects Opus 40 to take before its completion. When he is not working on the quarry, teaches sculpture at Bard College.

Fite's beginnings as a sculptor reveal the same genius and determination as his staggering achievement with Opus 40. Although he did study in Florence, he is essentially self-taught. As did the patient, ancient stonecutters, he carves directly from the block, refusing mechanical aids, using only hammer and chisel, a method, some critics say, virtually lost since Donatello. He has worked in various media, bronze, hard woods, ebony, and enjoyed much success in one-man shows at the most impressive galleries in Rome, Paris, and New York. He is familiar with Italian and Belgian marbles, but it is the native rock of Ulster County, bluestone, that excites him most and with which he began, 26 years ago, to create Opus 40 from the rubble of a quarry.

Fite's sculpture—most particularly Opus 40—has been the subject of countless newspaper and magazine articles. Working around the clock from April to November each year, he single-handedly brought order to the chaos of that quarry, reassembled the virtually ageless stones, without mortar, and brought in more. The number 40 refers to the total number of years he expects Opus 40 to take before its completion. When he is not working on the quarry, teaches sculpture at Bard College.

More than anything else, Opus 40 is dramatic in its magnitude. It sweeps, it leaps upward, its ramparts and its dominant center monolith defy the sky. It has been called an acropolis and it exemplifies Fite's own character and his concern and love for the primitive and natural environment, going back to his sojourn in Copan, Spanish Honduras, where he worked on reconstruction of the great Mayan sculptures. Opus 40 has been described as receiving "force from the sky, and then returning it out again." One critic said: "It is interesting that Mr. Fite's complete involvement with primitive art should have produced such a thoroughly 20th century phenomenon..."

Ruggedly Individual

If Opus 40, as writer Ralph Mosely had said, "is arrogantly self-sufficient; a rugged individual that is...proud about being itself," it is because the sprawling sculpture reflects its creator's enterprise, purpose and vision.

Area residents should certainly take advantage of this rarest of opportunities to view Fite's masterpiece. It may never be shown to the public again and the admission price is nominal for adults and children, while benefiting the worthy cause of the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre.

Tickets may be purchased at the quarry on Sept. 29 or ordered in advance by writing Box 268, Woodstock, N. Y. 12498, with checks made payable to the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre.

To get to Opus 40, take the Glasco Turnpike, from either Woodstock or Mount Marion, to the fork in the road at High Woods and follow the signs from there. In case of inclement weather, the benefit exhibition will be held Oct. 6.

MUSIC FILLED THE AIR—Beginning with a musicians' open house last Friday evening, The New Music Festival took over at Group Two-One Two, the two-year-old school/artists' colony and forum for all the arts on Route 212 between Woodstock and Saugerties. Then, as musicians and festival fans picnicked on blankets under the trees and across the fields of the 75-acre establishment, the "new" music held stage center all afternoon and half the night Saturday—and again on Sunday. Among the featured groups, which came from all points north, east, south and west was the AMS (Aboriginal Music Society). Unlike most of the musicians, who traveled miles to make the festival, AMS has been pretty much in-residence at 212 this season; felt perfectly at home. AMSers include (l-r) Juma, Sonny Suliman, Michael Berardi and Earl Cross. Gent in background is Eddie Johnson, standing in for Ali Arbar Khan. (Photo by Mike Sullivan).

New Classical LP Has a Beat

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Some of the new classical music currently out on records is from Russia, some of its American but both show the influence of the rock revolution.

To take the Russian first, a new Melodiya LP has the first recording of Dimitri Kabalevsky's "Cello Concerto No. 2," conducted by the composer, backed with Boccherini's "Cello Concerto in B Flat," (not new) with Arvid Jansons conducting the Leningrad Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra.

This Kabalevsky cello work isn't startlingly modern. It sounds modern, but it's still within the bounds of a traditional framework, and traditionalists should like it. It uses leitmotifs. There's the theme of a hero who struggles until he reaches serenity, though not complete serenity.

This Boccherini cello concerto is his most familiar, with its singing melodic lines. It is done here in the edition by Friedrich Grutzmacher of 1895 (in which he added some touches of his own).

Dmitri Shostakovich's second and third symphonies are only now recorded for the first time, on RCA, by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and Chorus conducted by Morton Gould.

In the "Second Symphony," written on the 10th anniversary of the October Revolution and dedicated to it, themes come out of a vortex of swirling sound.

The third is dedicated to May Day, the holiday of the working classes, but even with this patriotism, the two symphonies were too dissonant for Stalin.

The "Third Symphony" is more cheerful than the second, which isn't exactly gloomy. In the third, there are also some very sweet moments between stormy passages. Both end with choral sections.

In the United States, David Axelrod has written "Song of Innocence," out on Capitol, a blend of rock and classical that is strong on the classical side.

Axelrod wrote "Mass in F Minor" which the Electric Prunes recorded (on Reprise) and which listeners took seriously. Here, again, the music sounds classical and religious—closer to special music played in a Christian church than anything from an Eastern religion. It's reverent, as if describing a biblical story. One section, for example, sounds like deep contemplation, then from rulings, it sounds as if God is creating the world.

Weekend Brings CBS New-Season Shows

CBS kicks off its new season schedule officially this Monday evening. The network trails in new series shows; has plans for six in comparison to NBC's seven and ABC's eight. But CBS will more than make up for the small deficit by showcasing more than 100 special programs during the 1968-69 season.

The first of its new series airs Monday at 8:30 p. m. with "Here's Lucy," starring Lucille Ball and her two children, Desi Arnaz Jr. and Lucie Arnaz. Monday brings Ken Berry to the old home town as Sam Jones, farmer and town councilman, with Andy Griffith popping-in from time to time during the season to see the Mayberry folks.

Tuesday nights will take viewers to the post-Gold Rush era in California, as "Lancer" comes to the home screen at 7:30. The action is set in the San Joaquin Valley, where patriarch Murdoch Lancer, played by Andrew Duggan, summons his sons home to help him fight land pirates. Mr. Dithers. Another Thursday entry is "Hawaii Five-O," at 8 p. m., bringing a touch of old aloha and a taste of luau to the detecting business. Jack Lord is cast as the head of a state investigation unit with Honolulu as its headquarters and all of The Islands as its stamping ground.

As for CBS specials, they kick off this Sunday with a visit to "Vladimir Horowitz at Carnegie Hall," at 9 p. m. ELIZABETH TAYLOR is not yet ready to succumb to Richard Burton's "Angel of Death" ministrations in this scene from "Boom!" Liz plays the richest woman in the world in the film, playing this weekend only at Kingston's Community Theatre.

SAMMY DAVIS JR. is slightly annoyed with his partner in a nitery called the Salt & Pepper Club. Partner is Peter Lawford and the picture is "Salt & Pepper," which is now on screen at the Mayfair Theatre.

OUTLAW GUNS hold no terror for Lee Van Cleef as Mr. Ugly, a Texas lawman, in this scene from "The Big Gundown," the movie now playing on a double bill at the Sunset Drive-In with "The Ballad of Josie," a wild and woolly western featuring quick-draw Doris Day. With the 9W Drive-In closed for the season, the Sunset remains as the only outdoor film emporium still open for movie-going motorists.

Festival

The potpourri of pop and folk music that pours forth each year at that granddaddy of all happenings, the Newport Folk Festival up Rhode Island way, is caught in all its socio-cultural, colorful, rambunctious spontaneity in the documentary "Festival," now playing at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema.

Captured for posterity is the clutter and confusion of performers scrambling over each other to climb onto the outdoor platform to do their thing. The film abounds in musical acts, a wide variety of top entertainers, a vortex of sounds and styles, and the melting pot flavor of the audience which responds to Newport's folk with the spirit of a crowd at an old-time camp meeting.

If the film would have been more colorful in color, it is a memorable and excellent report in black-and-white on the Newport Jazz Festival, and culls material shot at festivals between 1963 and 1966. In pell mell array, audiences are treated to close-up shots of popular performers ranging from Joan Baez Bob Dylan to the Ed Young Fife and Drum Corps. By covering several years of festival fare, moviegoers get to see a larger and more distinguished representation of musicians doing their acts than they might see in any one year of attending the festival in person.

Baez and Bob

Probably the most conspicuous performers are Joan Baez and Bob Dylan, who are frequently intercut, performing chitchat and cut-ups with their musical friends. Miss Baez was once a frequent summertime visitor to Woodstock, and Mr. Dylan has lived there permanently for the past several years.

"Festival" has an impromptu flavor and a lightness that adds much to its charm. The only fault we could find with its documentary style was the fact that, to the viewer not too familiar with the more esoteric folk performers, they are not always clearly identified. It's easy to pick out Baez, Dylan and Donovan, Odetta and Peter, Paul and Mary and even Fannie Lou Hamer, whose reputation has been made more in civil rights and politics than in music—but often a singer who is not as well known comes on...and there is no way of knowing who he is. Subtitles carrying a performer's name at the bottom of the frame would have helped to enhance the entertainment and educational value of this film.

And if some of the interviews show that both performers and members of the audience are often at a loss for words, the action on stage proves none of the musicians are skimpy in their talent. All of the performers in "Festival" express themselves more than adequately in their music, and the audiences prove it by being thunderously responsive. So thunderous, in fact, that there must be a message here in the communication between the festival's performers and its atmosphere and the audiences, despite the fact that those in attendance seem otherwise relaxed and highly informal.

Boom!

With this film, playing at the Community Theatre, now open Friday to Sundays only, Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor resign from the acting profession and turn, instead, to camp entertainment. Worse, they only try to do the latter and, in the trying, manage to look like a couple of amateurs hamming it up at a small town charity frolic.

"Boom!" is the team's version of Tennessee Williams' "The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Anymore," which was not one of the playwright's better efforts in the first place. The movie proves worse than the play and it's a floperoo all the way.

Liz plays Flora Goforth, a decaying harridan with six tycoon husbands in her past. Rich beyond belief, she's spending the summer on her private Mediterranean island in a sumptuous villa guarded by a sinister dwarf (Michael Dunn) and a pack of killer dogs. Liz does a lot of high octave screaming at servants and a lot of tinkering with tape recorders until Chris Flanders (Burton) hoves into view to disrupt her island paradise. He plays a sort of artsy-craftsy type who writes poems and makes mobiles...and is so mystical that we lost him in his first scene.

If he has another vocation, it seems to be that of some sort of holy man sent to help people ease their way into death. With LIZ Camille-ing into her handkerchief constantly, she would appear to be the next jet set member in line for demise.

But Liz (or Flora) is still Liz (or Flora) and—aging or not—would rather play boudoir games with Burton than be helped along on that final journey.

Your attention is bound to wander from this ambiguous and metaphysical popcorn but, if you decide to see it anyway, you could salvage something by focusing on the $2,000,000 worth of genuine Bulgari jewels used in the film, the lavishly fitted out genuine villa with monkeys, myna birds and real sitar-strumming Indians, and the high camp relieved only by an amusing scene featuring Noel Coward as the Witch of Capri.

Salt and Pepper

Sammy Davis Jr. and Peter Lawford team as Salt and Pepper, London nightclub owners, in this spy spoof, currently playing at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre. The film's plot involves them in a conspiracy to overthrow Britain.

Although their nightclub is popular, Salt (Davis) and Pepper (Lawford) are always in trouble with the police for minor violations. But now they're suddenly held responsible for a grandiose conspiracy to take-over the English government. The incriminating evidence begins to pile up when two corpses are found in the club. Before S and P can prove their innocence in the matter, they're being chased by Scotland Yard, the Secret Service and the real conspirators.

Spoofing all the spy spoofs that ever did any spoofing, the farce makes ample use of escape gadgets, comic sleuthing, broad gags, and casual bedroom activity a la James Bond, Matt Helm and Our Man Flint.

This is a real fun movie and, although we would have liked to have heard the talented Sammy sing more than just two songs, it was almost enough that he danced a lot with the scantily costumed girls in the lively night-club scenes...and that he sported a variety of far-out costumes of his own.

The Big Gundown

This western film brings Lee Van Cleef to town as Mr. Ugly, a man whose menacing appearance fits the characterization of a deadly manhunter. Now playing at the Sunset Drive-In, "The Big Gundown" is all about Texas lawman Jonathan Corbett (Van Cleef) and his decision to take on the job of tracking down a footloose young Mexican, alleged to have murdered a young girl. The Mexican, as played by Thomas Milian, is attractive and ingenious enough to escape trap after trap set by Corbett. When the cold professional lawman finally meets up with the man he's been hunting, viewers are in for a plot twist and a surprise ending. Suffice it to say it would spoil it for audiences for this reviewer to go into all the twists and turns involving the story's criminals and witnesses.

The Ballad of Josie

Doris Day romps through "The Ballad of Josie," Technicolor western on the Sunset's double bill, in a pair of tight fitting jeans and high heel cowboy boots with a gun strapped to her waist. And there are some pretty good laughs as Miss Day plays a lady rancher who introduces sheep to a traditional cattle country. Abetted by costar Peter Graves, and opposed by George Kennedy, she turns a formerly stable community into a hot bed of female protestors demanding suffrage and equal rights for women. It's Doris' first western since "Calamity Jane," 15 years ago...and has her donning a

Gerardia Show:

Chartering the Vast Unknown

Helen Gerardia, painter-print-maker of Woodstock and New York, will have her sixth one-man show at Bodley Gallery, Madison Avenue, New York City, from Oct. 1 to Oct. 12.

The exhibit will include work done in plymer and oil, as well as prints; covers the three year period since the artist's last show at the Bodley. A plane trip around the world two years ago has been a factor in the choice of a space theme by Miss Gerardia.

PARK EAST recently previewed the show with these words: "Art renders visible the invisible world. Helen Gerardia's exhibit is a stirring presentation of the idea. She has rendered visible the great dark areas of the astronauts' space. Space is Gerardia's great interest — and she has chartered the unknown, infinite reaches with subtle ordering and precision and with great beauty. She has placed a "grid" upon the limitless space of the canvas to make us share in her experience of pleasure as she traverses the heavens. Space is made visible by the controlled path of lines which she renders in pristine colors and black and white. She takes us into, upward, beyond with a sense of urgent speed, in sharp geometric patterns, never confusing, always dynamic. She expresses with her own intensity of vision, the space concepts of today. A great show to start the season."

During October, Miss Gerardia is also having a retrospective show of her prints, at Poughkeepsie's Marist College, where she will lecture Oct. 13. Another show of lithographs and one-of-a-kind prints will be held at Memphis

The same craftsmanship is apparent in all his work, but in his later years, he becomes less concerned with his audience, he digs deeper, allows and recognizes the value of accident; his style loosens and becomes more open. He changes the focus of his view moving in closer to the subject; the hand once much quicker than the brain becomes its servant; coloring is simplified; influences are diluted; and he leaves us with original works of art.

Elegance of Style

Of particular interest are the black line drawings, such as "Rosamunde" and "Protagonist." They have a personal elegance of style that is as rare as it is enduring. To a painter, works of this high quality happen as the result of endless searching, if they happen at all.

The feeling of sadness that runs through much of this work impinges upon the viewer in a way similar to a collection of medieval armour; the very skill and beauty of it is precious, in the best sense of that word. It comes to us at the end of an age that still believed there were values and answers — that there was a sense of purpose and dignity in living. It was founded in that faith and yet knew it not to be true.

A different sadness is felt now in the monochrome giantism we are so freely served in the world's galleries. And our armour, the giant unadorned rocket, is not human in a medieval way — only the crudely chalked obscenities on its side serve as a reminder of lost humanity.

There is a strange and needed comfort in the bravery and sense of celebration on the walls of the WAA Gallery currently. It is in all a rewarding and meaningful show. (Reviewed by Geoffrey L. Hawkins)

Stamps in the News

AP Newsfeatures

This year's American Painting Series postage stamp will feature a detail from "The Battle of Bunker's Hill" by John Trumbull. The new six-center will be issued Oct. 18 with first-day ceremonies at New Haven Conn., where the original hangs at Yale.

Artist Trumbull, who had seen the smoke of battle above Breed's hill in 1775, painted his interpretation 12 years later in the London studio of Benjamin West. Trumbull is best known, however, for his "Declaration of Independence" which hangs in the rotunda of the Capitol in Washington.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, New Haven, Conn. 06510. The envelope to the Postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers 6c Battle of Bunker's Hill." Requests must be postmarked no later than Oct. 18.

Postmaster General W. Marvin Watson announced plans to issue a six-cent postage stamp on Oct. 5 which will salute the American Indian.

The new stamp to be released in conjunction with the dedication of the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, D.C., will reproduce a portrait of Chief Joseph, the great Nez Perce warrior, as painted by Cyrenius Hall.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send their addressed envelopes, together with remittance, to the Postmaster, Washington, D.C. prior to Oct. 5.

Fiji has issued four new stamps to commemorate the 40th anniversary of Kingford Smith's landing in Albert Park, reports the Crown Agents in Washington. The two pence features Capt. C. Gordon Fenton's Simmonds-Spartan, the first commercial plane in Fiji. The six pence shows the Fiji Airways' new Hawker-Siddeley 748. The Fokker Southern Cross, the first trans-Pacific aircraft to pass through Fiji, adorns the one shilling stamp which also shows the portraits of the four crew members. The two shillings depict the Lockheed Altair monoplane (Lady Southern) used by Kingsford-Smith in the first single engine trans-Pacific flight from Australia to the United States, passing through Fiji.

Three stamps have been issued by Singapore to honor its third year of independence. The design is the same for the three different denominations. Featured is a Singapore worker against a map of the island. Captions, however, are different on each. One is in Malay and English. The second is in English and Chinese. The third is in Tamil and English.

Norway has issued two new stamps to honor the 100th anniversary of the Norwegian Lutheran Home Mission Society. The 40 ore is green. The 65 ore is red, violet and blue. Both stamps show a heart and a cross as symbols of the Society.

George M's Balcony

Underprivileged children have been seeing certain performances of the "George M!" musical at the Palace Theater this summer under auspices of the city's Urban Action Task Force and producer David Black.

The huge Palace has a second balcony of 301 seats which dates from its years as a vaudeville house. When the theater was converted to legitimate stage use three years ago, it was decided to keep the second balcony out of circulation.

It is from this balcony that the children from various neighborhoods are seeing the show on special occasions. After performances, star Joel Grey and other cast members talk with the youngsters.

Poems That Live and Move

WHEN LINCOLN LEFT THE CAPITAL And other Ballads. By Russell Pettis Askue. Twenty poems and 12 illustrations by the author. Philadelphia, Dorrance & Co. $3.00

Narrative poems have always been the most interesting of rhymed and rhythmical compositions. In this new book all of the poems are alive, most of them set in time-honored ballad stanzas. Every one of them involves action of some kind. From the patriotic fantasy of Abraham Lincoln meeting with four of the founding fathers whom he greatly admired to the strangely fateful "Frozen Weathercock," there is not a single dull or idle line.

The reader is carried from a Biblical scene to the cab of a locomotive, where he shares with the engineer the haunting aftermath of a tragedy, and from a ballad of knighthood to a parody of "Casey At The Bat."

Here are children, young lovers, soldiers, stevedores, hillbillies, horses to admire and dogs to wonder at, and "Six Men Of Morgantown" to present a contrast to human life and justice today.

The Essential Line

Russell Pettis Askue has a terse style in keeping with the traditional ballad form. His illustrations, likewise, are pared to the essential line. He has utilized this creative economy to produce poems which live and move.

Mr. Askue, who is the father of the Hurley-Kingston pediatrician, Dr. William E. Askue, has had more than 400 poems in leading magazines, newspapers, literary quarterlies and poetry anthologies. His work has drawn enthusiastic acclaim from many readers, including Mary Margaret McBride and two late great Americans, Herbert Hoover and Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz. One of his patriotic pieces was set to music by a New York composer and sung over the radio by a Metropolitan baritone.

The author's previous volume of verse, "The Brown Thrush Sings," also illustrated by him, is now out of print but available in a few libraries, including the New York Public Library, the Kingston Public Library, and the little neighborhood library at Hurley. (Reviewed by John Frenson)

Summertime Island, by Erskine Caldwell (World $4.95): An amusing little story of a fishing trip that changes the lives of the three men and the boy who went for a few days of catfishing.

The 16-year-old Steve was taken along by his uncle who wanted to have some man-to-man talks with him about life and sex. But Steve didn't need the lectures—he learned more from the evidence of his eyes and ears and the actions of the adults around him.

Among the serious lessons he learned at first hand was how it was to be a Negro in the South. The Negro in the fishing party was Duke, a schoolteacher, who nevertheless "knew his place." The tyrannical uneducated white man who kept reminding Duke of his place was Troy, a thoroughly vicious character. When Duke saved Troy from drowning, Troy reacted typically by turning even meaner.

Caldwell sermonizes a bit in this tale and some of his characters seem more symbolic than real, but the story makes its points and entertains along the way.

Theater Concert By Judith Raskin

Judith Raskin, Metropolitan Opera star, will make her first Central New York appearance in a concert at the University Regent Theatre in Syracuse on Wednesday evening, Oct. 9, at 8:30 p. m. This concert is sponsored by the Smith College Club of Syracuse for the benefit of a special fund which provides scholarships to Smith College and recipient of an honorary degree for her alma mater, will include some "firsts" in her Syracuse program in honor of the benefit.

The singer became a star overnight when she made her debut in 1962 with the Metropolitan Opera company. Since then, she has had equally outstanding success as a recitalist and has become one of America's favorite guest artists with all the major American orchestras and most celebrated conductors. She has won international acclaim for her performance in the operatic capitals of Europe.

Miss Raskin was nominated by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences as the outstanding new classical recording artist of 1964. She is a featured soloist with major orchestras on the Columbia, RCA, Epic and London labels. Stravinsky chose her for the role of Anne in his own opera. Wherever she has sung, Miss Raskin has been internationally acclaimed as "the great American beauty with the great American voice."

Theater Concert By Judith Raskin

Judith Raskin, Metropolitan Opera star, will make her first Central New York appearance in a concert at the University Regent Theatre in Syracuse on Wednesday evening, Oct. 9, at 8:30 p. m. This concert is sponsored by the Smith College Club of Syracuse for the benefit of a special fund which provides scholarships to Smith College and recipient of an honorary degree for her alma mater, will include some "firsts" in her Syracuse program in honor of the benefit.

The singer became a star overnight when she made her debut in 1962 with the Metropolitan Opera company. Since then, she has had equally outstanding success as a recitalist and has become one of America's favorite guest artists with all the major American orchestras and most celebrated conductors. She has won international acclaim for her performance in the operatic capitals of Europe.

Miss Raskin was nominated by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences as the outstanding new classical recording artist of 1964. She is a featured soloist with major orchestras on the Columbia, RCA, Epic and London labels. Stravinsky chose her for the role of Anne in his own opera, "The Nightingale".

Wherever she has sung, Miss Raskin has been internationally acclaimed as "the great American beauty with the great American voice."

Procter Center Opens for Fall

The first exhibition of the fall semester at Bard's Procter Art Center is now open and features a campus-wide sampling of student work, says Matt Phillips, associate professor of Art at the Annandale-on-Hudson college and director of the Art Center. Phillips, widely recognized as an authority on Monotype, and artistic medium which falls between painting and print-making, will have an illustrated essay on the art in the October issue of Artist's Proof, the leading magazine on graphic art, and has fall exhibitions scheduled at the Pane Vito Gallery in Philadelphia, and at the Three Arts Gallery in Poughkeepsie. The current show at Bard will run through Sept. 30, and includes a representative cross-section of student work at all levels. The Art Center is open daily from 10 to 5 p.m., and the public is cordially invited, to view the display.

Title Change

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The title of Warner Bros. new thriller has been changed from "You Can't Win 'Em All" to "Sudden Death," which stars Paul Burke and Carol Lynley.

Busy Wyler

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Director William Wyler, who recently completed "Funny Girl" with Barbra Streisand, has signed a contract to direct three additional features for Columbia Pictures.

Greatest Disaster in U.S. History?

(TEMPO was so impressed with the research that went into this article on the old canal days and the great Johnstown flood of May 31, 1889, that we reprint it for our readers with the approval of the local Delaware & Hudson Canal Historical Society, High Falls, through whose auspices the article was submitted to us. It was authored by Donald Ross and Alden W. Gould, who give full acknowledgement to the microfilm files of The Kingston Daily Freeman in the Kingston Library as the source material used for their story.)

Before the teleprinter was perfected, newspapers, perforce, largely carried the news of the previous day. The Kingston Daily Freeman of May 31, 1889, contained several short news items pertaining to a tremendous spring storm that lashed the northeastern part of the country. Wabash, Ind., had the heaviest rainfall in years for two days. Benton Harbor, Mich., was blanketed with six inches of snow, killing vegetables and ruining the fruit crop. In Hagerstown, Md., a terrific storm passed over that blew down buildings and fences and wrecked crops and the telegraph circuits. In Elmira, N. Y., the Chemung River was reported to be 18 feet above normal levels, and the Genessee River was at the highest level in years at Rochester.

On May 31, 1889, occurred the greatest disaster in the history of the United States . . . the Great Johnstown Flood . . . the direct result of the widespread storm and the collapse of the South Fork Dam on the Conemaugh River in western Pennsylvania. The outside world learned of it on June 1, and for days afterwards the news of it stunned people the world around.

Lake Conemaugh

Twenty miles up the Conemaugh River, beyond the villages of South Fork and Mineral Point, was huge Lake Conemaugh, 300 feet higher in elevation than the City of Johnstown. It was constructed by the state before 1850 to supply water for the Western Division of the Main Line Canal into Pittsburgh. The dam was 900 feet or more long, 380 feet thick at its base, tapering to 35 feet at the top, 90 feet high, and built of stone, wood and gravel. It was considered to be of excellent construction. When the reservoir was full, its length was 4 miles by 1½ miles wide. Capacity was 16 million tons of water (not gallons).

It had three waste wiers at the bottom that drained into the river. Big stone arches housed the gates that drew the water from the bottom of the dam. The dam had a spillway at the side to control overflow, but the original design conception relied primarily upon the waste wiers for this purpose.

The Pennsylvania Railroad purchased the Western Division Canal in 1859. A short time later both the canal and the dam were abandoned by the railroad. The dam and lake lay idle for awhile, but then a wealthy group of Pittsburgh sportsmen purchased the lake and used it as a recreation area, stocking it with fish. The group kept the wiers closed so as not to lose the fish. The spillway bled off excess waters. For years people of the valley feared the dam. Water from more than 100 square miles drained down the watershed and was impounded by the South Fork Dam. Raging waters in the past had often flooded the river-hugging towns in the narrow valley. It was only natural that the safety of the dam was a matter of concern. Investigators had on several occasions checked it and, despite the need for some repairs, had turned in reports attesting to its good condition. The reports to the contrary, there were many who felt the dam was in poor shape.

Over the Top

The continual rain the last two or three days in May brought the river levels to the tops of their banks. At 1 p. m., Friday, May 31 an immense lumber boom burst on Stony Creek, north of Johnstown, releasing held-back waters and thousands upon thousands of logs which swept downstream and battered down houses as if they were made of paper. Some lives were lost, of course, due to this increase in river levels, but it merely set the stage for the havoc and tremendous loss in human life which was to follow shortly.

Around noon on Friday, May 31, water began spilling over the top of South Fork Dam—at its center—the spillway being unable to handle the volumes of water rising in the lake. This water began undermining the base of the dam. In the opinion of observers at the site, the dam would not hold much longer. To them it was a matter of just hours, or even minutes, before the dam would give way. Soon, water started to leak out of the bottom of the dam, too, and this confirmed their worst fears.

At about 1:30 p. m. a nameless Paul Revere started down the valley pike on horseback, warning valley residents to head for high ground because the dam was going to burst. (Before he reached Johnstown he was swept off his horse in the raging flood waters and lost—as were most of those who paid him no heed.)

When the dam began to crumble at the top, a few minutes before 3 p. m., Freight Agent Deckert, of the village of South Fork, sent a telegraph message begging the people of Johnstown to take to the hills. Such messages had been sent down for each flood since the lake was made. The warnings so often proved unnecessary that little attention was paid to it this time. Yet, the RR Agent in the Johnstown Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad did read the message to some 600 people in the station. Most of them rushed for a nearby hill and thereby lived through the disaster that was just 20 minutes in arriving.

At 3 p. m. the dam broke asunder in the center with the noise of a thousand cannons. Mr. Crouse, proprietor of the South Fork Fishing Club Hotel, said "that when the dam broke the water seemed to leap, hardly touching the ground. For a while its front seemed like a solid wall 20 feet high."

Down the valley with an awesome roar came this stampeding wall of water, traveling at 60 miles per hour and taking absolutely everything in its path regardless of size or weight. Houses, barns, stores, factories, animals and every human being in or near its terrible thrust were engulfed and torn apart. Three trains at sidings were knocked off the tracks and swept downstream like toys. The screams of people seeing loved ones disappear into the boiling flood waters could not be heard above the tumultuous torrent. There were almost no survivors from amongst those floating downstream on rooftops, planks or anything that provided buoyancy.

The flood carried entire towns with it. Just five houses were left standing in two upstream communities.

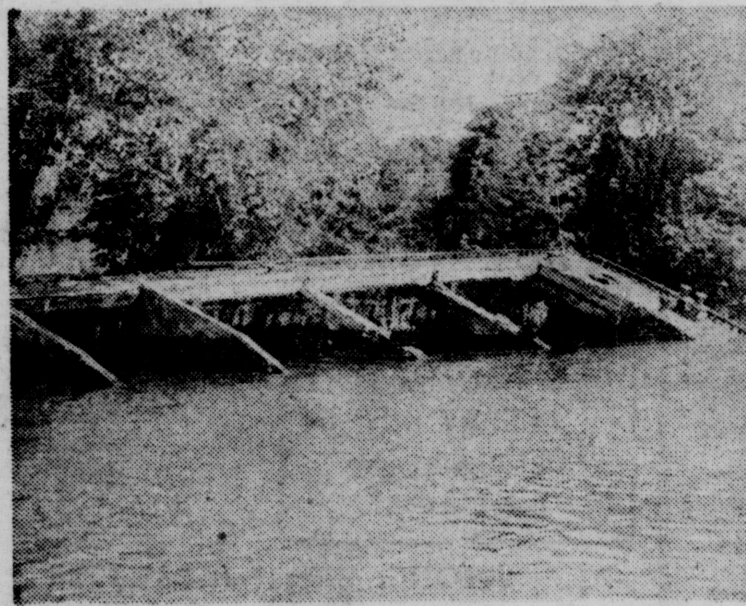

This tremendous mass of floating debris, riding the crest, bore down on Johnstown, a city of some 20,000. There it lodged against the railroad bridge just below the center of town. Higher and higher rose the debris, backing up the floodwaters so that over forty feet inundated the city.

Somehow this monstrous pile

'THE CANAWLERS' and the canal boats like this one which once plied the Delaware & Hudson Canal here in Ulster County escaped both damage and destruction in the flood of floods. While many of the waterways in the northeast rampaged and raged, D&H men—crying "Low Bridge!" along the way—brought in their boats laden with tons of coal, as usual.

SUNKEN COAL BARGE IN RONOUT CREEK today revives memories of the fate suffered by barges on the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal when the great Johnstown flood sent them floating out of the C&O canal and down the raging torrent, destroying locks and gates, canal walls and bridges.

Opera - in - Residence Carousel

An 80 photograph color slide carousel and eight panels of visual material presenting the activities of the Opera-In Residence phase of Sullivan County's "Festival of the Arts" have been on display for the past two weeks in the Sullivan County National Bank, Liberty. The bank display was set up so as to be visible to sidewalk passerbys, and shoppers and others were able to view the slide presentation at all times throughout the day and night since the show was continuously projected.

The continuing "Festival of the Arts" is an Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Title III project being used as a statewide pilot performing arts festival program of the Division of the Humanities and Arts. It has the cooperation of the N. Y. State Education Department and the Lincoln Center for Performing Arts, and will eventually encompass Ulster and other counties.

With the opera-in-residence phase of the festival proving so successful, the second county-wide part of the project will be a two week Dance-Ballet program presented by the New York City Ballet, Center of Music and Drama, Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. The dance module will involve all public and non-public schools and students in Sullivan County and will begin Sept. 23.

An orientation session on the festival is taking place today for teams of teachers, coordinators, administrators and social agency personnel at Liberty High School. Highlight is a narrated "Dance Lecture Demonstration on Ballet" by Eugene Tanner, Center of Music and Dance director of education, assisted by seven N. Y. City Ballet dancers.

RAPT ATTENTION was focused on opera demonstration being given in a Monticello classroom as Arts Festival offered 10 performances in area elementary and high schools. Students paid close attention to narrator William Nix, manager of the Opera Studio, as he commented on operatic excerpts sung by young Lincoln Center performers. Quartet of singers did arias and numbers (mostly in English) from The Barber of Seville, West Side Story, and Rigoletto. Alternating between on-stage performances and attending classes to answer students' questions on the personal lives of singers, their training and why they sing opera, the Festival brought a rewarding experience that was a one-to-one encounter of performer to child/student, even when discussion centered on rock and roll. As part of the Cultural Planning. "The idea of art intergrated with and subordinated to urban planning is of fundamental importance to our age: it will remove art from the esoteric ambience of galleries and museums. The object of the council is to bring contemporary art and the masses together through total planning," Goeritz explained in announcing this idea.

The gathering is a non-competitive meeting of contemporary sculptors wishing to make a personal contribution to a common ideal. Individual works will be executed in the Central Plaza of the Olympic Village, and in various plazas adjoining the competition sites for the Games. The Committee for the Olympics has provided the necessary materials, tools, labor and technical assistance for executing the sculptures.

The construction phase of the project began June 1, and each of the sculptural masterpieces is scheduled to be completed by the opening of the Games. On permanent display following the Games, they will remain as a lasting sculptural reminder of Olympic concord in Mexico City.

Guests of honor of the Mexican government for the cultural program include three of the most famous artists in the world today: Alexander Calder of the U.S., German Cueto of Mexico, and Henry Moore of Great Britain.

Tempo readers will get a chance to see the completed sculptures when the Olympics are televised over ABC next month.

One of the conditions imposed upon the sculptors was that they design their works for execution in concrete. This naturally influenced the committee's choice of artists, so that only those who had experience in working with concrete, or whose general style lent itself to this particular medium, are participating. The final selection of the sculptors was made by two architects, critics and others. The 20 to 60 feet in height scale was dictated by the original idea of creating a route of about 11 miles along the southern part of the Anillo Periferico, a super highway that encircles Mexico City. The sculptures are being constructed on the open landscape about one mile apart. At the immediate approaches to the Olympic Village, they are closer together.

The visiting artists will decide, during sessions of the "International Meeting of Sculptors," which will be held prior to the opening of the Games on Oct. 12, on the final touches for the project: the kind of finish to be applied to the sculptures, their color, the landscaping, the lighting, and other matters.

At this meeting sculptor Mathias Goeritz will suggest the establishment of an International Council for Artistic

Enormous Sculptures Form Olympic Route

As part of the Cultural Program of the Games of the XIX Olympiad, 18 sculptors from around the world are building huge sculptures (20 to 60 feet high) along an 11 mile Route of Friendship approaching the Olympic Village in Mexico City. This unique international meeting of sculptors is hardly the typical symposium, but rather constitutes a permanent urban design program of monumental proportions to be completed just before the opening of the Olympic Games on Oct. 12.

The 18 sculptors invited for the Olympics in Mexico are the most distinguished exponents of contemporary monumental sculpture integrated with architecture from 16 countries. They are creating individual works inspired by Olympic ideals. Each sent a model of a monumental sculpture in iron, aluminum, silver, plaster, wood, terra-cotta or cardboard. These were studied by a board of Mexican coordinators and professional men headed by architects and sculptors for use on the "Route of Friendship" project.

One of the conditions imposed upon the sculptors was that they design their works for execution in concrete. This naturally influenced the committee's choice of artists, so that only those who had experience in working with concrete, or whose general style lent itself to this particular medium, are participating. # Greatest Disaster in U.S.

of jetsam caught on fire. At 11 p. m. the blockade was 3/4 mile long and 40 high. It had become a raging inferno. Occasional gunshots were heard as those lucky few blew out their brains in preference to being roasted alive. It was impossible to attempt rescue. No power on earth could give assistance to the hundreds screaming for help.

10 Roaring Niagaras

Water spread out and created a tremendous whirlpool, stronger than 10 Niagaras, carrying houses around in circles, smashing them up against each other, with people on roofs praying for help while others slid off into the raging waters never to be seen again. Then, when a house lodged finally against the bridge, it became part of the funeral pyre.

Over 2,000 souls were cremated on the railroad bridge. In all, over 10,000 persons lost their lives in the Johnstown Flood, although it was impossible ever to determine the true total. For weeks and even months afterwards bodies and parts of bodies were found in the sand bars created by the swirling waters. Many were never located. To this day it remains the greatest single-day tragedy in the nation's history—an awful conspiracy of the elements for ruin and death.

For weeks afterwards the Freeman carried stories on the flood. It was reported that the first physicians to reach the city when the waters receded pleaded with the firemen not to attempt to extinguish the bridge fire; that it was better not to have to attempt to save the lives of terribly burned individuals who might still be alive. The firemen's point of view prevailed—but there were no survivors anyway.

Then, as now, looting took place afterwards. The governor was afraid to send in troops to control looting, at first, for fear this action would incite rioting.

The weather turned cool after May 31st and the rain continued. The cool weather was considered a blessing, as it retarded the decomposition of the bodies of the thousands of victims.

Sidewalk Superintendents

The Freeman of June 4, 1889 carried a report from Williamsport, Penn. to the effect that 80 people were swept to their deaths when a bridge spanning the Susquehanna River collapsed. The victims were watching the rolling waters below from a good vantage point!

On June 6th the Freeman reported that 1,000 funerals were held the previous day in Johnstown. Oxen were used to pull the funeral wagons—six coffins each. It reported also that a Coroner's Jury had proceeded to South Forks to examine the dam. The general impression was that the jury would find the Pittsburgh Fishing Club guilty of gross negligence, and that many suits against the millionaire club would follow.

On June 11th, in an editorial called "What Broke The Conemaugh Dam?" the opinion of Professor D. M. Greene, Director of R.P.I. was cited. Prof. Greene, an expert on dam design and construction, concluded that the design was up to engineering standards of the times. He felt that its failure was attributable to the fact that the dam was one foot lower at its center than at each end, and to the fact that the spillway did permit water to spill over the dam's lip at the center; it was the phenomenal and overwhelmingly great amount of water that was responsible, a matter that could not be foreseen or provided against (in the design of the spillway).

In an earlier editorial, that of June 1st, the Freeman left no doubt about who should take the blame for the tragedy. It commented that the lake was owned by a number of Pittsburgh gentlemen and kept for fishing purposes, and this sufficiently explained the calamity. "Years of constant wearing had made it weak, and the extra pressures of a day's rain caused it to burst. The propriety of gathering up a mighty volume of water right over the heads of 20,000 people, for fishing purposes merely, may be questioned. There is an awful responsibility for this wholesale murder in the Conemaugh Valley, in which the lost lives already have been counted by hundreds and may reach into the thousands."

A writer of a story in the June 5th Freeman gave as his version the cause of the flood: "Millions and millions of logs explain the cause of the disaster. Twenty years ago our forests were denuded. The sun dried up the once spongy bottom that absorbed the great rains and held them in check, and now when they fall they pour swiftly over the dry and hard surface into the rivers. A hundred Arbor Days a year would not in centuries restore what has been lost."

Ulster Contributed

In the days following the tragedy, relief funds poured in from all parts of the country and from Europe. The Freeman reported the names of all area contributors, and they were many.

The great storm caused havoc everywhere. Pennsylvania and Maryland seem to have taken its brunt. Most of Harrisburg, Pa., where the Susquehanna is over a mile wide, was under several feet of water. Millions of logs and millions of board feet of sawed lumber floated down the Susquehanna, much of it reaching tidewater in Chesapeake Bay where it blocked harbor mouths. Temporary sawmills were erected along the Bay to process the timber, for this was more economical than shipping it elsewhere by railroad. Branded timber was accountable—unbranded timber was "finders keepers."

The Potomac River from Cumberland, Maryland to Washington, D. C. also had its share of nature on the rampage. The river drains a very large watershed from the mountains in the western part of Maryland. The Potomac flooded to 3 1/2 feet above the high mark of the 1877 flood. The Chesapeake & Ohio Canal runs along the north bank of the river for 180 miles. In this flood the waters rose above the level of the canal. Barges were floated out of the canal and down the raging torrent, destroying locks and gates, ripping out the canal walls and bridges, even wrecking bridges that spanned the Potomac itself. From Williamsport, Maryland to Georgetown the canal was a complete wreck. The Freeman of June 4th said that the C & O Canal could never be used as a waterway again without being entirely rebuilt.

Our own Delaware and Hudson Canal, how did it fare in this week of destruction unlimited? The June 4th Freeman, in the column, "On The Docks," stated: "There arrived at tidewater, at Edyville, yesterday, 43 Delaware and Hudson canal boats. Laden with 5,850 tons of coal." Whatever damage to the canal occurred was so minor as not to have impeded navigation. A check of "Coalboats To Tidewater" reveals no mention of canal damage during this period. Seemingly the Rondout Valley was spared.

WAGONS SUCH AS THESE, most of them moved by oxen, were used to pull funeral wagons—holding six coffins each when 1,000 mass funerals were held June 5, 1889 in Johnstown to bury some of the victims of the flood that was the greatest single-day tragedy in U.S. history.

The next time you hear the old saying, "Run for the hills, the dam is bust,"—perhaps on a TV skit to draw a laugh—remember that it dates back to the Great Johnstown Flood. 10,000 men, women and children never reached the hills!

XIX Olympiad

WAA Names 2 Winners

Woodstock Artists Association has announced that the Sally Jacobs Memorial Award of $300 has been given to painter Sidney Laufman, and the Kuniyoshi Fund Award of $100 has been voted to artist Gladys Brodsky.

Laufman's reputation as a painter is international. A Woodstock resident for many years, he has also divided his time between New York and abroad. He received the Jacobs Award on the basis of the best painting shown in 1968. Only nine painters were chosen by the WAA board of directors to complete for the honor. They were: Frank Alexander, Gladys Brodsky, Clare Bush, Edward Chavez, Anick du Charme, Carolyn Haeblerlin, Ann

Roberts, Bernard Steffen and Laufman. Named to the jury to make the award were John Taylor, Manuel Bromberg and Bruce Currie. The Jacobs Award was established by Woodstock residents, Phoebe and Belmont Tobin.

The Kuniyoshi Award was presented by the Kuniyoshi Fund Committee composed of Sarah Kuniyoshi, Arnold Blanch, Bruce Currie, Ethel Magafan and Sidney Laufman.

Kuniyoshi Award winner Gladys Brodsky studied under the famed artist for whom the award is named; has exhibited widely and won many previous honors. She is the wife of the well known painter Walter Plate and, as Mrs. Plate, has taught art for the past 10 years in the Onteora Central Schools.

WAA Names 2 Winners

Woodstock Artists Association has announced that the Sally Jacobs Memorial Award of $300 has been given to painter Sidney Laufman, and the Kuniyoshi Fund Award of $100 has been voted to artist Gladys Brodsky.

Laufman's reputation as a painter is international. A Woodstock resident for many years, he has also divided his time between New York and abroad. He received the Jacobs Award on the basis of the best painting shown in 1968. Only nine painters were chosen by the WAA board of directors to complete for the honor. They were: Frank Alexander, Gladys Brodsky, Clare Bush, Edward Chavez, Anick du Charme, Carolyn Haeblerlin, Ann

Roberts, Bernard Steffen and Laufman. Named to the jury to make the award were John Taylor, Manuel Bromberg and Bruce Currie. The Jacobs Award was established by Woodstock residents, Phoebe and Belmont Tobin.

The Kuniyoshi Award was presented by the Kuniyoshi Fund Committee composed of Sarah Kuniyoshi, Arnold Blanch, Bruce Currie, Ethel Magafan and Sidney Laufman.

Kuniyoshi Award winner Gladys Brodsky studied under the famed artist for whom the award is named; has exhibited widely and won many previous honors. She is the wife of the well known painter Walter Plate and, as Mrs. Plate, has taught art for the past 10 years in the Onteora Central Schools.

Brilliant Piano Duo

The famed duo piano team, Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin will present a concert at Bard College on Tuesday, Oct. 1, at 8:30. Their program, which they will be presenting in a very limited number of concerts in 1968-1969 and which will open New York City's Hunter College Duo Piano Series on Oct. 22, will include Rachmaninoff's Fantaisie and Suite No. 2, in honor of the 25th anniversary of the composer's death, Mozart's D Major Sonata, and Schubert's Lebensstürme and Fantaisie in F Minor.

When Vronsky and Babin (in private life Mr. and Mrs. Victor Babin) were among the first artists chosen to play in the opening week of New York's Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, the event preceded an era of new triumphs for the pianists. With such orchestras as the Cleveland, Indianapolis and Phoenix Symphonies and with recitals throughout the country, the couple have continued to add new entries to their catalogue of successes and to prove that the Newsweek statement, made at the time of their American debut 30 years ago, still holds true: unchallenged is the fact that Vronsky and Babin are "The most brilliant two-piano team of our generation."

Parallel with concert activities, they are active as educators in Cleveland, Ohio, where Dr. Babin is Director of the Cleveland Institute of Music, while Miss Vronsky is artist-in-residence at the same institution.

Bard College is pleased to open this concert to the community.

Tempo Readers Write

Interested in Dance

Dear Editor:

I was glad to read in the Aug. 31 issue of Tempo a letter written by Larry Humphries from Lee, Mass., thanking you for informing Tempo readers of the events at the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival. Certainly all of us in this area, who are particularly interested in dance, want to thank you for this coverage.

Ted Shawn, founder and director of Jacob's Pillow, and his wife, Ruth St. Denis are really the father and mother of contemporary dance in this country. In 1915 they formed the Denishawn School and Company. Martha Graham and Doris Humphrey were among the original members.

All dancers, and would-be dancers, who know their heritage recognize their debt to "Miss Ruth" and "Poppa Shawn." They were the pioneers. They taught and demonstrated what at that time was a new concept. A dance starts with something to say. That "something" is conceived in silence. Not by leaping around to pretty music and being "expressive." But only from deep meditation. Choreography does not begin from technique. You choose and develop the technique that will best communicate what you want to say.

In all their classes and lectures they preached the sacredness of the body. That the body is the dancer's only instrument and cannot be replaced. That this divine instrument should always be such a perfection of condition as to be able to immediately and spontaneously express a emotion or conviction clearly and cleanly.

It was my great privilege to have been associated with both Ted Shawn and Ruth St. Denis for many years. I have a treasured collection of letters, photographs, books, and tapes of interviews and workshops.

After Ruth St. Denis died this summer Ted Shawn wrote, "Ruth St. Denis achieved immortality many years ago; and the real Ruth St. Denis is now living and always will be -- a valiant crusader for truth, a constructive force battling for beauty, and a healing power for the betterment of all mankind."

Thank you again.

Sincerely,
Jean B. Miller
20 Lower Byrdcliffe
Woodstock, N. Y.

(Editor's note: In the year that Tempo has been in existence, we have covered a burgeoning wealth of cultural endeavors in this area; yet have come to feel that the most barren the arts locally is dance. Hopefully, this letter will draw some response from those interested in dance so that performances of value and fine teachers will be heard from more often.)

Lots of 'Digging'

Dear Editor:

Mrs. Bell and I want to thank you for the excellent article in Tempo on Sept. 7 on the old Dutch house we recently purchased in Kyserike, known as Maple Lawn.

Apparently, a lot of work was put into "digging" things up for this story.

At any rate, we both appreciate it and are ordering extra copies of the article.

Thank you again,

Sincerely,

DR. SIDNEY A. BELL

We are looking forward to next summer's season.

Defending the Heads

Dear Editor:

Meretricious showmanship? Us Heads? We don't think so.

If the function of theatre is chiefly, as you imply, to provide a sort of rest cure for theatre-goers brutalized by the process of getting out of the house of an evening, then we have no case.

But if it's more and more the burden of theatre to attempt to bring into focus in "entertaining" forms -- define these as you will -- the extraordinary currents that inform the fragmented and polarized world of the 1960's, then whatever furthers that effort seems to us worth trying.

When we planted a guy in the audience during first week performances to mouth an indignant protest against the so-called "un-Americanism" of our skits and to proceed to attack our actors physically, we were trying to underline for our audience the expectation of violence by which White Americans of the 1960's have, consciously or not, come to live. (For Black Americans it's been a way of life all along.)

And we also wanted to underscore the increasingly thin line between reality and unreality which this commitment to violence appears to mandate.

We really believe those who saw the manufactured "incident" felt it did do what we intended that it should.

Cordially,

Holly Beye for The Heads

Woodstock, N. Y.

(The editor replies: Touche! Well said for your side! As for our side, we remain adamant about what we like and "rest cures" have nothing to do with it. Entertainment that makes us laugh, entertainment that makes us cry...but not entertainment that moves US to violence -- even tripping an actor.)

Glad He's There

Dear Editor:

I read your review on the Green Berets. First of all I would like to ask you if you have ever been to Vietnam?

I have seen the film. I wish that every one in the states would see it film. When they do I would like them to believe first what they see.

One thing that you did not say in your review is that John Wayne made a trip to Vietnam before he made this film.

I have been in Vietnam now for seven months. To me the film was very true to heart. What you see in the film is just what happens over here. I have seen things that would make most people sick. I have seen things that are so bad that they won't even write about in the paper, or could put in a film.

I am glad that I am over here. I have a wife and three kids in Texas and they are free now and that is the way I want them to stay. If it wasn't for the men over here in a few years you would be able to write any more reviews in your paper. We know why we are here and are glad that we are here. We will stay here just as long as it takes to make sure that you in the states will stay free.

Sgt Wayne Stamper

(Editor's note: The above letter is reprinted exactly as it was received by Tempo. If no additional comment seems necessary or appropriate at this time, we would like to say, nevertheless, that while we respect Sgt. Stamper's opinion, we can only reiterate that Vietnam gives us, personally, no sense of pride. It is, of course, open to argument as to whether the Viet War is the most disastrous blunder in our history (as Mayor John Lindsay, for one, has said). Such speculation did not influence our review of the movie in question, which was attacked solely on its merits as entertainment. As a film, it was criticized only because this reviewer found it totally unmoving and filled with clichés, as we have found other movies before it which had nothing to do with patriotism, war or Vietnam.)

About the Cover

Paul Jones is a tall, slender black man who enjoys life and music. During the workaday week, he makes his living as a mechanic, a trade at which he excels. But on his days off and in the evenings, he can be found entertaining with his accordion and horn almost anywhere people gather to listen.

Jones, who hails from Philadelphia and has lived in Ulster County for 30 years, often plays in local nightspots or -- just as often, sets up shop on a sidewalk downtown to entertain his friends. He can play every kind of music there is, but prefers jazz mostly.

His constant companion on these outings is his dog, Jeffrey. And the musically-inclined Jeff is not above joining in with a high C note or two at the sound of his master's voice.

Tempo's cover shot this week was taken by photographer Arthur Johannes, of the Bronx, who caught Paul Jones and Jeff doing their bit on a recent sunny afternoon on West Strand Street down in the Rondout section of Kingston. The photo shows clearly that the impromptu concert was a howling success, and that Jones and Jeff are a "Moondog" twosome.

Popular Guest

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Julie Harris makes still another television guest appearance, this time on the new series, "Journey to the Unknown" filming in England.

A Viet Display At Area Campus

A display of articles from Southeast Asia is dominating the lobbies of Aquinas Hall at Mount Saint Mary College in Newburgh during September. Most of the items pertain to daily life in Vietnam.

Lt. Col. C.P. McNally, Chaplain at Stewart Air Force Base, donated the Vietnamese articles, including an axe, spear, crossbow, python skin, and charcoal iron. They are used by the Montagnara people of the Central Highlands. The most unusual item is a pedicab or cyclo which is used as a taxicab in the big cities. The rider sits in front in a vehicle much like a rickshaw while the driver pedals behind on a bicycle which is attached. The pedicab may be seen in the lobby of the College Theatre. There are also interesting items from Burma and Thailand to complete the exhibit.

The public is invited to view this unusual display weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to early evening and on Saturday mornings in Aquinas Hall.

Actress Will Teach

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Mildred Dunnock will teach at the Yale School of Drama this winter and act with the Yale Repertory Theater.

Miss Dunnock previously has taught at Harvard, Vassar and Barnard. Among her acting parts have been Linda Loman in the original presentation of "Death of a Salesman" and the part of Big Mama in the original production of "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

The Fine Art of Italian Cooking

By DOROTHY NAREL
Womans' Page Editor

Who said good cooking wasn't an art? Not the Italians. They rate it as high as such other treasures as music and Michaelangelo—and spend just about as much time creating culinary masterpieces.

The tradition of good eating is unbroken from Roman days; the subjects of the Caesars were nothing if not notable hosts, and their descendants have never lost the touch. Since classic times, Italian cooking has been exported all over the world; French cooking, for instance, wouldn't have existed without Catherine de Medici, who wouldn't leave Florence to marry Henry II without bringing along her own chefs.

The most recent chapter in the international exchange is trans-Atlantic — as Americans have made good Italian cooking by far our favorite food import.

Happily for creative cooks, the Italian tradition has far more to it than the overly familiar pasta and pizza. The cuisine is subtle, sophisticated—and quick-and-easy, with the help of supermarket shortcuts.

ferences between American and Italian traditions, and often even the ingredients are different.

Nicely enough, today's sophisticated supermarkets offer a wide variety of Italian ingredients; the leading brand, Progresso, actually makes more than 170 different specialties, from antipasti tidbits to minestrone, sauces and everything you need to make your own.

With the long cooking done before canning, all you have to do is mix and match. To make it easy, try this quick-cooking Italian menu. Everything starts with the can; all you add is the imagination.

First course: antipasto, the classic Italian hors d'oeuvres, combining sunny Mediterranean tastes with all-American ease of preparation.

Just raid the cupboard for artichokes in brine, rolled anchovies with capers, black and stuffed green olives, tasty Tuscan peppers, caponata and marinated mushrooms. Place each in an individual serving dish, then put together a center platter of deviled eggs, flanking Tonno Marinata.

Tonno Marinata

2 3½-ounce cans Italian Tonno (imported tuna packed in olive oil)

Oil and vinegar salad dressing

Roasted peppers

Sliced Lemon

Parsley for garnish

Prepare your favorite salad dressing — using white vinegar and imported Italian olive oil for authentic flavor. Open cans of Tonno. Place fish in bowl, leaving contents whole. Marinate in dressing for several hours, spooning dressing over tuna from time to time. When ready to serve, drain and place on platter. Serve with roasted peppers, sliced lemon, parsley. Reserve dressing for salads.

Soup course? Fish course? Zuppe di Pesce is a two-in-one fish soup — made easy by cutting cooking time with prepared ingredients.

Zuppe Di Pesce (Fish Soup)

2 tablespoons imported Italian olive oil

3 medium onions sliced

1 large green pepper coarsely chopped

3 cloves garlic crushed

1 pound any white fish, fresh or frozen (two/more kinds of fish is preferable)

1 1-pound 4-ounce can minestrone soup

1 1-pound 4-ounce can imported Italian peeled tomatoes

1½ teaspoons salt

½ teaspoon sweet basil

Heat olive oil in large kettle. Add onions, green pepper and garlic and cook five minutes. Cut fish into bite-size pieces and add to kettle, together with all remaining ingredients except bread crumbs. Bring to a boil, cover and simmer fifteen minutes. Add bread crumbs (the distinctively Italian thickening ingredient) and simmer five minutes more. Makes about eight cups.

No meal is authentically Italian without some kind of pasta. For main dishes or side servings, there are plenty of ways to be different and delicious. Tomato sauces come out of the jar in several variations; just combine with your favorite pasta, heat and eat. For unexpected saucery, set the sparks flying with Thunder and Lightning.

Polla Alla Marinara (Chicken Marinara)

1 3-pound broiler-fryer quartered

4 tablespoons imported Italian olive oil

½ cup chopped onion

½ cup chopped celery

2 large cloves garlic finely chopped

2 8-ounce cans imported Italian peeled tomatoes

2 cups chicken broth undiluted

½ cup Chianti

2 teaspoons salt

¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper

1½ teaspoons oregano

2 tablespoons flavored Italian bread crumbs

12 pitted and sliced ripe olives

8 ounces of fusilli or any other pasta

3 tablespoons butter

3 tablespoons chopped parsley

Wash chicken pieces and dry on paper towel. Saute chicken in hot olive oil in large heavy skillet, a few pieces at a time, until browned all over. Remove each piece of chicken as it browns. In same oil, saute onion, celery and garlic about five minutes, scraping bottom of pan occasionally to stir in chicken drippings and prevent burning. Add tomatoes, broth, wine, salt, pepper, oregano and chicken pieces. Simmer, covered, about 25 minutes or until chicken is tender. Add bread crumbs and olives and cook five minutes longer. Meanwhile, Italians do, after a particularly cook pasta as package label directs. Drain well and toss with butter and parsley. Turn pasta into serving dish and arrange chicken on top. Spoon some of the sauce over the chicken and serve the remainder in a bowl. Makes four servings. Top it all off in continental style, with fruit and cheese and a cup of steaming espresso coffee, easily available in instant form, to round out your easy Italian dinner. Now lean back and say as the well-satisfied crumb and olive and cook five minutes longer. Meanwhile, Italians do, after a particularly Merviglioso! As a matter of fact, when it comes to praising the talented cook, merely 'marvelous' may not be good enough.

Parsley for garnish

Prepare your favorite salad dressing — using white vinegar and imported Italian olive oil for authentic flavor. Open cans of Tonno. Place fish in bowl, leaving contents whole. Marinate in dressing for several hours, spooning dressing over tuna from time to time. When ready to serve, drain and place on platter. Serve with roasted peppers, sliced lemon, parsley. Reserve dressing for salads.

Soup course? Fish course? Zuppe di Pesce is a two-in-one fish soup — made easy by cutting cooking time with prepared ingredients.

Zuppe Di Pesce (Fish Soup)

2 tablespoons imported Italian olive oil

3 medium onions sliced

1 large green pepper coarsely chopped

3 cloves garlic crushed

1 pound any white fish, fresh or frozen (two more kinds of fish is preferable)

3½ cups water

1 1-pound 4-ounce can minestrone soup

1 1-pound 4-ounce can imported Italian peeled tomatoes

1½ teaspoons salt

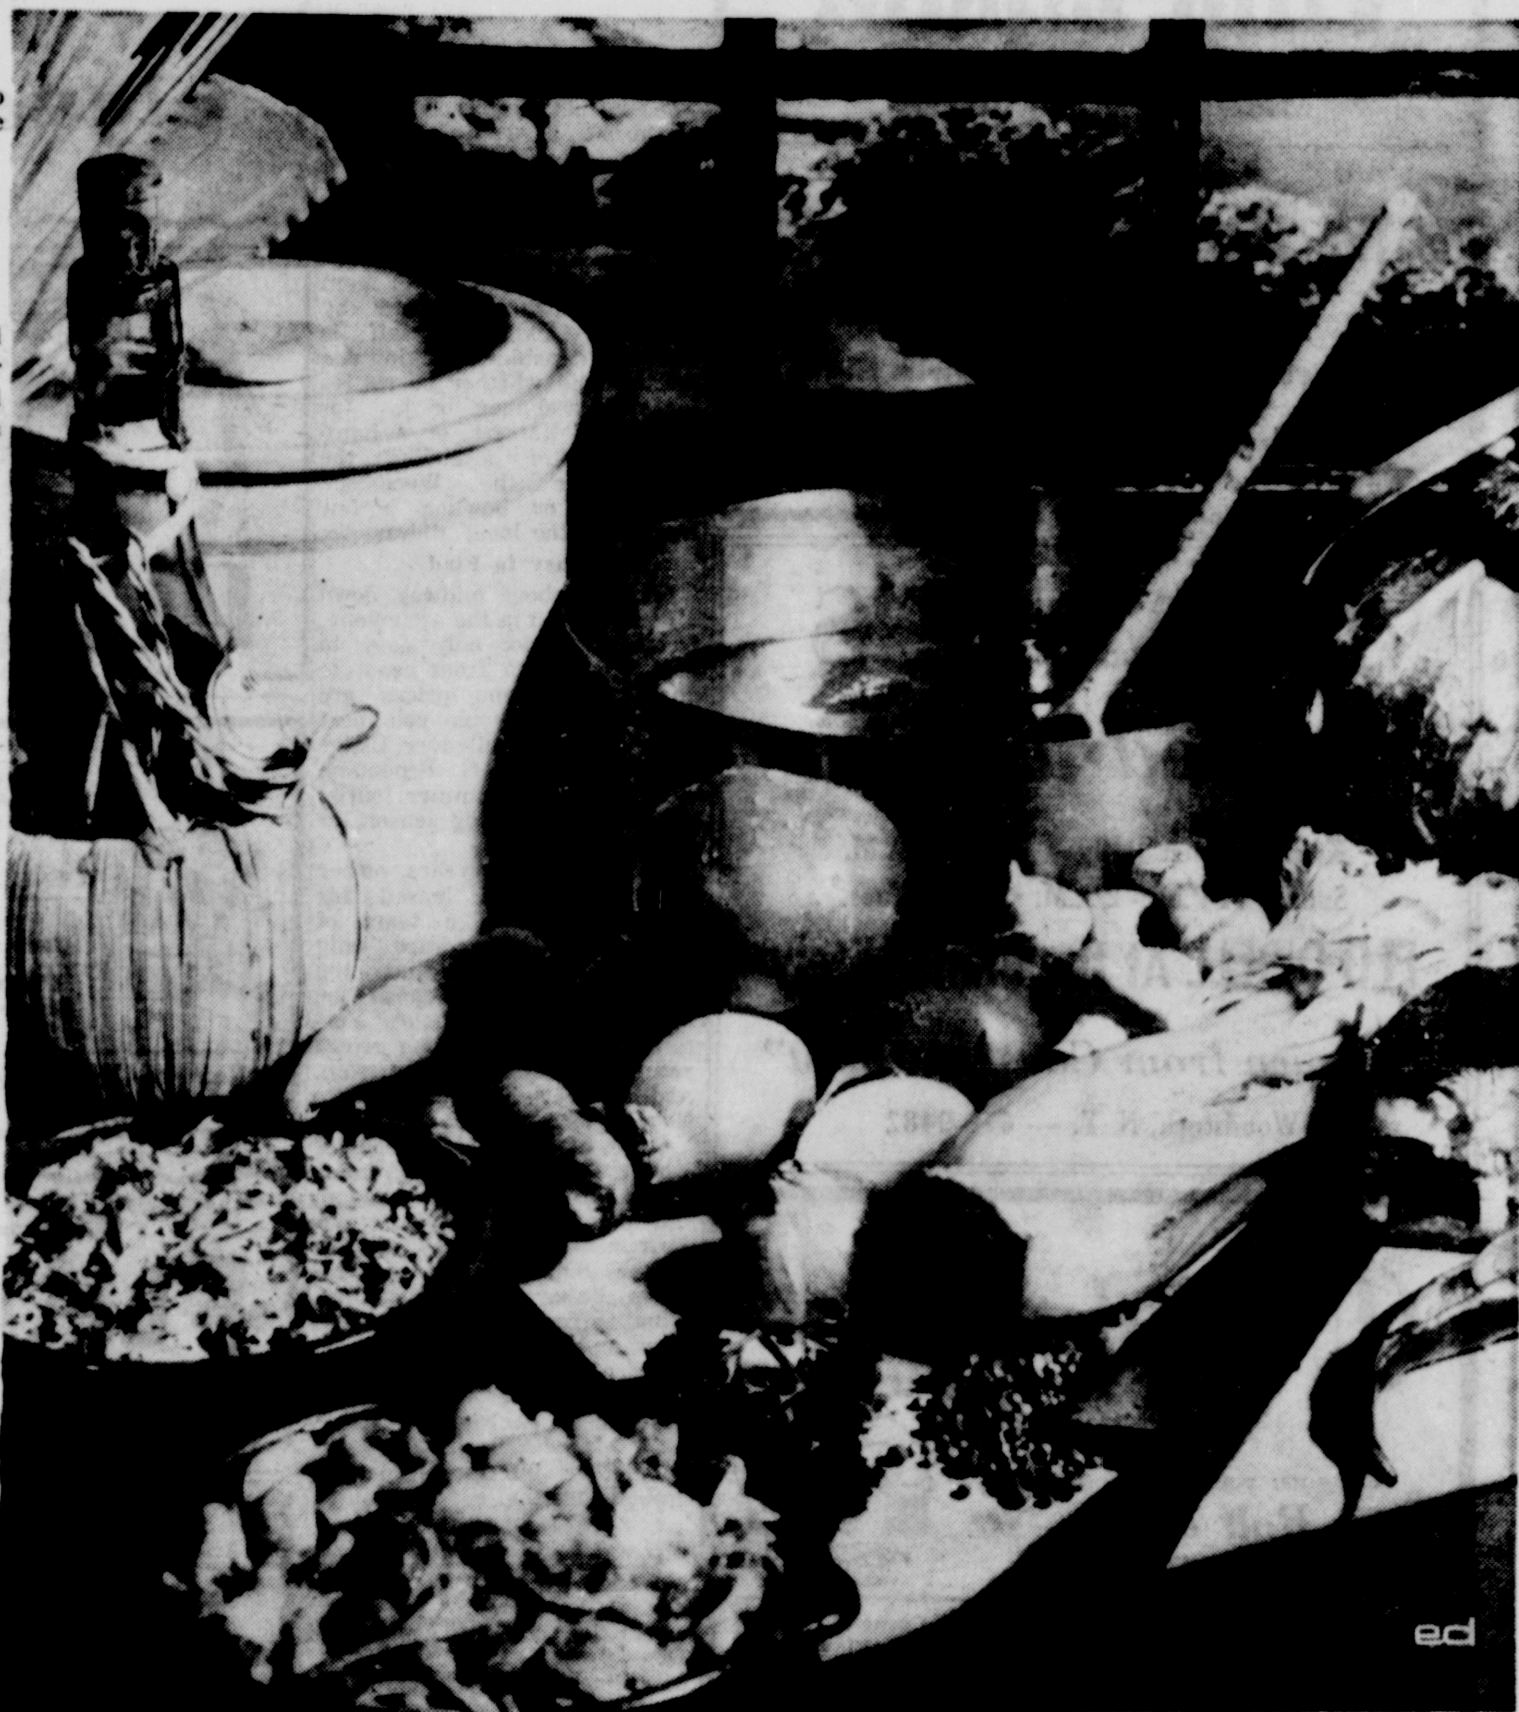

¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper

½ teaspoon sweet basil

¼ cup flavored Italian bread crumbs

Heat olive oil in large kettle. Add onions, green pepper and garlic and cook five minutes. Cut fish into bite-size pieces and add to kettle, together with all remaining ingredients except bread crumbs. Bring to a boil, cover and simmer fifteen minutes. Add bread crumbs (the distinctively Italian thickening ingredient) and simmer five minutes more. Makes about eight cups.

No meal is authentically Italian without some kind of pasta. For main dishes or side servings, there are plenty of ways to be different and delicious. Tomato sauces come out of the jar in several variations; just combine with your favorite pasta, heat and eat. For unexpected saucery, set the sparks flying with Thunder and Lightning.

Polla Alla Marinara (Chicken Marinara)

1 3-pound broiler-fryer quartered

4 tablespoons imported Italian olive oil

½ cup chopped onion

½ cup chopped celery

2 large cloves garlic finely chopped

2 8-ounce cans imported Italian peeled tomatoes

2 cups chicken broth undiluted

½ cup Chianti

2 teaspoons salt

¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper

1½ teaspoons oregano

2 tablespoons flavored Italian bread crumbs

12 pitted and sliced ripe olives

8 ounces of fusilli or any other pasta

3 tablespoons butter

3 tablespoons chopped parsley

Wash chicken pieces and dry on paper towel. Sauté chicken in hot olive oil in large heavy skillet, a few pieces at a time, until browned all over. Remove each piece of chicken as it browns. In same oil, sauté onion, celery and garlic about five minutes, scraping bottom of pan occasionally to stir in chicken drippings and prevent burning. Add tomatoes, broth, wine, salt, pepper, oregano and chicken pieces. Simmer, covered, about 25 minutes or until chicken is tender. Add bread crumbs and olives and cook five minutes longer. Meanwhile, cook pasta as package label directs. Drain well and toss with butter and parsley. Turn pasta into serving dish and arrange chicken on top. Spoon some of the sauce over the chicken and serve the remainder in a bowl. Makes four servings. Top it all off in continental style, with fruit and cheese and a cup of steaming espresso coffee, easily available in instant form, to round out your easy Italian dinner. Now lean back and say as the well-satisfied Italians do, after a particularly tasty dinner: Merviglioso! As a matter of fact, when it comes to praising the talented cook, merely 'marvelous' may not be good enough.

Going Gourmet

There are some restaurants, like Deanie's in Woodstock, that improve with the years for the very reason that they are willing to accept the changes of time.

Deanie's was born several decades back in a trolley car diner, and has since burgeoned into a two-story, frame emporium with three separate dining rooms and two bars. To its everlasting credit, it still offers today—among other delights—the same unbelievably tasty, homemade desserts that it did in the old days when it was the single-countered Tinker Street Trolley. But, in many other ways—it's cooking now for the gourmet tastes of the jet-paced '60s, as well as for those patrons who still have long memories.

Open every day except Tuesday from 3 p.m. to 2 a.m., Deanie's offers the proper atmosphere for a full dinner from soup to nuts, preceded by cocktails. And the staff is perfectly capable of making one feel relaxed whether he settles for such a dinner, or just for coffee and dessert, or a hamburger, after attending the movies or the Woodstock Playhouse or bowling a few frames at the local alleys.

Easy to Find

Located about midway down Mill Hill Road in the art colony, Deanie's is not only easy to find, it's known from coast to coast. The menu prices are right and the people you meet there are from all over Ulster County and the U.S., depending on whether it's summer tourist season, winter skiing season, or spring or fall.

Once, for a few years, owner "Deanie" Elwyn leased his famed eatery to a team of brothers. This venture only served to prove that the restaurant thrived because Mr. Elwyn was at its helm. Fortunately, he has long since returned to captain the ship, and Deanie's has continued to flourish as a result.

Over the years, the counter which shared the dining room space has disappeared; a bigger bar has been installed; the former bar converted into an intimate dining area; and the large dining room redone into what is really two dining sections and a bar. This has been part of the restaurant's ac-the recent decision to supply and other interior decorating embellishments.

Those Sing Alongs

Paintings by local artists and old photographs of Woodstock's earlier days and its celebrities line the walls. And Deanie's long-time Woodstock residents, as well as out-of-towners who simply enjoy eating out in pleasant surroundings. There's an innate sociability in the piano entertainment provided by Flo Odell and, after the dinner hour, customers often gather round to sing along.

Deanie's has more than enough specialties to cater to every taste, and it does a mammoth banquet business too—mainly because the roast beef and other meats are served with as much flair for 500 diners as for five. It is not to be argued that the many who have dined there return again and again to linger, for a little while, in a small world of friends, food and excellent service. (T.G.)

Go See It! Go Do It!

So you can't fly to London for some wee hours flinging in those mad, mod nightspots. So even New York's entertainment whirl is out of the question. So Boston and Washington will have to wait until another fall for that trip you've been planning.

So what? Cheer up! Autumning in and around Ulster and Dutchess offers enough things to do, places to go and sights to see, if you really put your mind to it.

Tempo will keep you advised on theatre attractions — and they'll abound what with the Hudson Valley Repertory group swinging into its second season, the Playhouse-on-Hudson doing the same, Coach House Players readying its schedule, and area and local colleges offering excellent touring companies and productions by their own students.

Then, too, there's no dearth of musical attractions in these here Catskills. If there was a time locally when band concerts only were offered, that's no longer the case. The repertory today includes more serious music offered by the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra and the Community Concerts, to one night stands by big bands and pop groups of international fame. Folk-pop and jazz concerts are usually holding forth somewhere in the area for the digging, and the dining-and-dancing spots keep coming up with bright new talent and an occasional touring big name.

You Never Have?

And as for that dining and dancing, such entertainment possibilities are all over the map. Chances are, most of you will find many such emporiums advertised right on this page of Tempo that you've never visited. Why not try a new one once in awhile and you may be surprised at the happy hunting!

Entertainment can even be found in often simple things that cost nothing. Free lectures can be both interesting and fun and Tempo tries to keep readers posted on these. Stargazing at the New Paltz Planetarium, rambles down back-country byways when the autumn foliage is afire with color, bicycling on a seldom-traveled dirt road, fashion shows in local stores, watching amateurs try their hand at sandlot baseball and touch football — all can be entertaining and free.

But if it's pay day and you want to splurge, Tempo is full of theatre, music, festival, and dining out and dancing pleasures. Art shows, crafts shows and museum exhibits — sometimes free, sometimes not — can be entertaining, too.

So, for things to do, places to go, sights to see, and where to eat seafood or rum cake and dance to what combo, keep turned into Tempo this fall. —(T.G.)

Potpourri

A PRELUDE — More and more connoisseurs are taking advantage of the Kingston area's excellent array of fine eating places. Two prominent Kingstonians recently had the choice of waiting an hour and a half at SKYTOP for service or an hour and a half at SALVUCCI'S RESTAURANT.

Since "crowds" usually tell the tale as far as quality is concerned, these two eating places must be classed among the finest. But, as we see it, it'll be a red-letter Saturday night when one can sashay into ANY good restaurant without reservations and be served before a few s-l-o-w cocktails at the bar.

Nothing can ruin an anticipated night out more (and we DO mean ANTICIPATED — what with two hours enduring rollers and dryers, fingernails manicured in the just-right frosted shade that matches a brand new creation fashioned in the most feminine of all fabrics — chiffon . . . . we're sure you get the picture) than "taking a chance" on a seat in a good restaurant only to learn they're filled to capacity. Of course, you still have a choice — a long wait at the bar or settling for second best.

Now hear this: IF you want to "take a chance," save it for the long-shot at Saratoga, not for the evening you decide to enjoy a "perfect" dinner at your favorite restaurant.

A final bit of courteous know-how that pays ROYAL dividends — if you have a favorite table, and what gourmet doesn't, try to reserve it well in advance, but DON'T be so naive as to expect the restaurant to hold your reservation indefinitely on a busy evening.

AN EPILOGUE — No dinner would be complete whether in your own home or Lismore castle, whether in Ulster County or Paris, France, without a really good wine.

Many people hesitate in ordering wine because of their embarrassment at not knowing what type to order with what food or which vintage years produced the finest wines.

After having visited the winery in Washingtonville, the largest and oldest in America, by the way, we have become convinced it's the aroma as much as the taste that indicates the quality.

Having seen the huge oaken casks where wines have mellowed and aged for more than a century, having visited the vaults where New York's finest champagne "sleeps," and having listened to the romantic history of wine making, one of man's most ancient arts, we sip our wine today with the respect and appreciation due such nectar of the Deity.

In many fine restaurants wine is served by a wine steward or sommelier, and it is customary that the host be given the first pouring to judge the soundness of the wine. And just as you would send back an overcooked lobster and tough filet mignon, so you should send back a wine that does not come up to par.

The simple rule: red dinner wines with red meats; white dinner wines (may we recommend a Sauterne at the beginning) with white meats; still causes some epicures to loose their positive cool after selecting a combination surf and turf entree. Here, Rose and Sparkling wines, perfect with all foods, would be the faultless selection. Dinner wines (with the exception of Sparkling wines) should be served 10-degrees below room temperature. Sparkling wines, such as Champagnes and Burgundy should, of course, be iced or chilled in advance of serving. Be certain your wine is served promptly with the entree as wine complements food. An excellent idea is to order your wine immediately in order to enjoy it with conversation before your dinner.

Another versatile wine, compatible with the four seasons, and ABSOLUTELY correct with every meal, is champagne. This delicate golden wine can make an everyday meal become a special occasion.

For a dessert designed to tempt the taste buds of some of your more status-conscious gourmet friends (whom we know you'd like to impress), try strawberries in champagne for a wild, rare dessert. It's guaranteed to raise those delicate brows at least half-an-inch.

ONE FINAL HINT: Have the courage of your OWN convictions. When choosing a wine be guided by your OWN tastes. And don't be reticent about ordering American wines, some of which are superior to imported wines. It's a fact that New York State wines are rated among the finest. Just remember, American wines were served to Gen. DeGaulle on his last visit to America and he admitted he did not know the difference!

Roland Robbins, the man known as the "Pick and Shovel" historian, will present an illustrated talk on "The Road to Ruins and Restorations" on Sunday, Sept. 29 at 8 p.m. in Thayer Hall at West Point. The open-to-the-public lecture is being sponsored free of charge by West Point's Constitution Island Association and Cold Spring's Putnam County Historical Society.

Robbins is the official historian of Lincoln, Mass. and his comments will cover the most important digs and restorations on which he has worked in New England and New York state. With pick and shovel, he has been involved in excavations of Pilgrim John Alden's home in Duxbury, Thoreau's Walden Pond cabin site, Saugus Ironworks in Massachusetts, and Sterling Furnace in Tuxedo, N. Y. It was the Sterling Furnace that produced the iron for the chain which spanned the Hudson River from West Point to Constitution Island during the Revolutionary War.

More recently, Robbins was involved in the excavation project in Tarrytown at the Sleepy Hollow Restoration, the Dutch trading post on the Hudson River in 1683.

Anyone interested is invited to hear the Robbins' program which promises interesting information on life in the early days of the U.S.

Ulsterites planning to attend might be interested in making the trip early in the day so as to include a visit to the Putnam County Historical Society's library-museum at Cold Spring. It's open free on Sundays from 2 to 5 p.m.; features permanent displays and special exhibits. Located at 63 Chestnut Street, it is also open Wednesdays from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and any time by appointment for viewing and historical research. The Society also offers illustrated talks for any groups requesting such programs.

Heidi

The new film version Johanna Spyri's best-seller, "Heidi," is playing a special children's matinee today and tomorrow at the Mayfair Theatre. And it certainly proves the durability of this charming youth classic which, 84 years after being written, is a heart-warming story still greatly admired by today's children.

This is the third screen version of "Heidi," and stars cute Eva Maria Singhammer as the heroine of the title, aided and abetted by an excellent storybook film captures all the color and beauty of the Swiss Alps and the high adventures of the little girl with the golden hair and her friend, Peter, the goat boy. The tiny orphan and her grandfather, the aunt who takes Heidi to town to live a respectable life, the crippled Klara and the eccentric governess all come to life again in this joyous classic.
